WOMAN KILLED AS TRAIN HITS STALLED AUTO

Mangled Body Is Found by Driver When He Returns to Scene.

LEFT CAR ON TRACKS TO SEEK ASSISTANCE

PAIR BECOMES LOST RIDING IN HEAVY FOG

Had Spent Evening at Party in Honor of Wedding Anniversary.

Returning home from a wedding anniversary party, Mrs. Florence Shinn, 200 Shepherd street, Chevy Chase, Md., was killed yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding stalled on the railroad tracks at Woodside, Md., and was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train.

Mrs. Shinn had been a guest at the tenth wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. E. Babitt, 4405 Fourteenth street northwest, Saturday night. Another guest, T. C. Stockdale, of Clarendon, Va., volunteered to take her home. They left the Babitt home about 12:45 yesterday morning. Mr. Stockdale became confused in the thick fog and after a long drive found he was in Silver Spring. He asked a gas station attendant the way to Chevy Chase.

Turns at Wrong Store.

The attendant directed him to turn left after he passed the Sanitary Grocery Co. store. Mr. Stockdale turned at the wrong store and eventually found himself at the end of Fenwick lane, Woodside, at the entrance to the C. A. Snow estate.

He turned the car around and started back over the railroad crossing, but missed the filled portion in the fog and his car rolled on the tracks. The wheels straddled the tracks and the running boards and drive shaft rested on the rails.

He directed Mrs. Shinn to get out and to stay at the side of the tracks and not get back into the car, he told police, and then went for help to get his car off the tracks.

William Holmead, who lives nearby, agreed to assist and returned to the crossing with him. As they approached the tracks local train No. 1474 rounded the curve and crashed into the stalled automobile. Engineer A. L. Walty and Conductor L. J. Boody, both of Baltimore, estimated that the train was going 35 miles an hour.

Mangled Body Found.

Believing his passenger was waiting at the side of the tracks, Mr. Stockdale went to escort her back. After a few minutes' search he found her mangled remains beside the track.

Corpl. Leroy Snyder and Policeman Charles Barnes, of the Silver Spring substation, Montgomery County police, and Dr. Gerald A. Scully, of Silver Spring, were summoned. Dr. Scully pronounced the woman dead. The body was removed to Rockville by Warner Pumphrey, Rockville undertaker.

The woman's body was thrown 188 feet and the car about 400, police measurements show. It is believed that Mrs. Shinn became tired of standing and had seated herself on the running board of the auto. The headlight and noise of the locomotive were dimmed by the heavy fog.

Inquest Held Unnecessary.

Mr. Stockdale remained at the Silver Spring substation until State's Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., had investigated and decided that an inquest was unnecessary. A certificate of accidental death will be issued, the State's attorney said last night.

Mrs. Shinn was about 55 years old. She is survived by two sons, Clarke R. Shinn, of the Huffer-Shinn Optical Co., with whom she lived, and R. Amos Shinn, of Baltimore.

Mr. Stockdale is manager of a restaurant at Clarendon, Va. He met Mrs. Shinn for the first time Saturday night when he arrived at the anniversary celebration. He was for about five years manager of the Childs Restaurant at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Man Tries to End Life With Razor, Say Police

Slashing his wrists with razor blades while under the influence of liquor, Lawrence C. Connelly, 29 years old, of N street near Fourteenth street northwest, attempted suicide about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, according to a report issued later in the day by the Second Precinct.

Connelly was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment and later removed to the Second Precinct. He was removed to his home by relatives yesterday afternoon and placed under the care of a family physician. No definite reason for the young man's act could be ascertained by police.

Mabel Normand Dies, Ending Tragic Career

Tuberculosis Proves Fatal to Noted Figure in Film Colony Life.

Monrovia, Calif., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Mabel Normand, whose private and film life offered strangely contrasting roles of tragedy and comedy, died in a sanitarium here at 2:30 a. m. today. She had suffered from tuberculosis since the latter months of 1928.

Blood transfusions recently, resorted to in hope they would strengthen the actress' weakened general condition, failed, and after an almost imperceptable sinking spell late last night, the comedienne died at the Pottenger Santarium here. Only her secretary, Miss Julia Benson, and a night nurse, were at her bedside.

Despite her extremely weak condition, Miss Normand was conscious until the last few moments of her life. Scarcely more than an hour before her death, she had taken some light nourishment.

Lew Cody, husband, was notified shortly after her death. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Normand and a brother, Claude Norment, jr., and a sister, Gladys, of Staten Island, N. Y., also, were informed. They telegraphed to Los Angeles that they were leaving immediately for that city. They will made the trip from Columbus, Ohio, to the coast by airplane. Funeral arrangements will be deferred pending their arrival.

Miss Normand, due to her critical condition, was not informed of the death of her father, Claude Normand, sr., several days ago in Staten Island.

MABEL NORMAND.

Except possibly to a few intimates, Miss Normand's sudden death came as a surprise. Recently her physicians had issued bulletins declaring her ravaged lungs were responding to treatment and that she was improv-

MARINE IS RESCUED FROM ROCK IN RIVER

HELPLESS TWO HOURS

Clinging numb and helpless for two hours in the icy waters of the Potomac River to the ledge of a midstream rock near the Chain Bridge after his canoe capsized, Corpl. Lynn A. Rudolph, 21-year-old marine, was rescued at 6:30 o'clock last night.

Hurled into the river when the fragile craft suddenly was overturned in the tricky cross-currents swirling at the point where the tributary flows from the nearby Dalecarlia reservoir meets the Potomac, a short distance above the Chain Bridge, Rudolph, clad in his heavy marine uniform, struck out for the nearest rock, jutting out of the river about 30 feet from the northern shore.

Swimming with considerable difficulty, the marine at last reached the rock, exhausted, and managed to secure a firm hold on its side. Too tired to make any outcry for a time, he exerted all his strength in keeping himself from slipping down. In this numb condition, he finally began shouting, but the cries were unheard in that desolate stretch until a small boy, walking alone on the nearby bank, observed his plight and summoned pedestrians along Potomac avenue, who sounded an alarm for Fire Rescue Squad No. 1.

The outfit, headed by Sergt. E. J. Carroll, responded and flung several lines to the rock before Rudolph succeeded in slipping a noose beneath his arm for the drag ashore. He was taken to the Naval Hospital for attention overnight to stave off pneumonia, and later will be returned to his post at the Marine Barracks here.

Brother-in-Law Cut, Man Put Under Arrest

Charges oc assault with a dangerous weapon early last night were placed by Eighth Precinct police against Charles Matthews, an Italian, 38 years old, in connection with the alleged cutting of his brother-in-law, Frank Copi, another Italian, 47 years old, in the rear of their Georgia avenue residence near Barry Place northwest.

Copi, suffering from gashes over the right eye and left side of the face, was admitted to Freedmen's Hospital.

NEW ALASKAN GOLD STRIKE IS REPORTED

MERCURY IS 40 BELOW

(Associated Press.)

From the far reaches of the Yukon River, where the temperature hovers around 40 below zero, the terse staccato of a telegrapher's key has brought vivid picture of Alaska's latest gold strike.

"Richest gold strike in history this camp struck in Poorman few days ago—every man in whole vicinity that can get transportation of any kind going or gone—temperature 40 below zero—Poorman every cabin crowded, the one roadhouse and store filled to capacity—all mining plants closed down—all rushed to stake in ground at new discovery—panning out unusually well—visited prospect shaft—told to pan for ourselves—temperature still 40 below zero—broke piece, held pan with dirt into tub boiling water to thaw out—panned finding about $2.96 worth fine looking washed gold in two pans."

Thus reports to the Army Sergt. William N. Growden, Signal Corps operator at Ruby, Alaska, who was bitten so hard by the gold bug that he asked and received five days' leave, traveled 29 miles a day by dog team with an Indian guide to reach the discovery grounds only to find them virtually all staked.

But, he went on:

"Next morning accompanied Mike Kovas, original discoverer, to Butte Creek, only one not yet staked. Heavy clothing and strenuous hill climbing on snowshoes somewhat painful—pretty much in but kept going—returned to home camp across two divides confinced that frost must have shoved up those divides a few thousand feet higher than when we crossed them in morning. Had fine moose steak dinner waiting. Some of party had badly frozen hands and frost through parka jumper.

"Next morning went over to Diamond Creek and staked claims on ground overlooked by others. Hope t is good, but don't know yet."

Sergt. Growden reported the return trip and was careful to add: No messages on file when I returned to Ruby,

Deaf Fighter, Trying Cure Jump In Parachute, Dies

Fred "Dummy" Mahan Killed in 5,000-Foot Plunge in California as Safety Device Fails to Open; Thousands See Accident.

San Francisco, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Fred "Dummy" Mahan, welterweight boxer from Tombstone, Ariz., plunged to his death here today in a 5,000-foot parachute jump from an airplane. Mahan, a deaf mute, made the jump in an effort to regain his hearing. He had been deaf since he was 8 months old.

A crowd of several thousand persons watched horror stricken as he catapulted through the air from the clouds. Only the pilot parachute opened as he fell from a plane piloted by Col. Harry Abbott, Berkeley aviator, inventor of a new type parachute which Mahan was using.

Col. Abbott said after landing that Mahan pulled the rip cord of the parachute too soon after jumping. The pilot parachute struck the stabilizer of the plane, hopelessly entangling the fighter, Abbott said.

The accident occurred almost directly over Mills Field, San Francisco's municipal airport. The body fell in a meadow a short distance away.

NEW CRIMINAL INQUIRY BARED TO COMMITTEE

Senate Judicial Group Is Told Plan to Measure Lawlessness.

DRY ENFORCEMENT PROBLEM DUE TODAY

PROHIBITION FORCES MOBILIZE FOR FIGHT

(Associated Press.)

The prohibition controversy at the Capitol has centered in the Senate judiciary committee, which will consider today whether to undertake a far reaching investigation into enforcement of the dry law.

Chairman Norris, of the committee, himself a dry, has proposed the inquiry. The proposal has split the dominant Senate drys. The administration drys are opposing the investigation. The Democratic drys are looking apprehensively at it and are still in doubt, for the most part. Senator Norris has a mass of evidence to present to the committee.

While Senator Norris, a leader of the Republican independent faction, has asked a comprehensive survey of prohibition conditions throughout the country, others favoring the investigation are known to be interested in the activities of the prohibition enforcement chiefs—Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury, and Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

Drys Gather Forces.

Meanwhile, the drys are mobilizing to answer the wet assault upon the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act before the House judiciary committee. These hearings will be resumed on Wednesday, and the wets have been granted at least one more day to complete their appeal for repeal of the eighteenth amendment or modification of the Volstead act.

The prohibition legislation is clogged behind the tariff in the Senate. It seems likely that the House bill for transfer of the dry enforcement service from Secretary Mellon to Attorney General Mitchell will form the basis for the prohibition hearings and debate in the Senate.

Another crime investigation came to light yesterday with word to the Senate judiciary committee that a survey is being conducted by the International Association of Chiefs of Police under the sponsorship of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Law Officers Help.

In a statement presented to the committee, Bruce Smith, representing the committee on uniform crime records, disclosed the new investigation. He urged support of the House bill to establish a central bureau for the collection of criminal statistics in the Department of Justice. Mr. Smith reported that law enforcement officers throughout the country are cooperating in the collection of crime data.

"The investigation embraces a registration area of 20,000,000 persons," Mr. Smith informed the committee, "and by spring we hope to have more than one-third of the country's population represented.

"Statistics of the following major offenses are being compiled: Felonies, homicide, rape, grave assaults, robbery, burglary, larceny and automobile thefts. These figures will be published each month, with the result that as time goes on we shall be able to measure the trend of crime in the various parts of the country and in the country as a whole.

"Such measurement has never before been possible because the United

Real Estate Man Is Amnesia Victim

Milton Boucher, Wounded, Regains Memory After Eight Hours.

Bleeding profusely from severe cuts over the right eye and the forehead, Milton J. Boucher, 39 years old, prominent real estate man, told police early last night that he did not remember how he had been hurt and that his memory had been a blank, except for one minor incident, for eight hours.

Mr. Boucher, vice president and treasurer of the John W. Thompson Co., stumbled into a garage last night and asked that a certain relative be summoned.

He was taken to a precinct station, and the relative removed Mr. Boucher to his residence. Mr. Boucher said he accomapnied his wife to a train at the Union Station and after seeing her depart remembered only stopping at his office for a few minutes during the ensuing hours.

PARIS REPORTS CHEER UP NAVY PARLEY GROUPS

SHORT LIFE FEARED FOR CABINET, THOUGH

Report That Jones' Views Caused Disaffection Is Denied.

LADY ASTOR EXPLAINS AIMS OF CONFERENCE

Peeress Appeals to Women of U. S. to Work for Cause of Peace.

London, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Reports from Paris indicating that the new Chautemps government, with Socialist support, might obtain a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies next Tuesday permitted the heads of the four other delegations to the stranded London naval conference to rest a little easier tonight.

Even a brief appearance of a French delegation headed by Foreign Minister Briand at the conference would enable Prime Minister MacDonald to summon all the delegates for a hurried survey of the whole situation. The five powers could work out a plan to harmonize the future activities of the conference with the topsy turvy political situation in France.

In London the impression is that the life of the Chautemps government will be short. The American delegates seem to think that former Premier Tardieu yet will be called on to lead the French delegation back to St. James' Palace.

Week Required to Form Cabinet.

The only thing definite, however, about such speculation is that at least a week is required to form a cabinet in France. The question of how long Secretary of State Stimson, former Premier Wakatsuki and Foreign Minister Grandi can keep their delegations in London while the French political parties are settling their differences may soon become pressing.

Secretary Stimson spent a quiet week-end at Stanmore, where he will remain tomorrow. He inquired twice today about the health of Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, who spent a bad night.

The admiral's illness, diagnosed during the week as ulcers of the stomach, will be the subject of a consultation between Dr. Higgins, U. S. Navy medical man who has been treating him, and an English specialist tomorrow. The doctors will decide whether Admiral Jones is to embark on the liner Berengaria Wednesday.

London Paper Sees Disagreement.

Though his condition is said not to be serious, Admiral Jones is sufficiently ill to cause a good deal of worry among his friends.

A London Sunday newspaper printed a sensational report that, though his illness was a cause for the admiral's sudden decision to return to the United States, there were strong rumors behind the scenes attributing to him definite opinions about the depletion of the American Navy on the basis of Anglo-American parity.

This report drew from the spokesman of the American delegation the answer that "there is absolutely no disaffection in our delegation, and there is no reason at all why Admiral Jones' departure should have an effect on the conference as a whole."

The Sunday night broadcasting bill on conference activities was filled by Lady Astor, American born peeress and member of Parliament, while Lord Parmoor, Labor party

Justice Official Will Face Court

Traffic Charges Are Placed Against Special Assistant Attorney General.

It may cost Miss Mary Gertrude Connor, special Assistant Attorney General in the United States Department of JNustice, $9 more for passing a traffic signal yesterday.

After arresting the official when she disregarded his order to stop, Policeman J. A. Voss, of the Traffic Bureau, discovered that Miss Connor had failed to change her address on her license card when she moved from Columbia road to the 3600 block of Connecticut avenue, and also that she had neglected to take her driver's permit with her when she started her drive.

Although she was given the option of forfeiting collateral aggregating $9 on three charges, Miss Connor preferred to fight the case and will appear in Traffic Court today to try to get he rmoney back.

HOOVER WILL CONFER WITH FINANCE CHIEFS AT BREAKFAST TODAY

Switch of Favor Seen To Lehlbach Measure

Employes Joint Conference on Retirement Called to Meet Today—Shift of Support from Dale Bill Indicated by Developments.

The possibility that many of the Government employes who have been stanchly advocating the passage of the Dale retirement bill will shift their support to the Lehlbach bill loomed last night as Robert H. Alcorn, chairman of the Employes Joint Conference on Retirement, announced that he had called a meeting of his committee for 10 o'clock this morning.

While Mr. Alcorn declined to state the exact purpose of the conference or to predict the stand that the group would take in view of President Hoover's statement urging the enactment of the Lehlbach measure, he admitted that his committee was desirous of getting "something better than we have now" and that with some certainty that it would become a law.

The House civil service committee will not hold any hearings today on the two bills, but will probably meet tomorrow in executive session to make a decision.

Republican leaders of the House have declared that they would probably not permit the Dale bill to come up for a vote, in view of the President's indication of his wishes. The majority in the civil service committee, however, has previously been for the Dale measure.

SOVIET TELLS BORAH OF RABBIS' RELEASE

PROTESTS STIR RUSSIA

(Associated Press.)

Senator Borah, of Idaho, said last night that he had been informed by Acting Commissar Litivinoff of Foreign Affairs for the Soviet Republic that all but three of the Jewish rabbis, who were arrested on charges of counter-revoluntionary activities had been released.

Senator Borah added that he felt reasonably certain there was no danger of execution of the three who still were held.

"I have received word this afternoon from Litvinoff, acting commissar of foreign affairs, stating that all the rabbis, who were under arrest, have been released, except three, he said. Among those released, I am informed, is Rabbi Gluskin.

"I feel reasonably certain that as to the three not yet released, there is no danger of execution."

The Idaho senator cabled the Soviet government yesterday regarding reports that a group of Jewish rabbis had been arrested.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Feb. 23 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Antireligious street demonstrations, alleged to have been organized by the Jewish population, were said today to be in progress in a number of townships in the Minsk, Mozir, Bobroisk and Vitebsk regions.

The last synagogue in Krupke has been taken over by the authorities, and a red flag waves over the synagogue in a township near Vitebsk. The Jews were said to be marching on the local Soviets asking for the conversion of the synagogues.

The newspaper Oktiabre, organ of the Jewish Communists in Minsk, declared that all rabbis in Russia play an important role in the present anti-Soviet crusade abroad, that they are all spies for foreign counterrevolutionaries and that therefore "these holy damagers should be carefully watched."

The entire Soviet press, from Izvestia, the official government paper, to the smallest sheet, today carried a furious official attack on the Jewish Telegraphic Agency because of the furor raised abroad over the reported danger of the Minsk rabbis.

POISONER RELIEVED OF GUNS, STILETTO

Man Intended to Kill Two Guards En Route to New York, Claim.

NEW CONFESSION MADE

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—James Baker, 23, self-styled slayer of nine men, arrived here today from Detroit after having been frustrated in an alleged attempt to add two more deaths to the list of which he boasts.

Detectives George Fitzpatrick and Arthur M. Horey, who guarded Baker on the train, said they found two pistols and a stiletto on his person during the trip and that he had confessed an intention to kill them at Pittsburgh and make his escape.

Shortly after his arrival, District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain announced Baker had made a confession of the poisoning of Henry Gaw, watchman at the Guggenheim Laboratories here, on December 27, 1928. Mr. Crain said he believed the confession was authentic. Detroit police have expressed skepticism as to the reality of at least some of the other deaths.

Mr. Crain said Baker also admitted shooting and killing a railroad detective who tried to stop him from crossing tracks in Detroit. He said an alienist would examine Baker and that the case against him for the killing of Gaw would be taken to the grand jury Tuesday and a murder indictment asked.

Tomorrow morning he is to be arraigned in general sessions court on the rbobery indictment. The indictment charges he stole $20 from one of two truck drivers who entered the Guggenheim laboratories during his attack on Gaw.

"There's nothing crazy about me," he said.

The guards who accompanied him on the train from Detroit quoted him as having said, "I've been in India and I've seen human beings horribly tortured. I've seen plenty in my life, and I'm willing to go."

In his confession, as made public by Mr. Crain, Baker repeated the story he had told Detroit police of having forced the night watchman to drink two cups of poisoned coffee and then forcing a lump of poison down his throat with the muzzle of a gun.

The two loaded guns and the stiletto were discovered a few hours out from Detroit, the detectives said. Baker refused to tell where he obtained the weapons. Detroit police were notified and word from officials there said an investigation had been started to determine how Baker had acquired them.

Police Launch Drive Today On Dust-Covered Car Tags

Owners of Autos With License Numbers Difficult to Read are to Be Watched For; $2 Is Minimum Penalty.

Motorists who let their license tags accumulate a coating of dust, either because of some natural untidiness or in an effort to render the numbers more difficult to read, and those who hide their tags behind bumpers or other accessories, have become so numerous that the police have decided something should be done about it.

Beginning today, policemen of the Traffic Bureau and of the fourteen precincts are under special orders to keep particular watch for dirty or obstructed automobile license tags, and to arrest all motorists whose tags are not both perfectly legible and so exposed that they can be read without any difficulty.

The minimum penalty for driving with illegible or obstructed license tags is $2, which may be posted at the Traffic Bureau or precinct station house and forfeited without the formality of going to court. It is expected, however, that those instances where the offender gets off with the minimum while this particular violation holds the spotlight will be in the great minority, and that most drivers picked up on the charge will have to pay at least $5.

SUPPLY MEASURES DELAYED BY TARIFF

Mellon, Budget Officials and Ledaers of Old Guard Invited.

PARLEY SEEN AS JIBE AT COALITION GROUP

$160,000,000 Tax Reduction to Necessitate Governmental Economy Program.

President Hoover has called another White House breakfast council for this morning, to which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, budget officials and Old Guard Republican leaders of Senate and House have been summoned, in order to prepare for holding down appropriations because of reduced taxes, and to prevent the supply bills from being caught in the Senate log-jam over the tariff.

The $160,000,000 tax cut and the prospect of diminished Treasury income due to the stock market crash and its impairment of business necessitate a rigid check on all appropriations, according to the White House. Moreover, the President is disturbed by the legislative situation at the Capitol, fearing that unless the tariff is disposed of soon, the important supply bills may be trapped. The White House has indicated that such a predicament might force the laying off of 10,000 to 20,000 Government employes.

Senator Borah, as spokesman for the Senate coalitionists on the tariff, sees no reason for alarm over the passage of the appropriation bills, however.

"I haven't any fear that the appropriation bills will not be passed in plenty of time," Senator Borah, speaking for the coalition, said last night. "My understanding is that they do not go into effect until the end of the fiscal year, anyway, and that is not until next July 1. They'll be passed."

Congressional Chiefs Invited.

Concerning White House complaint that the Senate is dilatory with the tariff, Mr. Borah added that considerable delay results from interruption due to White House nominations to various commissions. He pointed out that last week the Senate spent many hours in open executive session on the nominations for the Radio and Interstate Commerce Commissions.

"If we could have one uninterrupted week on the tariff," Mr. Borah said, "we could come close to finishing with the bill."

The President decided yesterday to invite to the breakfast the principal figures concerned with appropriation bills, headed by Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Ogden Mills. The others summoned in are Senators Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader; McNary, of Oregon, and Jones, of Washington, assistant leaders; Smoot, Utah, chairman of the Senate finance committee in charge of the tariff bill; Speaker Longworth and Republican Floor Leader Tilson, of the House; Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the House rules committee; Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the House appropriations committee; Representative Hawley, of Oregon, chairman of the House ways and means committee; Col. J. C. Roop, director of the Bureau of the Budget, and White House Secretary Walter Newton.

Coalitionists Look to Hoover.

The same Senate and House leaders sat in at the breakfast last week when the President attempted to expedite the tariff, but drew chiefly another kick-back from the coalitionists, who complained that if he would take a position on the bill, disclosing where he stands and what kind of rates he

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 2 and 18 Today

Though Senator Grundy, as chief exponent of the highest possible tariffs, grew excited last week over a newspaper account, exclusively printed in The Post, that Mr. Hoover, at heart, was with the coalitionists, there has been no cheering among the coalitionists. They contend that if Mr. Hoover really is with them, he has only to say so openly, and they can speedily crush Old Guard resistance to limited tariff revision.

If the President's latest breakfast session over the political and legislative troubles of the administration meets with the same reception as the one last week, the Senate will only become more intensified in its animosities. This is more than likely to result from today's breakfast if any attempt is made to make it appear that the coalitionists are endangering the appropriation bills. Such a charge would be both resented and ridiculed. The only reason the coalitionists did not fire back at the White House last week on this score is that intimations of White House alarm over the appropriations, and possible dropping of Government employes, were so intangible and indirect that attack was hardly possible.

Inference by President.

The White House has now announced, however, that the appropriation measures, which include the usual annual supply bills for all departments, are the subject of today's parley. The inference is plain that if the tariff were out of the way there would be no ned for worry over the appropriations, and thus the innuendo is that the coalitionists are clogging the machinery by their war against the Old Guard's high tariff.

Only old guard leaders have been called into the White House councils, which confirms coalitionist suspicions. Some of the President's advisers indicated last week that Mr. Hoover also planned to consult the coalitionists, who tre actually in command after the rout of the old guard leadership. But the plan, apparently, has gone overboard.

Review of Tariff Bill.

The tariff has been in the making since January 7, a year ago, when the House ways and means committee began hearings in anticipation of the President's call for a special session.

The House passed the measure May 28, after but twenty days of debate under the rigid House rules which shut off discussion. The Senate finance committee, after hearings lasting until August 2, reported the bill to the Senate September 4, debating beginning September 9 and lasting ever since. Compared to uast tariffs, however, this rate of progress has not been unusually slow. Mr. Borah, who inspired the special session in the expectation that the bill was to be restricted to agricultural rates, charged that the responsibility for delay rests with the President because he opened the way for a general revision, of which every big industry took advantage under Mr. Grundy's leadership, and because he hs raefused to say whether he approves or disapproves of the Grundy type of bill against which the coalitionists are stitll battling.

NEW CRIME INQUIRY BARED TO SENATORS

States alone, of all civilized countries has had no reliable index of the amount and character of crime. The largest number of crime returns for the month of January was received from the State of Michigan, with New Jersey and Ohio close behind."

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, predicted in a statement yesterday that many more States soon would join the "legal and peaceable revolt" of the people of New York, Maryland, Wisconsin, Nevada and Montana against State prohibition laws.

Mr. Curran said that during 1929 State divisions had been established by the association in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and New York, and that it had been strengthened in California, Delaware, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, New Jersey and Louisiana.

Board of Directors Increases.

He reported an increase from 103 to 227 in members of the board of directors, who were described as representing 34 States and American organizations with more than 3,000,000 employes and $50,000,000 in assets. Cash in hand and receipts of the association for 1929 amounted to $457,326, he said, and expenditures for the year were $427,213.

"There are already five American States with millions of American men and women within them who will not turn in and help national prohibition," Mr. Curran said. "They will not fasten these fanatical long-distance shackles upon themselves.

"They are not obliged to do it, and they will not do it—which leaves a self-confessed and growing vacuum in national enforcement of a lew which never was truly national and never could be. It is time now for the dominators from afar who have caused this disgraceful chaos of corruption, hypocrisy and murder to admit their overreaching and recede within their own domains. The good common sense of the American people will take care of the affair in the end."

He concluded with the caution, however, that the cost would be high, as freighting cost 5 cents per pound, and transportation was scarce, adding: "Will inform you progress new camp. Thanks for furlough."

HUGHES TO ASSUME NEW OFFICE TODAY

53 Decisions Will Face Chief Justice as He Resumes Supreme Court Bench.

HOME HERE IS CHOSEN

Succeeding the men who, as President, first appointed him to the Supreme Court bench 20 years ago, Charles Evans Hughes today will assume the duties as Chief Justice of the United States which William Howard Taft laid aside because of illness recently.

It was on April 24, 1910, that Mr. Hughes accepted the appointment by President Taft as an associate justice of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice David J. Brewer. Resigning his post as Governor of New York to become associate justice, Mr. Hughes retained that office until he resigned to oppose President Wilson in the presidnetial campaign of 1916.

The formalities of his induction into office today will be simple. After taking the oaths of allegiance to the United States and of the Chief Justice of the United States, he wil receive the felicitations of the associate justices and plunge immediately into his work.

There are now 53 decisions in the court awaiting delivery, among them being some affecting the validity of the Hoch-Smith resolution authorizing the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce rates for the relief of agriculture.

Although his son, Charles Evans Hughes, jr., in his capacity as solicitor general of the United States, would come before Mr. Hughes to present the Government's arguments in cases before the Supreme Court, it is not expected that the new Chief Justice will participate in cases argued by his son, whose resignation has been handed to President Hoover.

One important controversial case which Mr. Hughes will not hear is that brought by the Great Lakes States to prevent diversion of water from Lake Michigan by the Chicago sanitary district. This case, which is scheduled to come into the court on March 12, was handled by Mr. Hughes as special master, and both sides have taken exceptions to the report which he presented.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and their daughter, Elizabeth, have taken an apartment suite at the Mayflower Hotel, and will make their home there for an indefinite period. Among the five rooms which they will occupy is one which the new Chief Justice will use as his study.

Youth Kills Self As Truck Hits Man

Father and Brother Find Boy Dead From Pistol Shot After Accident.

Richmond, Ky., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A short time after a truck which he was driving struck a farmer and knocked him from his horse, the body of John Andrew James, 20, was found beside the truck with a bullet wound in the heart. The farmer, Earl Benge, 50, of Madison County, was not seriously injured.

James, with his brother, Arch James, had left home and traveled a short distance when the truck struck the horse ridden by Benge. The truck overturned and was demolished, although neither of the boys was injured. The two boys assisted Benge, who assured them he was not injured, to his home. Then John James asked his brother to go after their father, John James, sr., of Redhouse, nery here.

When Arch and his father returned they found the body of John, jr., in the road beside the truck, a bullet through his heart. A gun was nearby. Authorities said the boy apparently committed suicide, although they planned an investigation.

Darrow, Cannon To Debate on Rum

Series of Meetings Will Be Held Throughout South, Is Report.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A series of debates throughout the South between Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney, on the subject of prohibition will be held this fall, H. L. Bridges, representative of an Atlanta booking company, said tonight. Bridges said that both men had agreed to speak on the subject, Mr. Darrow in opposition to prohibition and Bishop Cannon upholding it.

Bishop Cannon is now in Africa, Bridges said, and definite plans for the debate tour have not been made.

The Atlantan said that the debates would probably be held in West Virginia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas.

True Religion Held Sovietism Antidote

Russia's present crusade against religion, heading the nation toward its ruin, will find its counterpart in the United States unless this country practices the fundamental principles of true religion, Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of Washington Missionary College, told an audience last night at an auditorium at Eighteenth street and Columbia road northwest.

"This country was founded on the rights of the individual, which is the only true foundation for any democratic organization," he declared.

Ruth Alexander, Aviatrix, Injured As Glider Crashes

Holder of Women's Altitude Record Believed Not Seriously Hurt.

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Ruth Alexander, holder of the women's altitude record for airplanes, was injured here today in a glider crash. She had taken off in a primary glider in an effort to qualify for a first-class glider pilot license.

Miss Alexander soon after taking off in her motorless plane encountered a down draught of wind. In banking to overcome it, one of the wings caught a bush and crashed. She was shaken up, her nose skinned and she fainted after landing. She was reported as not seriously injured.

THREE DIE IN CRASH OF PLANE INTO BAY

INQUEST SET FOR TODAY

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Three men were killed as an airplane crashed into Biscayne Bay beside the Venetian causeway here while it was being taken aloft on an experimental trip today.

The dead M. H. Carlton, Miami Beach, a passenger; F. J. Somers, chief engineer of the Miami Aircraft Co., and Thomas B. Ward, pilot.

The airplane was a flying boat owned by the Miami Aircraft Co. and had recently been built. Carlton went up in it today as a prospective purchaser.

The bodies of Carlton and Somers were recovered shortly after the accident. Some difficulty was experienced in finding Ward's body, but it was recovered after an hour of search by police.

The pilot lifted the nose of the craft into the air after taxiing along the surface of the bay for a short distance. As the plane gained altitude, Ward banked sharply, apparently in an attempt to face more directly into a shifting wind. As he banked, the airplane fell into the shallow waters of the bay.

Inquest into the deaths of the three men will be held tomorrow night.

Washington Held Business Genius

(Associated Press.)

A picture of Washington as the big business man and real estate dealer "who would have had little to learn from any modern promoter of subdivisions" was drawn last night by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, in a radio address.

"Washington had to make his living like any one of us today—and he made it as a business man," Dr. Klein said. "That is not in the least to his discredit; it rather adds to our admiration for him.

"We of today know Washington in many aspects. We know the tireless, unselfish public servant, the inspiring military commander and the statesman of preeminent capacity, and we have come to know in recent years more of the human Washington.

"But there is still another Washington—an enormously important and revealing Washington of whom the average American knows little," Dr. Klein declared. "I mean Washington, the grist-mill operator, the scientific farmer and the real estate man who conducted land operations on a gigantic scale, who bought and sold things endlessly and was scrupulously exact in his accounts."

U. S. Safety Conference Will Be Held in Capital

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Lamont announced yesterday that a general meeting of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety will be held in Washington the last week in May or the first week in June.

More careful driving by the operators of automobiles, greater watchfulness by pedestrians and more uniformity in traffic regulation will be emphasized at the meeting.

NATIONAL

Before an audience that taxed the ample seating capacity of the National Theater, the St. Mary's Players of Baltimore presented yesterday afternoon Edward E. Rose's four-act drama, "The Rosary," as a benefit for the St. Mary's Industrial School.

Although the play is written around Ethelbert Nevin's immortal song, "The Rosary," has strong human appeal in its complications involving high finance, love themes and marital troubles.

Joseph Flynn, cast as Father Kelly, performs his part smoothly and with the lack of ostentation similar to that in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a play not entirely without its moments similar to "The Rosary." Francis X. McCormick and Margaret Kelly have assigned to them the principal parts of the Wintons whose happy home is wrecked by the green-eyed monster.

The role most ably handled is that of Kenward Wright, the sinister force behind the financial and marital ruin of the Wintons, and to Alfred J. Marling belongs the credit for a superb piece of work.

The juvenile love interest is furnished by Frank A. Sanders and Lilyan C. Murphy, while comedy relief is principally in the hands of Frank P. Roberto and Bernadine Kraus.

The three sets are admirably designed and painted by William D. Love, and the entire production staged under the direction of Edward J. Meehan.

Of equal interest was the music, furnished by the Industrial School's Band, faturing as an entr'acte an eleven-piece saxophone band.

MILL WORKERS FACE STRIKE DEATH TRIAL

CASE COMES UP TODAY

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Five Gastonia cotton mill workers, accused of slaying Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, of Bessemer City, during textile strike disorders in Gaston County last September, will answer charges of murder in superior court here tomorrow.

Presiding Judge J. H. Clement, who ordered the trial removed from Gastonia to Charlotte, has declared his intention of calling the case immediately after court is convened. Prospect is, however, that the trial will proceed little further than arraignment tomorrow.

Both the defense and State have indicated their intention of asking a special venire. Summoning of a special venire would delay acttual start of the task of selecting a jury at least until Tuesday.

The defendants are Horace Wheelus, Troy Jones, C. H. Lunsford, Larry Davis and Fred Morrow. They are at liberty under bond.

Mrs. Wiggins, a member of the National Textile Workers Union, with other Bessemer City members of the union, was on her way to Gastonia to attend a union meeting, when a mob halted a truck in which they were riding.

The truck driver was ordered to turn around and return to Bessemer City. He obeyed and members of the mob pursued the truck in automobiles. Three miles from Gastonia an automobile, later identified as belonging to Morrow, pulled sharply in front of the truck. There was a collision. Just at the moment of impact a shot was fired which killed Mrs. Wiggins, the mother of five children.

At a preliminary hearing for the defendants' union members who were with Mrs. Wiggins said Wheelus fired the shot which killed her. They also declared shots were fired at them. More than 100 witnesses have been summoned for the trial.

New Guns Require Camera "Spotter"

Human Eye Is Found Too Slow to Determine Accuracy fo Shooting.

(Associated Press.)

Firing of the new antiaircraft guns has reached such a speed that the Army has been forced to use motion-picture cameras to record the flashes instead of spotters watching them through glasses.

A modern battery of four guns fires as many as 100 shots per minute, and the human eye has been found inadequate to determine the accuracy of the shooting.

Capt. A. M. Jackson, of the Coast Artillery, has developed the new camera, which is known as a "cinematic spotter." Only one model of the device has been manufactured so far, and it is to be given an extensive test at Fort Monroe, Va., beginning March 1.

Victoriano Casajus, military attache of the Spanish Embassy, who made his home at the Wardman Park Hotel, was recalled recently to Madrid and is en route there at the present time, according to announcement made by attaches of the embassy last night. No nate for the arival of Maj. Riera has been made public.

Birds Fed Systematically.

Independence, Kans., Feb. 23.—A careful and systematic campaign for feeding quail during the continued cold and snowy weather has been inaugurated here by the Izaak Walton Leaguers. Teams of a half dozen men, under a captain, are working out of the city in all directions, taking feed to the sheltered places and where quail are known to frequent.

CONFERENCE WAITS FRENCH DELEGATION

NEW PACT IS PROJECTED

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Naval conference circles today awaited the arrival here of the new French delegation.

There has been some speculation, entirely of a tentative character, among American delegates as to what can be done if the French decline to make any reduction in their announced program and if the English, as seems now almost certain, feel unable in consequence to stick to the tentative parity figures reached with the United States delegation.

A three-power treaty between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, with Italy at present an incalculable factor, is under vague discussion. Whether Italy, whose program is conditioned by that of France, would think it worth while to taake part in a treaty from which France abstains is not known and obviiocously depends on one man, Premier Mussolini.

What Americans with whom I have discussed the existing situation wonder is whether there would be hostility in the Senate if the three chief naval powers signed a treaty under which Anglo-American parity was regulated as at present arranged, but with a clause added by Great Britain reserving the right to build additional ships to meet the French. Recepton of such an agreement, some Americans here think, would depend on nizes British alarm at the French program and does not suspect that by the clause of reservation Great Britain would be retaining a free hand, thus making mockery of the attempt to attain a definite agreed program for six years.

It is understood, of course, that the British clause now discussed would provide that the United States could build up to Great Britain to attain parity. But the Americans are worried for fear that realization of the United States' parity aim might possibly involve our building up to a British program called forth by the scare about France.

ROTARY CLUB MARKS TWENTY-FIFTH YEAR

SERVICE USER AS TOPIC

With 200 members and friends in attendance, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Washington Rotary Club was appropriately celebrated last night at St. Alban's, Wisconsinn and Massachusetts avenue northwest, where 15 of the previous birthday celebrations have been held.

The Rev. C. L. Warner, rector of St. Alban's and representative of the religious classification committee of the club, was the principal speaker. His subject was "God, Title and Us."

Man's soul can not be satisfied by wridiyo success alone, the Rev. Warner said. He asserted that man never grows until he expresses himself without fear of the consequences.

Commenting upon the Rotary Club slogan, "Service Above Self," he declared, "When I express myself in service of pleasing others, I add most to my joy and gladness."

Building Models' Housing Is Sought

Conferences Are Due This Week to Place Replicas of U. S. Structures.

Conferences with various Federal officials are planned this week by Ernest S. Johnston and Charles J. Columbus, president and managing director, respectively, of the Advertising Club of Washington, in the organization's effort to secure permanent housing for the group of models of Government buildings now on exhibit in Woodward & Lothrop's.

"No more comprehensive demonstration of the future greatness of the National Capital has ever been had than can be visualized through these models," declared Mr. Columbus. "We feel hopeful that this movement for permanent housing will have the support of every agency of the Government and President Hoover, who first introduced them.

"Vast crowds are coming to Washington this spring in connection with conventions and the usual army of unattached visitors. We of the advertising fraternity feel that it would be especially valuable to have this exhibit in place for the convention of the Advertising Federation of America which meets here May 18."

RETROCESSION PLAN BRINGS HOT PROTEST

Arlington County Resident First to Oppose "Back-to-District" Move.

MOORE LETTER IS CITED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Charging that the "back to the District" movement is sponsored largely by new residents of the county, Harry C. Saffell, former president of the Clarendon Sewerage Corporation, in a statement last night, declared these people "would be more helpful if they would exercise their influence and spend their money in promotingg a movement for a commission form of government for Arlington County, than in continuing to publish to the world that the citizens of Arlington County are incapable of self government and asking that the county be governed by authorities unfamiliar with and unsympathetic with the needs and wishes of its citizens."

Although there has ben a persistent campaign under way for the return of Arlington County to the District since the organization of the Back to the District Association last August, Saffell's statement is the first public utterance recently made by opponents of the proposal.

There are now two bills before the General Assembly of Virginia concerning the reorganization of the Arlington County government. One would allow the incorporation of the entire county upon the application of 15 per cent of the qualified voters and approval by the majority of the electorate. The other bill authorizes, through a constitutional amendment, the formation of a commission form of government, with five commissioners elected at large.

Mr. Saffell declared in favor of the latter measure, asserting it offered the best form of government for the people of the county.

"It is not reasonable to suppose," he said, "that the citizens of the county would want to take upon themselves the responsibility of the maintenance of all roads, including both State and county, in addition to losing more than 16 miles of Federal roads now apportioned to the county, the entire cost of schools and the loss of the gasoline tax in order to become a corporate city."

In opposing the return of Arlington County to the District, Mr. Saffell maintained that the act of Congress allowing the retrocession of the county to the State of Virginia was constitutional, and supported his contention with a letter from Representative R. Walton Moore.

"The District of Columbia is a territory duly constituted as such; and the State of Virginia is likewise constituted a State and recognized as such," he said. "Under the provision of the Constitution no State can annex any portion of another State or territory without the consent of freeholders. The authorities of the District of Columbia have not made due application in accordance with law for the retrocession of that portion of Arlington County ceded back to Virginia under the acts of July 9, 1846, and if such proceedings should be instituted the State of Virginia would have to consent to granting retrocession. Much has been said about the unconstitutionality of the retrocession act and I submit the following letter from Representative Moore."

Under date of February 20, 1930, Mr. Moore's letter reads:

"I received your message and regret to say that the document romo of the House of Representatived can not furnish me with a copy of the act to which you refer, the date of which was July 9, 1846. Replying to your further inquiry, I can tell you that the question as to the validity of the retrocession act has never been raised except in one case ("Phillips vs. United States"), many years ago, in which a property owner declined to pay taxes to the State of Virginia onu the theory that the retrogression act was unconstitutional and that he could only be compelled to pay taxes to the District of Columbia.

"But the court held that the territory was at least de facto under the jurisdiction of the State of Virginia and he must make payments to the authorities of that State. The court declined to pass on the constitutionality of the question and it has been admitted ever since that that question can not be raised without some act of Congress. Personally I have never had any doubt that the retrocession act is valid," he wrote.

"I will admit," continued Mr. Saffell, "that Congress has a perfect right to condemn the whole or any part of Arlington County for a Government reservation, in which case they will have to pay for damages assessed by a commission appointed by Congress and of the State of Virginio, but the area condemned and taken over by the United States would be a Government reservation, which no citizen could own property or have any voice or administration of affairs of that area."

"Let the advocates of the 'back to the District' movement bring proof that millions of dollars from the Federal Treasury will be diverted in improvements in the area of Arlington County receded to the District of Columbia without cost," he declared. "Let them study the difficulties that the District of Columbia have had and are now having to obtain a budget which will provide the necessary money for the internal improvements of the District itself. Let them investigate and find out how much territory in the present area of the District has neither water nor sewers."

In conclusion, Mr. Saffell said: "When the advocates of back to the District can submit unimpeachable evidence that Congress will appropriate money for the sanitary improvements such as water and sewers, and that the territory so improved will not be charged with these improvements besides the free will offering of these millions of dollars which the backers of this movement are constantly broadcasting, I think we of Arlington County will be in a position to discuss the feasibility of the movement of retrocession of Arlington County to the District of Columbia."

A modern drainage system for the Town of Ballston will be the subject to be discussed by B. M. Hedrick, supervisor from Arlington District, at the monthly meeting of the Ballston Citizens Association to be held tonight in the auditorium of the Ballston Firemen's Hall at 8 o'clock.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemens Association will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night in the Ballston Firemen's Hall.

There will be a special meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington District Library Association tonight in the library rooms at Clarendon.

Funeral services for O. L. Berger, 75 years old, a resident of Arlington County for the past fourteen years, who died at his home in Clarendon Saturday night, will be conducted from Gawlers' Undertaking parlors, Washington, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery, Washington.

Mr. Berger, who was born in Pipsize, Germany, came to America with his parents when a child, making their home in Baltimore. He came to Arlington County fourteen years ago, opening a small grocery store on Wilson boulevard, Clarendon. Besides his widow he leaves one son, O. L. Berger, jr., of Washington.

Members of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., of which he was a member, will attend the funeral in a body.

Raymond Crack, traffic officer of Arlington County, who was shot February 12 in pursuit of an alleged rumrunner, has been removed to his home in Leeway.

TWO SHOT, 920 HELD IN CHICAGO DRAGNET

HOLDUPS SHOW SLUMP

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A suspected automobile thief was probably fatally wounded, another robber is thought to have been shot, the Negro assailant of a young white woman was beaten unconscious by infuriated neighbors, and 920 persons were arrested by police over Saturday and Sunday.

Chester Dyklewski, 23, was shot by a detective when he tried to escape after having been seized with two other robbers for stealing a motor car. Police said he had a criminal record.

One of three men who held up a South Side butcher shop is thought to have been shot by Joseph Latuscewski, who rooms above the store. He said one of the men staggered and was helped away by his companions after Latuscewski fired.

The Negro, Frank Hart, 25—6 feet tall and powerfully built—seized Miss Ruth Collins, 19, as she was returning from work. She broke away and nearly reached a neighbor's house when Hart caught her and struggled with her again. Neighbors, attracted by the girl's screams, ran out and caught the Negro. An arriving detective squad found him bleeding and unconscious. They took him to jail.

As the police entered the third week of their roundup of criminals, only 14 holdups were reported, against a usual 25 to 30. Of those arrested, 269 were taken to the weekly "showup" and 225 were found to have police records. Immigration officials attended for the purpose of instituting deportation proceedings against the alien suspects.

Factory Accidents Kill 15 Virginians

January Total Increase of Four Over Figure of Month in 1929.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Fatal accidents in Virginia industrial plants during January totaled fifteen, four more than occurred during the same month in 1929, it is shown by records in the office of Frank P. Evans, statistician of the State Industrial Commission.

Last month there were 2,627 industrial accidents causing injuries to employes reported to the commission, as compared with 2,476 during the same period in 1929.

Eight hundred and two agreements were approved by the industrial commission last month by which injured employes are to receive compensation on account of accidents, as compared with 667 such agreements in January last year. In addition, the commission made 74 awards in disposing of injury cases which had been appealed because of inability to arrive at a satisfactory agreement. Awards for January last year were the same in number.

1,500 AT DANVILLE HEAR LABOR SPEECH

INDUSTRIAL SYSTEM HIT

Danville, Va., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Francis J. Gorman, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before 1,500 mill workers here this afternoon said, "We have come to bury the system called industrial democracy that has driven down the workers here."

The meeting was the first of Local 1685, organized here last week among the textile workers of Danville. Among other speakers was O. E. Woodberry, of Chicago, here in connection with the temporary organization of labor with headquarters established in a local hotel, while plans are being made for the permanent offices here.

Mr. Gorman further asserted that textile manufacturers of Danville had broken faith with President Hoover in his efforts to maintain financial stability in the industrial conference when "manufacturers promised not to lower wages, and workers in turn promised not to ask for higher wages besides those then pending.

The union unanimously approved a letter to H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the Riverside and Dan River cotton industries, replying to the recent Bulletin 192 of the factory, warning against "foreign agitatqrs here."

The union came to Danville, Mr. Gorman said, upon the request of the workers, and "if there are any strikes they will not be the fault of this organization."

Another meeting of the local will be held next week, and a meeting of women and girls, to be addressed by Matilda Lindsay, Southern representative of the Woman's Trade Union League.

75 Hospital Patients Taken on Pilgrimage

Royal Row Throws Monaco In Turmoil; Casino Suffers

Prince Louis Mobilizes Entire Army of 80 While Daughter and Prince Pierre Quarrel and Monte Carlo Patrons Go to San Remo.

Monte Carlo, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The differences between Prince Pierre, of Monaco, and his wife, Princess Charlotte, have thrown the tiny principality into a turmoil, and indirectly have resulted in the enriching of the Casino at San Remo, Italy.

Prince Louis, father-in-law of Prince Pierre, has practically declared martial law, mobilizing the entire army of 80, most of whom are captains. He has instructed the police to prevent disturbances at any cost.

The radical leader, Bonaventure, who is sometimes called the Robespierre of Monaco, has anounced he will base his campaign in the March legislative elections on the necessity for intervention by France under clause 436 of the Versailles treaty. Then he will demand the establishment of a republic.

Meanwhile, many habitues of the casino here are journeying across the frontier to San Remo, whose casino has the only other roulette game in southern Europe. The disturbances at Mone Carlo last year are reported to have caused the quadrupling of the receipts at San Remo.

RUSS GENERAL HELD ON SHIP, NOTE SAYS

HOAX THEORY SCOUTED

Paris, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A bottle containing a message signed "Koutiepoff" has been picked up by fishermen off the coast of Normandy near Port en Bessin.

The note says that the White Russian leader, Gen. Alexander Paul Koutiepoff, who was kidnaped in the heart of Paris on January 26, is a prisoner on board the Soviet cargo ship Sparzak with no hope of escape.

It is realized that the message may be a hoax, but police are investigating and the handwriting will be submitted to the wife of the general. It was learned that the Soviet ship Sparzak did actually sail from Cherbourg at about the time Koutiepoff was kidnaped.

The kidnaping of the general, who was very popular in Paris and very active in work among Russian refugees, has caused danger of a diplomatic breach with the Soviet government after charges were made that Gen. Koutiepoff was kidnaped by the G. P. U., the Soviet secret political police operating in Paris as attaches of the Soviet Embassy. It is generally believed that Gen. Koutiepoff was murdered. The Parisian press has favored a diplomatic breach and Leon Bailby, writing in L'Intransigeant calls the Soviet Ambassador and his suite, "criminals in the eyes of every true Frenchman."

Ohio Nomination Declined by Davey

Special to The Washington Post.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 23.—Announcement was made here today that former Representative Martin L. Davey, of Kent, who was the Democratic nominee for governor in 1928, is not seeking the Democratic nomination this year. Mr. Davey has been indorsed by controlling Democratic organizations in all parts of the State. He gave business reasons as the cause of his declination.

Democrats expect to begin a series of conferences here within a few days to determine who is to be favored in the primary. Former National Chairman George White, of Marietta, is an avowed candidate.

The gossip today brought forth the name of former Federal Judge John Weld Peck, of Cincinnati; former Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickerel, of Dayton, and former Congressman M. R. Denver, of Wilmington. Former Gov. Vic Donahey also was urged.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

IT is high time for some self-elected and grateful spokesman, representing the motoring public of the District of Columbia, to step forward and twine a laurel wreath about the brave and bulging brow of Officer Charles H. Schreyer, private of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Maj. Pratt, who is so ardently and optimistically campaigning to get more courtesy into, and out of his men, need look no farther than "Charlie" Schreyer if he wants to set before the boys a perfect, polished and peregrinating model of genial and engaging politeness.

Instructed and inspired by Schreyer, our stalwart protectors should realize the possibility of displaying an entrancing smile and doing a Chesterfieldian bow while making the trusty old war club sound a reverberant and convincing rat-tat-a-tat on the ivory and unyielding dome of the most abandoned thug.

* * * *

SCHREYER is the man with whom you first come in contact when a stern and unrelenting destiny takes you to the Traffic Bureau on such business, sinister or otherwise, as has to be transacted by motorists seeking drivers' permits or taking any of the devious, inscrutable and perplexing steps necessary to keep law-abiding and riding citizens out of trouble, embarrassment and jail.

And he is always polite. He is invariably, smilingly and obligingly polite. No matter how fast the questioners, supplicants and objectors come upon him, he meets them with a smile and disarms them with a pleasant word.

It was amazing to see how this irate person, who was all balled up over a road test, took on at least some semblance of calmness under the magic warmth of Schreyer's unfailing courtesy which, impenetrable as a coat of armor, was undented by the flashing thrusts of her darting, deft and acidulous tongue.

* * * *

HAVING noted with profound appreciation sundry manifestations of the Schreyer politeness and tact, we then went against the type of policeman who entertains the idea that, to be an ideal officer, a man must growl like a lion, and, by a series of insolent and uncouth tones, mark himself down as a roughneck and bundle of poorly suppressed bullying instincts.

There was a liberal education in the contrast between him and the affable and diplomatic Mr. Schreyer.

* * * *

WHEN we saw him a day or so ago, he was in the admirable act of turning loose the soothing efficacy of his 40-horsepower smile upon a female apparition with a face like a threat of everlasting torment and a voice that was a cross between a soprano malediction and a staccato hysteric attack in which harsh ensemble were mingled, with subtle and torturing dissonance, all the nerve-jangling overtones of a keg of nails being roughly poured out on a steeply slanting tin roof.

Boy, 13, Confesses Killing His Chum

Shooting After Robbery Was Accidental, Small Boy Tells Police.

Jersey City, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—John Sidor, 13 years old, the alibi to which he clung all the afternoon gone after persistent questioning by police, tonight confessed he shot and killed his chum, Stanley Ryblewski, 16 years old, after the pair had staged a petty robbery at the home here of Stanley's uncle, John Torrancz.

The shooting was accidental, Sidor maintained. They had gone down cellar to open the toy cash register bank which was part of their loot, and while Stanley hacked at it with an ax they found in the cellar John fooled around with the .25-Caliber Mondial automatic which they had also stolen. He had removed three of the bullets from the weapon, he said, and supposed it was empty.

Pointing it at his chum's head in fun, pretending he was a policeman trying to stop him, he pulled the trigger, and Stanley crumpled up on the floor with a bullet in the top of his head. The three undischarged bullets were later found near the body.

Physicians Report Taft In Unchanged Condition

(Associated Press.)

The condition of William Howard Taft was reported yesterday by his physicians as unchanged after a comfortable night.

The bulletin, issued through the White House, as are all official communications regarding the condition of the former President and Chief Justice, was signed by Dr. Francis R. Hagner and Dr. Thomas A. Claytor.

PARIS NEWS CHEERS NAVY DELEGATIONS

Expected Confidence Vote for Chautemps Gives Hope of London Action.

LADY ASTOR IS SPEAKER

leader in the House of Lords, in a political meeting gave what may be considered the official view in England of the conference situation.

Not Exciting, She Says.

Speaking to her transatlantic audience in the United States, Lady Astor admitted that the London conference was not exciting.

"I speak as a woman who feels that peace is worth months and months of the dullest conference—even years," she said.

She appealed to women voters in America to use their influence for peace and disarmament, declaring that there was one fact every nation had to face. "If there is another war everybody will be in it whether they want to or not. There were very few neutrals by the end of the last war, and the next war, if it comes, will be ten times more fierce and savage than the late war."

Congratulating the United States on its delegates to the naval conference, Lady Astor said:

Made Good Impression.

"They have made an amazingly good impression. I have met them, one and all, often, and I have nothing to complain about. And remember this: For eleven years I have gone among men, public men, so I am like the old lady, I am a little choosey about the gentlemen.

"Your delegates, the American delegates, are tackling their jobs in the right spirit; they are showing a good Yankee spirit. They are not talking too much, but they seem to know what they want and feel pretty certain that in the long run they will get it. I hope and expect they will succeed."

Continuing, she held that "one of the dangers of the disarmament conference" was that "we start discussing implements of war."

Nations Want Peace.

"Before we know where we are," she asserted, "we are arguing about guns to kill the other fellow when war comes, and we seem to forget entirely that we renounced war, that is, as an instrument of national policy.

"Yet I am perfectly certain, in spite of this conference talk, that every delegate at the conference, and the countries they represent, fundamentally want peace; only a madman or a mad country would want war."

She said that conferences such as those at London take "time and infinite patience, and above all, persistent good will."

Speaking at a meeting in Finsbury Town Hall, Lord Parmoor said that if there was one man in the world who really sympathized with the policy of disarmament, he believed it was President Hoover.

Sees U. S. and Britain Together.

He expressed the belief that the effect of Prime Minister MacDonald's going to the United States was, and would remain, that the two great Anglo-Saxon peoples never again would contemplate war with each other, but always would be on the same side pressing forward toward world peace.

As to the progress of the negotiations in London, Lord Parmoor said "No doubt patience will be required. I don't suppose anyone expects to get all he wants in the first instance, but there has been a very substantial advance not only in the way the conference has been conducted but in the way it has been received in such a country as ours."

French Premier Prepares His Statement of Policy

Paris, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Assisted by a few chosen advisers, Camille Chautemps, France's new premier, spent the entire day today drawing up his government's statement of policy for presentation to the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday. He will meet his first test of strength then.

The declaration will be submitted for approval to a council of the new ministers at 9:30 a. m., Tuesday, and will be read by the premier himself in the chamber at 3 p. m.

According to persons close to the new Radical-Socialist leader of the French government, the declaration deals with five principal points in internal and foreign policy.

The budget is the first item under the heading or internal policy, old-age pensions the second, a broad project of amnesty for political offenses the third, and the improvement of the national service in transports and communications the fourth. The fifth item, under the heading of foreign policy, is a lengthy chapter reviewing the work of The Hague reparations conference and the Young plan, and the situation at the London Naval Conference.

The consensus among friends and foes alike of the Chautemps cabinet is that the policy of France at the naval conference will not be changed.

CRAMTON PARK BILL HARMONY IS LAUDED

Representative Says U. S. and Maryland Authorities Agree Completely.

CHANGES ARE EXPLAINED

Declaring that an entire harmony of viewpoint is found to exist with reference to his bill for acquisition of park areas in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties for administration and development of the Rock Creek and Anacostia Park extensions, Representative Louis C. Cramton (Republican), Michigan, announced yesterday that complete agreement has been reached in the matter between Federal and Maryland authorities.

"At the time my bill was originally drafted," he said, "the Maryland Park and Planning Commission was not in existence. With the creation of the commission and the formulation of its highly interesting and important plans, the situation has developed materially.

"Because of such development, some changes in the structure of my bill now seem desirable. Such changes do not affect the fundamental purposes of the bill, but rather have to do with questions of method and procedure. In informal conferences, we have been able to agree entirely as to the amendments desired.

"These amendments would place the title to lands acquired in the State of Maryland and make entirely definite the control of the Maryland Park and Planning Commission over their development and administration, in accordance with plans approved by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

"The amendments proposed also put the Federal contribution in a form that will greatly facilitate the work of the Maryland commission acquiring the areas desired. The bill is now pending before the Senate committee of the District of Columbia and, of course, the decision as to what amendments shall be made, if any, to the bill, rests with that committee in the Senate. I feel very hopeful that these amendments will meet with the approval of the Senate committee when opportunity is given for presentation to them."

Dreyfus Verdict Expected Today

Grand Jury Will Subscribe to Accident Theory, Is Belief.

A verdict by the grand jury after its investigation of the death last October 20 of Mrs. Aurelia Fischer Dreyfus, beautiful young divorcee, who fell or was pushed from a balcony at the conclusion of a dance at the Potomac Boat Club, is expected today.

That the jury will substantiate the finding of the coroner's jury which decided Mrs. Dreyfus came to her death accidentally, is the expectation of those who are familiar with the case.

Affidavits submitted to District Attorney Leo A. Rover by members of Mrs. Dreyfus' family purported to show that the girl may have been "removed" because of a fear that she might "talk" about the murder of Dot King, Broadway entertainer who was slain in her New York apartment in 1923.

According to her family, Mrs. Dreyfus is said to have told her mother and sisters later that she was forced by Edmund J. McBrien, New York broker, to swear falsely to an alibi for Albert E. Guimares, McBrien's roommate whose relations with the King girl were under police investigation. McBrien escorted Mrs. Dreyfus to the dance which terminated in her death.

$2,000 Bond Required In Rum-Charge Case

Walter McEachern, 29 years old, occupant of an O street apartment near Twenty-first street northwest, where an alleged shooting affray early Wednesday reulated in the suspension of Third Precinct Policeman Ray S. Miller, was arrested in the same neighborhood yesterday morning on charges of transportation and possession of one gill of liquor and one-half gallon of alcohol.

McEachern was taken in custody by Third Precinct Policeman J. F. Phelps and released on $2,000 bond. Announcement was made Saturday that Policeman Miller will be sent before a Police Trial Board to answer charges made by four young women that he fired bullets into their rooms from an adjoining apartment.

Rockefeller Foundation Official Is Appointed

Herman A. Spoehr has been appointed director of the Rockefeller Foundation's work in natural sciences, filling the vacancy caused by the election of Max Mason to the presidency of the foundation. Mr. Spoehr will assume his new duties on September 1.

Since 1910 he has been a member of the staff of the laboratory of plant physiology of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, and since 1926 assistant director of the coastal laboratory of that institution. During the summer of 1924 he served as acting professor of chmeistry at Stanford University.

Stone Mountain Holds Radium, Professor Says

Decatur, Ga., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A quantity of radium lies locked in the granite of Stone Mountain, according to a report made public here by Prof. James A. Hootman, of the physics department of Emory University.

Prof. Hootman's revelation is the result of extended investigation of nine springs originating in the mountain. These spring, his tests show, contain 35,040 curies of radioactivity as compared with 16-500 curies in the famous Joachimstahl Spring in Germany, which had its headwaters in the Pitchblend mine from which a large amount of the world's radium has been obtained.

NEW YORK PULPITS RAP SOVIET POLICY

Preachers Start Prelude to to Concerted Protest on "Persecution."

TRACTS SENT TO RUSSIA

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The religious policy of Soviet Russia, termed "persecution" by Christian and Jewish leaders of Europe and the United States, today was attacked from the pulpits of various churches and synagogues in New York as a prelude to the concerted protest which will begin in earnset three weeks hence.

Despite the designation of March 16 by heads of several denominations as the date for universal prayers for cessation of antireligious activities in Russia, many pastors and rabbis made the subject the theme of their sermons today.

March 16 has been set aside by Pope Pius, the Archbishops of York and Canterbury, heads of the Episcopal Church in England; Bishop William T. Manning, of the Episcopal Diocese of New York; Archbishop Platon, Metropolitan of the Russian Orthodox Church in America, and other religious leaders. The New York Federation of Churches also has selected the day for prayer and protest. March 2 is the day set by the United Lutheran Church for concerted prayer and protest.

The American Tract Society announced today it was furnishing tracts, in Russian, to counteract the movement of the Soviet authorities to make Russia a "godless country." The organization said it had distributed 12,000 tracts in Russia already and was sending 24,000 more to its missionaries, "who are carrying on their work in spite of the drastic restrictions of the authorities."

The society refused to reveal the locations of the missionaries on the grounds that there is "danger to those who are risking their lives to get the gospel."

Berlin, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A big mass meeting of the Protestant churches, attended by the former crown prince and other members of the Hohenzollern family, today appealed to all the Christian world to protest against "Christian persecution and religious oppression in Russia."

The principal speaker was Dr. Boahrina, former court chaplain of the former kaiser. He asked all Christian nations jointly to put a stop to "the present murders in Russia, and to liberate the Russian people from their Bolshevik oppressors."

A Russian bishop and 40 Russian priests were present.

E. Borah to Representative Samuel Dickstein, of New York, to inquire from Moscow for official information as to the fate of the fourteen leaders of the Minsk Jewish community, allegedly sentenced to death.

In a denial circulated here today through Tass, the official government news agency, the story of the execution of the rabbis is termed a "deliberate lie." The denial adds that "similar information emanating from Warsaw is false and part of the ring in the present anti-Soviet campaign abroad."

Invalid in Wheel Chair And Sister Hit by Auto

Two sisters, one an invalid, were injured last night when an automobile struck them as they were crossing K street at Third street northeast. Catherine Sweeney, 42 years old, of 47 K street northeast, was wheeling her sister, Julia, Sweeney, in an invalid's chair, when the accident occurred.

Catherine Sweeney tried to push the wheel chair clear of the automobile but was unsuccessful. Both were taken to the Providence Hospital by John McDonald, 49 years old, of 409 Massachusetts avenue northwest, the driver of the machine. Julia Sweeney received a broken leg and lacerations of the body. Her sister was treated for laceration of the head.

148 Patients Saved as Fire Sweeps Floor of Hospital

Calm Valor of Nuns and Nurses at New York Institution Averts All Panic While Mothers and Babies are Carried Out.

Providence, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—One hundred and-forty-eight patients were rescued this morning from a fire that swept the top floor of the five-story St. Joseph's Hospital in this city. The nurses, nuns, interns, citizens, members of the clergy helped police and firemen make the rescues and carry the bedridden patients to other hospitals, Catholic institutions, private homes and nearby business establishments.

The calm valor of the nuns and nurses averted all semblance of panic. Mother Superior Plautilla directed the removal of the stricken. She ordered the maternity ward and nursery cleared first, believing that with mothers and babies out of the building there would be less chance for alarm among the other patients.

Fourteen mothers and babies were taken from this ward and nursery. One of the infants, a boy, the yet unnamed son of Joseph and Amelia Amaral, was born after the fire had started and before it was discovered. Scarcely an hour old, he was taken out with the other babies. Tonight neither he nor his mother seem to be the worse for their experience.

The blaze was discovered shortly after 6 o'clock by Evelyn Welch, a student nurse on switchboard duty. She telephoned fire headquarters. The flames in the waste chute running from basement to top floor mushroomed under a slate roof and soon converted the top floor into a roaring furnace. Their cause has not been determined.

Once the flames were discovered nuns and nurses on duty on the top floors began taking out mothers and babies. Working diligently, they carried the babies out in nursery trays and the mothers—such of them as could not walk—on mattresses. Others were helped to the elevator. All were taken to the nurses' home across the street.

NOTED SCREEN STAR DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Tuberculosis Claims Life of Mabel Normand; Was Ill Since 1928.

WAS CONSCIOUS TO LAST

ing. Her general condition, however, weakened by the long fight for health, failed under last night's attack.

Famed as a comedienne, whose comedy roles in her many films won her wide acclaim, Miss Normand's private life threw her hoydenish screen tactics into sharp contrast.

A "tomboy" of the films, in private life she became involved in perhaps more sensational "mixups" than any other member of the southern California motion-picture colony. Nearly all occurred when she was in the heydey of her career as a comedienne whose fame was world-wide.

The baffling murder of William Desmond Taylor, famous motion-picture director and former British army officer, in Hollywood February, 1922, was the first of the affairs to which her name was linked. Taylor's body was found Thursday morning, February 2, in the living room of his lavishly furnished court bungalow, where he had been shot to death. Investigations by police disclosed that Miss Normand had visited the director the previous evening between 7 and 7:45 o'clock. Taken by officers to Taylor's bungalow, she reenacted the scenes which transpired during her last visit. She was questioned closely by the officers, but no clue as to the murderer's identity ever was discovered.

On New Year's night, 1923, she again was linked with a shooting, that of Courtland S. Dines, Denver (Colo.) broker, by her chauffeur, Horace Greer, in Los Angeles. Edna Purviance, another actress, and Miss Normand were present in Dines' apartment when the shooting occurred. Greer said he had come to take his employer home and that Dines attempted to assault him. Dines recovered.

Named in Divorce Action.

Ten months later her name, together with two others, was again emblazoned across the front pages of the newspapers. This time it was brought into the divorce complaint of Mrs. Georgia W. Church against her millionaire husband, Norman W. Church. Miss Normand filed a libel complaint seeking $500,000 for alleged damaging allegations made by the estranged millionaire's wife in her suit. Mrs. Church later withdrew the divorce complaint in which the film comedienne was named.

On September 18, 1928, Miss Normand created a somewhat milder sensation, slipping away with Lew Cody, screen actor, to Ventura, Calif., where they were married by a justice of the peace at 3 o'clock in the morning. They returned to Hollywood, where they maintained separate establishments for a time, but coming to the conclusion that "two can live together more cheaply than apart," Cody moved into his wife's home and placed a "For Sale" sign on his own. Her marriage to Cody was Miss Normand's first.

Virtually all of Miss Normand's motion picture career was centered in comedy. She entered pictures in New York in 1910, working with Vitagraph and Biograph. Coming to California she made a "hit" in the slapstick productions of Mack Sennett. In many of these Keystone short comedies she appeared with Charles Spencer Chaplin, using her own name "Mabel" as a character name.

"Mickey" First Feature Role.

Her first big feature was "Mickey" in which Cody played the heavy. It was released in the season of 1918. The actress subsequently signed up with Samuel Goldwyn Corporation, for which she made several pictures. Later she returned to the Sennett banner.

Mabel Normand was born November 10, 1894, at Boston, Mass., of humble parentage. She received her education in St. Mary's Convent at Northwest Port, in her native State. At the age of 14 she became a model for artists and illustrators.

In February, 1927, Miss Normand became so ill at a hospital at Santa Monica that for a time friends despaired for her life. She suffered from pneumonia and an abscessed lung. Due to the fact that no visitors were permitted to enter her room and with her physicians giving out only brief bulletins, many reports of her death were current at various times.

Illness Is Fatal To Samuel Thrift

Traction Firm Superintendent Dies After Living Here for 50 Years.

Samuel Thrift, 65 years old, died yesterday following a prolonged illness at his home, 1218 Thirty-third street northwest. A resident of Washington for 50 years, Mr. Thrift was widely known in the District and in Virginia. He was ninth division superintendent of the Capital Traction Co. when he died and had been in the firm's employ for 30 years.

Surviving are four sons: Clifton, Leonard, who is superintendent of W. B. Moses & Sons; Melvin and Chester, who are employed in the House of Representatives press gallery.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning at the residence, after which the body will be taken to Leesburg, Va., for burial. Mr. Thrift was a native of Leesburg.

Thieves Enter Store; Gets $90 in Hidden Sack

Hidden in a potato sack of a Piggly Wiggly store at 2742 Fourteenth street northwest, $90 in cash was stolen by thieves who entered the store through a skylight Sunday night, according to a report given police yesterday by Bruce Martin, of 1361 Euclid street northwest, manager of the store.

Mr. Martin told police that he had concealed the cash in the potato sack as a precaution against a possible invasion by robbers. The fact that no other part of the store was tampered with leads police to believe that the theft was perpetrated by persons who knew where the money had been hidden.

Short Circuit Blamed For $40 Blaze in Cafe

Fire, believed to have started in a cooling apparatus, caused about $40 worth of damage at the Olmstead Grill at 1336 O street northwest, about 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

The motor in which the fire is thought to have originated, is situated on the roof of the grill. The apparatus is not used during the winter. A short circuit is believed to have started the blaze.

Levy, Falk Harmel, Mrs. Charles Pilzer, Isadore Freund, Mrs. Henry Oxenberg. Mr. Wilner is president of the congregation.

Woman Phones for Help And Police Find Liquor

A frantic telephone call early yesterday afternoon to Third Precinct police from an unidentified woman in a Newport place apartment, near Twenty-first street northwest, that "a man here is threatening to shoot me" sent Policeman J. Rosenberg to the scene.

He reported finding 228 quarts of liquor in the rooms. He also seized a revolver found there, but was unable to locate any occupants.

English Lady, Once Visitor Here, Is Wed

Lady Doria Hope, daughter of the Duke of Newcastle, who worked as a shopgirl in New York not long ago, was married Saturday afternoon to Mr. Frederick B. Childe in Christ Church, Mayfair, London. At the hour announced for the wedding the guests found the church doors locked. They had not been notified that the time for the ceremony had been put off for half an hour. There was nothing for the fashionable crowd to do but wait in the street.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The best man was Mr. John Holcroft, former president of the Cambridge Boat Club. There were no bridesmaids.

Lady Doria's father in 1893 inherited the famous Hope diamond, which brought the family a good deal of unsought publicity. It had once belonged to Marie Antoinette, and tragedy pursued its various owners. The duke succeeded to his title when his brother died several years ago. He is supposed to have shaken off the curse of the blue diamond when he sold it in 1902.

Mr. Childe is a Cambridge graduate and a member of a well-known Shropshire family.

About a year ago when Lady Doria was visiting in this country she came to Washington to pass some time as the guest of Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke With Mrs. Brooke's daughter, Mrs. Charles Parker Stone, the former "Frankie" McKee, Lady Doria saw a great deal of Washington's younger social set and made many friends here.

The engagement of Miss Alice Louise Edson, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Romanzo Edson, to Mr. Dickinson C. Duffield, son of Mr. Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., has been announced in Newark, N. J.

Miss Edson has made her home in Washington and in Europe. She attended Miss Madeira's School here and later Bryn Mawr College.

Mr. Duffield, who is employed by the Travelers Insurance Co. in Hartford, Conn., is a graduate of Princeton, 1925. The wedding will take place in June.

Another wedding of interest to Washington was that on Saturday of the American Vice Consul to Berlin, Mr. Augustus Sabin Chase, to Fraulein Helga von Erdberg, which took place in the Lutheran Church at Koengsberg. The romance began in the Berlin Consulate, where the bride was employed. After a short wedding trip in France the couple will come to Washington.

Mr. Chase, who was formerly an attache of the American Legation in Peking, is the son of Frederick S. Chase, president of the Chase Companies of Waterbury, Conn.

Revival of Comedy Attracts Attention.

The revival of the comedy of 100 years ago, "The Honey-Moon," Friday and Saturday nights, at McKinley Auditorium, by the Community Drama Guild of Washington, is attracting considerable interest and keen anticipation among drama lovers in the city, many of whom are making reservations for one or the other nights of the play, which is being given by an all-Washington cast of players.

Among those who have taken tickets are Mrs. Thomas Montague Clark, Mrs. Nina Allender, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Davis, Mrs. Frederick Fairfax Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Lyman Kebler, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Prof. John Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. Denis E. Connell, Miss Helen S. Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Cuno H. Rudolph, Mrs. Henry W. Seymour, Mrs. Thomas W. Sidwell, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. Harrison Stidham, Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Willard and Mrs. W. W. Wirgman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Brenan, of Lyndhurst, N. J., are guests at the Willard for several days.

Famed Drama Critic to Give Lecture Today

Alexander Woollcott to Speak Under Auspices of Junior League.

Alexander Woollcott, famous dramatic critic and author of note, is a guest at the Willard, having come to lecture this afternoon under the auspices of the Junior League of Washington in the small ballroom of the Willard at 4:30 o'clock.

Mr. Woollcott will talk on the "Confessions of a Dying Newspaper Man," a subject which promises to be anything but doleful. This "gentleman of the press," one of the most clever and widely read columnists, was booked for this talk by Mrs. Harry Lee Rust, jr., chairman of the arts and interests committee of the league, as the second in the series of eight lectures given on successive Monday afternoons at the Willard for the benefit of the league's hospital fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Dudley, of Buffalo, arrived at the Willard by motor from Miami late yesterday and will be in town for a brief visit before going on to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Trimble, who have been passing some time in Palm Beach, Miami and St. Petersburg, are now in Tampa, where they will remain for several weeks.

The fourth Army dance will be held at the Willard on Friday evening, March 7.

Mr. John Philp to Talk At Texas Group Meeting.

Mr. John W. R. Philp, formerly postmaster at Dallas, Tex., and now Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, will give a short talk on Texas prior to the dancing at the meeting of the Texas State Society on Tuesday evening, March 4, at 8:30 o'clock, at the City Club, 1320 G street northwest. There will be a brief musical program.

Mrs. T. L. Edmiston, hostess of the club, will be assisted by Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Representative and Mrs. Morgan G. Sanders, Mrs. Clay Stone Briggs, Mrs. William C. Harlee, Mrs. Wright Patman, Mrs. J. L. Aston, Miss Margaret Black, Miss Louise Williams, Miss Beryle Edmiston, Miss Clara Sterzing, Miss Alla Clary, Representative R. Q. Lee, Gen. Kenzie W. Walker, Mr. Victor Russell, Mr. Arthur C. Perry and Mr. Jack B. Neathery.

Miss Louise Alice Williams, of Atlanta, will give the second of her series of Southern recitals of cabin stories and plantation songs in the old Negro dialect at the Wardman Park Hotel Theater on Monday, March 10, at 9 o'clock. The patrons for this event will be members of diplomatic, congressional and residential society. Miss Williams will also read old love songs to the accompaniments of the harpist, Mrs. Edythe Marmion Broslus, who also will play harp solos.

The Women's Home Club of North Beach will hold its tenth annual dance and card party at the Arlington Hotel on Friday evening. The chairmen of the committees are: Executive, Mrs. C. E. Cassasa; patronesses, Mrs. S. M. Tucker; Cards, Mrs. Eugene McDowell; decorations, Mrs. W. L. Redrow; publicity, Miss E. De Neale.

The Woodmont Country Club entertained with a dance last night in celebration of Washington's birthday

The Sisterhood of Adah Israel Congregation will entertain with a dance at the Mayflower Hotel early in March.

The Olam Club will entertain with a dance this evening in the gold room of the Hamilton Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Morrow will entertain the following guests Tuesday evening at the costume ball of the Kentucky Society at the Mayflower Hotel: Col. and Mrs. C. H. Morrow, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Horgan, Maj. and Mrs. Guy W. Chipman, Mr. Charles Robert Morrow and Miss Helen Clifford.

Miss Janet Richards, at her weekly lecture this morning on "Political History in the Making," will review and attempt to clarify several of the political puzzles of the hour, including the suggestion of the United States delegation at the London naval conference to put teeth into the Kellogg "Peace Pact" by the so-called "implementation" of the pact, and the alleged objection thereto by Senators Borah and Swanson, and even by the President. The embarrassing delay in London, due to the French cabinet crisis and other political puzzles nearer home, also the "left-overs" from last week, will be considered. Large maps are used to help clarify the subjects under discussion. The talk will be given in the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth street and New York avenue, at 10:45 o'clock.

Women's Guild Concert Location Is Changed

The concert to be presented by the Women's Guild of the Central Union Mission Friday night will be held at Constitution Hall instead of the Willard Hotel as previously reported, it was announced yesterday.

James Melton, tenor, of radio note, will be principal soloist. He will be assisted by the Cappella Chorus. Proceeds of the concert will be used to supplement regular work of the mission.

Howard U. President Makes Radio Address

Dr. Mordecal W. Johnson, president of Howard University, made a radio address on the subject, "Religion and the Modern World," as a speaker yesterday afternoon in the all-university religious convocation in progress at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

He was introduced by Dr. Glenn Frank, president of that university. Today he will lead discussion of one of the groups and will be the dinner guest of the Liberal Club of the institution.

A.P. MOORE SERVICES HELD IN PITTSBURGH

Hoover Floral Tribute Among 1,200 About Bier of Envoy to Poland.

THOUSANDS SEE RITES

Pittsburgh, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Friends, many of high place, gathered from far and near today for the last rites in memory of Alexander Pollock Moore, Ambassador to Poland and former envoy to Spain and Peru, who died last Monday in California.

The services, held at a funeral home, were marked by simplicity and were in charge of the Rev. Edward S. Travers, of St. Louis, former rector of Trinity Cathedral, Pittsburgh.

Nearly 500 persons crowded the chapel, while several thousand stood outside and even a larger crowd appeared at the place of interment.

Referring to the diplomat throughout his sermon an "Alex," the minister spoke of his courage, ideals and service in foreign lands as "a great representative of our country."

"Alex overcame many things," said Dr. Travers. "He lived an overcoming, victorious life because he was a deeply religious man—far more religious than he knew. He was a friend—a real friend, such a friend as only a deeply religious man can be."

Twelve hundred floral tributes were arranged about the bier, the offerings of President Hoover, from foreign governments, from friends and relatives, from a newsboys' organization, and former employes of the Pittsburgh Leader, which Mr. Moore published almost a decade ago.

Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aid to President Hoover, represented the Chief Executive at the funeral. First Secretary Victor Podski of the Polish Ministry at Washington represented the country to which the late ambassador was credited at the time of his death. Joseph F. Corriols, Spanish vice consul here, represented the King of Spain, a warm friend of Ambassador Moore during his service in that country.

Honorary pallbearers included Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, Assistant Secretary of Labor Robe Carl White, Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania; Judge Robert A. Frazer, of the State Supreme Court; five members of the Allegheny County congressional delegation and various Pittsburgh city and Allegheny County officials.

Interment was made in Allegheny Cemetery, in a mausoleum where reposes the body of Lillian Russell Moore, actress wife of the diplomat.

Dog Attacks Two In Gambling Raid

George Washington, jr., a 15-pound terrier, pulled the wrong kind of bone during a belated celebration of his illustrious namesake's birthday early yesterday.

The bone was in the right leg of Policeman J. C. Baum, of the Eighth Precinct. The policeman was trying to determine what the terrier was doing at an alleged gambling party on Georgia avenue between Howard place and Clifton street, when the canine bit him above the ankle. Not satisfied with this bone, the dog bit the right leg of Jennie Boone, colored, who was in the room.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Neither skill, actual or assumed, nor the fact that he believes no other vehicle to be in the vicinity, nor anything else, excuses the driver who fails to give a hand signal when about to change his direction of travel.

The traffic regulations specify that when a motor vehicle operator is about to turn right or left or stop he must extend his left arm straight out from the side of the car as a signal to other traffic. In the interest of simplification and uniformity, the one signal has been employed for all maneuvers. The driver must give it.

Example: A driver is proceeding along close to the curb at a slow pace. He assumes that his intention to stop is conveyed by the proximity of the car to the curb, so he gives no signal. He has violated the law.

Ten Men Killed By Boiler Blast

Four Are Seriously Hurt in Explosion Which Wrecks Havana Building.

Havana, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Ten workmen in the Palatino pumping plant of Havana were killed early today by the explosion of a giant boiler. Four others were seriously injured.

The explosion, occurring in one of three great boilers, completely wrecked the pumping building, where 80 men were working. The district was heavily shaken and windows of houses within a radius of ten blocks were shattered. The water supply for a section of the city had to be cut off.

The damage is estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000. A fire that started shortly after the explosion, was quickly checked. Police mounted guard at the pumping plant while workmen searched the ruins for other bodies.

Indian Visiting Zoo Is Robbed of $100

James Garfield, a 53-year-old Osage Indian, of Montana, was robbed of $100 yesterday morning while in the lion house at the Zoo. Garfield said that three years ago while in Washington he was robbde of a similar amount while in the Zoo.

Garfield told police that, while watching the lions, he chatted with a stranger. He gave police a description of this man. Garfield is a personal friend of Vice President Curtis, he said, and is in Washington to appear before the Indian affairs committee in regard to oil property in which he is interested in Montana.

Garfield said that the next time he comes to Washington he will not go near the Zoo.

Today . . . to the new city rising on the Potomac

POSTAL TELEGRAPH brings a new type of Telegraph Office

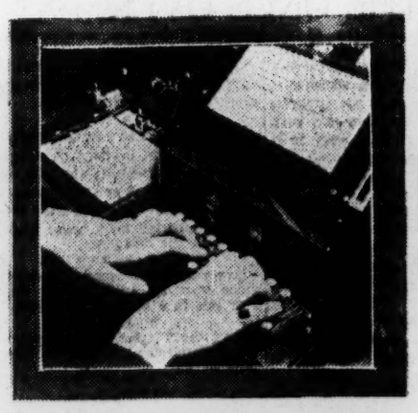
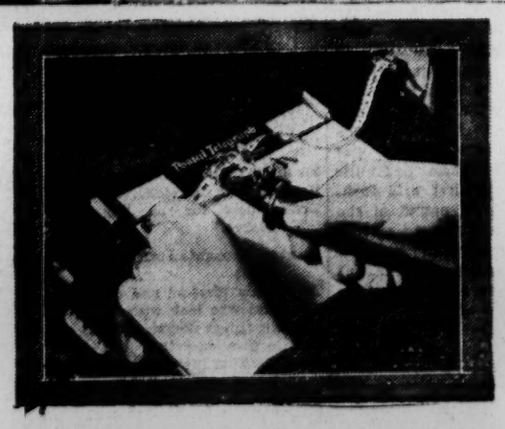
BATTERY of Typing Telegraph machines—in Postal Telegraph's new operating department . . . they receive messages automatically, cut delivery and sending time. Daily they flash the story of busy, progressive Washington to every part of the world (right).



ANYONE who can operate a typewriter can send telegrams with this Typing Telegraph. Over it, from your own office you can transmit messages all over the world via the International System.



PASTING ON the incoming message (right). New design of paster device cuts time for this operation from 50 seconds to 8. The paper ribbon bears the typed message.

TODAY Washington is literally being recreated. Congress within the past three years has appropriated more than $75,000,000 for its development. When the magnificent new government building group being erected on the famous Triangle is completed, Washington will be the most beautiful capital in the world.

And, in keeping with this new city rising on the Potomac, Postal Telegraph today opens a new type of telegraph office . . . Not only enlarged operating facilities to speed the Capital's business and social messages, but comfort and conveniences which strike a new note in telegraph office equipment.

You are cordially invited to visit this new modern telegraph office at New York Avenue and 15th Street—and to use it not only for writing and sending telegrams, but also for meeting friends.

All this is part of the comprehensive Postal Telegraph program to improve the telegraph service for the people of the United States.

Turn a key on a Postal call-box—and an alert Postal messenger responds to take your message or to run errands. Or just call for "Postal" over the telephone and give your message to the operator. Any of the conveniently located Postal Telegraph offices in Washington is ready to serve you.

As part of the International System—the largest American-owned system of international communications in the world—Postal Telegraph reaches 70,000 points in the United States . . . 8,000 points in Canada.

Over Commercial Cables and All America Cables your message races across the Atlantic and Pacific . . . to Europe, Asia, the Orient and the nations of Central and South America. And Mackay Radio provides a lightning link between ship and shore.

Markets of the world—homes of the world . . . are at the tips of every Postal operator's fingers . . . at Washington's swift command. Use Postal Telegraph on your next telegram. Swift—courteous—accurate.

MR. HOOVER'S FIRST YEAR.

As Mr. Hoover completes his first year as President there is a disposition to use the year's record and the present situation as a yardstick with which to measure his whole administration and the prospect of a second term.

No more misleading yardstick could be devised. The year's events and the present situation give no indication whatever of what is to be. The tariff controversy is regarded in some quarters as damaging to Mr. Hoover. But there is no proof that he has lost ground with the people on this account. Public criticism is directed against Congress, and particularly the Senate, rather than against Mr. Hoover.

But it is too early to form a judgment on the political consequences of the tariff controversy. A bill may emerge that will be acceptable to the President and the people. There are signs of a spirit of compromise in both the House and Senate. Members of the coalition have warned their fellows that they must not go too far. The attempt to put a duty upon bread marked the extreme limit of the most fanatical coalitionists, and it was defeated with the help of the coalition itself.

Similarly, the most rapacious of those who would take advantage of tariff revision to impose unnecessary rates have been beaten, largely by the votes of devoted adherents of protection. So there is a tendency to shape a bill that will protect agriculture and such industries as are suffering from deadly foreign competition. If such a bill should be enacted, the next three years of the Hoover administration may witness increased prosperity and public satisfaction with economic conditions.

The opinion is expressed that President Hoover will be held accountable for the depression following the Wall street crash; not that he deserves any blame, but merely because the misfortune came during his administration. But the depression is passing, thanks largely to his prompt and skillful mobilization of the country's industrial, financial, agricultural and labor leadership. With a satisfactory tariff and renewed prosperity, the stress of 1929 will become only a memory, having no effect whatever upon the political situation in 1932.

The public is vastly agitated over the prohibition question, and politicians are trying to make capital out of discontent. Some of them are hopeful that the Hoover administration will be wrecked on this "issue." But, however vexing this question may be, it is impossible to make it an issue between parties, and no one can demonstrate that the people are dissatisfied with Mr. Hoover's attitude on this subject.

There is no indication that the question of his renomination for a second term will be settled by the people's attitude upon the liquor problem.

Foreign relations in times of peace are usually of secondary importance as affecting the public estimation of a President. The desire of Mr. Hoover to bring about a reduction in naval armament and naval expenses is approved. If the outcome of the London conference should be disappointing the public will in all probability perceive that the excessive demands of foreign powers prevented the desired agreement. A breakdown at London would probably give rise to a demand for a navy adequate to American requirements, without regard to foreign programs; and if Mr. Hoover should thereupon advocate such a Navy the net result of the diplomatic skirmish would be beneficial to him.

One year is not enough time in which to pass judgment upon a President. Mr. Hoover is not an opportunist who seeks to take advantage of every passing incident to curry favor with the superficial. He plans far ahead, and is thorough and patient. Those citizens who mistake the transient for the permanent, and who impatiently demand instant reforms, may have formed snap judgment against Mr. Hoover; but the great body of level-headed Americans supports him, relies upon his steadfastness, and will not handicap him by fretful criticism.

BETTER FIRE AND POLICE PAY.

The Senate District committee has under consideration the police-fireman pay raise bill, which was reported favorably by the House District committee some days ago. A favorable report by the Senate committee is anticipated. The pay scale obtaining for the local uniformed forces is so inadequate, both as a living wage as well as in comparison with the rate obtaining in other cities, that there can be no valid opposition to an increase.

New York City police and firemen have been better paid than the Washington force. Last autumn, however, the people of New York, in a special referendum, granted them increases in pay. When the city budget was made up the first of the year an appropriation for the increase was inadvertently omitted, and the budget was approved by the State Legislature before the omission was discovered. This week the Legislature, by unanimous vote of both houses, passed a bill permitting New York City to reopen its budget to include an appropriation for the increases. The people of New York, by voting the increases in a referendum, and the State Legislature, by making it possible to reopen the municipal budget, express the public desire to compensate police and firemen adequately.

It is asserted by a handful of opponents to the local proposal that liberalization will result in increased taxes. No evidence to this effect has been produced. The cost of increasing the schedules doubtless would be absorbed in the budget. But if not, Congress should meet the extra charge by contributing a larger share to the cost of District government. The local police and fire forces serve the Federal Government as well as the District. With many additional millions of dollars' worth of buildings to be patrolled and protected, the Federal Government should abandon its shameful attempt to compel local taxpayers to finance the national needs.

COL. DONOVAN'S PLAN.

Several months ago the Department of Justice announced that it would discontinue the practice of rendering advisory opinions as to the legality under the antitrust laws of proposed business mergers, expansions, &c. This decision was made necessary because of the fact that the department may be called upon to prosecute such cases, and the department has been embarrassed by the prior opinion rendered. The antitrust laws are so complex, however, that business holds that some means should be provided whereby it can ascertain the legality of its acts before they are undertaken. Col. William J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney General, suggests a means.

The antitrust laws, he says, were based on the theory that the public welfare requires the maintenance of free competition. The Federal Trade Commission, however, has come to recognize that too much competition may be as injurious to the public as too little. The two ideas, he suggests, should be brought together. The real object of government under the antitrust laws, he adds, is to equalize conditions and to insure that industry shall play the game according to the accepted rules of social justice. Basing his recommendation on these two principles, he suggests:

> The Federal Trade Commission should be changed from a body having the combined powers and duties of an investigator, prosecutor and judge into a body advisory and quasi-judicial. The Attorney General alone should have the power to institute proceedings to restrain violations of the Sherman law. Except in criminal cases, which should be presented to the district courts, all proceedings instituted by the Attorney General should be brought before the Federal Trade Commission. Unfair competition cases could be investigated before it, not only by the Attorney General but by private litigants. From its decisions review could be made as now, either by the Circuit Court of Appeals or perhaps by a specially constituted court, the determination on review being final except as to constitutional questions.

Col. Donovan's plan deserves consideration. If it were adopted, business would have a way of ascertaining in advance whether or not its projects were lawful, and, at the same time, the machinery whereby violations of the antitrust laws are prosecuted would not be destroyed or impaired.

RADIO REGULATION.

The Radio Commission finally is on a permanent basis. The Senate has confirmed four of the five nominees. The commission, the terms of all the members of which would have expired at midnight Sunday, will continue functioning without interruption.

Just what will be the course of radio regulation and control can not be foretold. There is considerable dissatisfaction with certain features of the present radio act. The Davis amendment particularly has come in for vigorous criticism. Under its terms the commission is compelled to distribute broadcasting facilities in five arbitrarily established zones according to their populations. This regulation, it is held, makes for artificial and inequitable distribution of facilities, working particularly to the disadvantage of the West and South. There has also been waged for some time a campaign against the section of the act that prohibits the merging of telegraph and radio companies, and certain members of the commission are of the opinion that it is imperatively necessary to clarify the function of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals with respect to the commission.

Of greater importance, however, in connection with the future of radio regulation and control, is the proposal, sponsored by Senator Couzens, to establish a communications commission. This commission would have authority in the field of communications equal to that of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the field of transportation. It would regulate and control not only broadcasters and point-to-point radio operators, but telegraph and telephone companies as well. It would supersede the Radio Commission in the regulation of television and aviation communication. Senator Couzens is not pressing for immediate action on his measure. The project is being slowly advanced, however; public sentiment is being formed and explored, and it seems that sooner or later all the communications services of the country will be placed under the regulation of a commission.

In the meantime the Radio Commission has a large field of activity and an unusual opportunity for service. The regulation of radio has been, in general, effective. Broadcast reception today is far superior to that of the period before the radio act was passed. There is ample room for improvement, however, and it is to be hoped that the commission will continue its good work in building up a national radio system.

FEDERAL REGULATION OF POWER.

The controversy within the Federal Power Commission may be the occasion which prompted President Hoover to urge the creation of a permanent commission, but it is not the underlying reason for his action. In his annual message the President recommended that full-time commissioners be authorized to replace the Cabinet members who now compose that body. The growing responsibilities of this commission, he said, absorb more time than these officials can spare from other duties.

It is timely for Congress to consider reorganization of the Power Commission in line with this recommendation and the Couzens bill. The President does not have in mind a powerful regulatory body that would supersede the State commissions. Approximately 90 per cent of all power generated and distributed is intrastate in character and properly comes under regulation of the States. There is no reason why the Government should encroach upon the rights of the States in regulating this part of the industry. But control of electric utilities which extend beyond State lines can not be effectively handled by State commissions. The necessity for a competent Federal commission is apparent.

President Hoover is reported to have told Senator Couzens, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, that the commission as at present constituted is of no particular value either as an advisory or regulatory body. The permanent commission which the President has in mind would serve as a coordinator in interstate cases. Initial action would be taken by the State commissions and made effective by the Federal Commission, except in cases of disagreement or nonaction by the States. Regulation of the power industry would thus be left entirely within the jurisdiction of the States in so far as they are able to exercise that jurisdiction by separate or joint action.

The present Federal Power Commission is plainly unsatisfactory. Congress would do well to give early attention to the President's recommendations for improved regulation of this rapidly growing utility.

ROARING CAMPS OF '49

From the Golden Book.

These glamorous hills of California that once focused the attention of the entire world with their gleam of gold have again come to public notice. This time it is because a railroad has instituted a motor bus line to carry tourists winding through the Sierras to visit the spots where only 60 years ago a score of mushroom cities flourished, alive with men who starved, fought, killed, stole, braved innumerable dangers and revealed themselves as heroes and knaves in history's most picturesque stampede for gold.

The hills are studded with ghost towns now. Rough and Ready, Piety Hill, Hangtown, Red Dog, Nigger Slide! The color of these names lives only in the tales of Bret Harte and Mark Twain.

Just over the crest of the range is Sierra City, once vibrant with the tempestuous life of the Argonauts. Its ancient hostelry, built story upon story as the camp grew, now houses bats and rats. Cobwebs cover its dusty windows, and above the door of the building beside it, still decipherable, is a legend which recalls the days of gold dust, stage coaches, road agents and frontier justice, "Wells Fargo Express Co."

A few old-timers sit in the sun and drowse the hours away, rousing themselves at times to reminisce over the mad, glad old days. Off in the hills to the right is Poker Flat, below it is Sandy Bar, and farther along is Downieville, once the hellroaringest camp of them all.

Ghost towns now, most of them. But their attraction for the traveler is unique, for their span of glory, while brief, was probably more crowded with the picturesque and dramatic than that of any other section.

And, while the glamour has disappeared, there is still gold mined in those hills. Two of the old camps are still active mining centers.

Nevada City and Grass Valley were once the two largest cities in California, with wealth on every hand and excitement on every corner. For nearly three-quarters of a century those camps have been producing a steady stream of gold. First it was panned gold, or dust and nuggets washed in the sluice boxes of the forty-niners. Then it was placer gold from the immense hydraulic operations that followed the first wild rush. And today the pound, pound, pound of the stamp mills, crushing the quartz to extract the precious metal, goes on day and night.

But for the most part the hills and canyons resound to emptiness. Nature is effacing the scars of pick and dynamite with its healing green. Only the ghost towns with their reminiscing dodders recall the most thrilling treasure hunt in history.

JUST FOLKS

STRAY THOUGHTS.

A little child about him played,
She pushed a card his hands had made.
The mother smiled to see them there,
Husband, father; daughter fair.
Our little family happier grows."

And looking up, he saw her face
Framed in that curtained window space,
And thought: "There are no prettier flowers,
No lovelier little home than ours,
No nicer pies, no tastier cakes
Than those for us the mother makes."

In stray thoughts such as these are blent
All earthly pleasure and content.
For those who look with loving eyes
On little things they've come to prize,
And in possessing them are glad.
Have all from life than can be had!

If the Sun Was Created, Why Swallow That Camel and Strain at a Gnat?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

In a plague-ridden city a widow lay dying.

Her only child, a daughter six years old, had escaped the contagion.

In the early morning an official of the city stood in the doorway and said to the woman: "We are sending the unaffected children out of town, and I have come for your daughter."

But the official took the child by the hand and led her away to safety, and the mother's voice followed him, moaning: "Oh, the heartless brute!"

Thus ignorance combats and reproaches its benefactors.

"Don't take her away," she prayed. "She's all I have left."

But death came, as it must to all, and the woman cried bitterly: "There is no God! No God could be so heartless!"

What is religion?

The dictionary says it is belief in a supernatural power and recognition of man's duty to obey it.

That being true, it is scarcely possible for any person of sound mind to reject religion; for the universe and the laws that govern it obviously were made by some power beyond human comprehension.

And since those laws, of superhuman origin, include the natural and "ethical" laws that man must obey to fare well, both duty and common sense urge him to obey them.

When logic affirms the superhuman origin of the universe, it assumes a miracle beyond all understanding.

And since the laws that guide the universe still function, it is obvious that the power from which they came has not grown less.

Thus reason establishes the possibility of other miracles, for if God could create a world from nothing and has not lost His power, He could still move heaven and earth at His pleasure.

Is prayer answered?

I do not know.

But this I do know: That a power capable of creating the universe could perform any lesser miracle; and if God does not answer prayer, it is not because He lacks the power, but because He does not will to answer.

Why should prayers for life be answered, and all thus saved from death, if man is an immortal soul and death but an incident?

And though man's ignorance and folly make earth wretched, can any sane mind attribute mistakes to the infinite intelligence that conceived and fashioned the universe?

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NEWS FROM THE NAVAL HUDDLE.

The five-power naval conference is in its sixth week, with all progress suffering from low visibility and with the bored delegates wondering if it will be necessary to burn down the meeting hall to get out of the huddle.

* * * *

Results of the parley to date are:

1. A new high for ambiguous oratory.

2. Proof that mutual distrust is off about ten points since the peace conference.

3. A realization by Secretary Stimson that he might as well have remained in Washington and sent his parrot to London.

4. A verdict unofficially arrived at by the American stenographers that London hotels are terrible, and an ultimatum to all whom it may concern that if the conference doesn't end pretty soon they will leave it flat and go back to a country where no boy friends wear monocles, goatees, side whiskers or silk capes.

5. Strong indications that France thinks she is still at war and practically surrounded.

6. The development that while the five loud-speaking powers are discussing ways and means of reducing navies, Old Doctor Germany is speeding plans for oversized battleships and for supersubmarines, which will make the ones used by other powers look like nursery toys.

* * * *

The parley has dragged along so far now that even the radio stations are losing interest, and a delegate can no longer attract the attention of the news photographers unless he is mentioned in a divorce action or something.

* * * *

The best any nation can hope is that its delegates will get home with a copy of the minutes before the next war breaks out.

Fears are being expressed that if the conference lasts much longer it may even start the next war.

* * * *

The huddle has now become about as colorful and exciting as a convention of mathematicians. There is grave danger that at any moment now the people may demand that the various countries keep their warships and sink the delegates.

* * * *

Every morning some country loses more warships in a debate than it ever lost in a naval engagement.

* * * *

And every afternoon it gets more vessels back than it ever captured in time of war.

* * * *

* * * *

One of the developments the other day was that even if an agreement is reached on naval strength, America will have to spend millions building enough new warships to attain its quota. That's disarmament with a deadly backspin.

* * * *

The big test of sincerity came with the proposal of America to outlaw the submarine. Japan, Italy and France set up a kind of howl you would expect if they received news somebody had shot an old friend.

* * * *

France actually led the fight to preserve the underseas boat. Well, maybe she's right. It was the submarine in the last war that brought the world to her side.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the "Magazine Section" of The Post for Sunday, February 16, is a most disturbing article, entitled "Dizzy Days at Vassar."

I don't know who Miss Alice Dakin is, but she has certainly lent her name to very unfair statements.

I am eighty years old and was a student at Vassar College during the second, third and fourth years of its existence. My mind is stored with golden memories of those eventful years; they were not "dizzy," but busy days.

I do not wonder that the lady from Auburn, N. Y., wishes her name withheld. If that is the best she can find to say about the early days of this wonderful institution, she had better remain incognito.

Our lady principal, Miss Hannah Lyman, was an English woman; a stern and dignified character, respected, but also much feared. If such an episode had ever come to her ears, she would have expelled the entire group, at once.

The cartoon accompanying this article is hideous, and entirely false; we were not allowed to dress in any such fashion; did not wear trains, or bustles, nor keep our hats on in the house. Miss Lyman was especially strict in matters of dress.

I am sorry The Post (that widely-read paper), has seen fit to give space to such an unfair contribution, when there are so many interesting happenings which could be recorded of the early days of our very first "Woman's College."

Capt. See, Mathematical Genius of the Navy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Though Capt. T. J. J. See, the noted astronomer of the Navy, has left the active list of the service after having made some wonderful scientific discoveries this does not mean that he will give up scientific investigations. It will be quite the opposite, for he will probably devote the rest of his life to the development in the field of science, of which he is an expert.

Capt. See is not only a great astronomer, but he is also an outstanding figure in the mathematical world. Capt. See proved himself a great mathematician by proving a certain mathematical statement made by the master mathematician, Einstein, to be false.

Probably the most outstanding achievement of this brilliant naval officer is his discovery of the cause of earthquakes, a subject which long proved baffling to the scientists of the world. It was after the great quake in San Francisco that he discovered through original methods that the cause of earthquakes is the leakage of the oceans. He made various other important discoveries. In fact, his scientific discoveries gained enough world prominence to cause the University of San Marcos to bestow upon him the honorary degree of doctor of science. Now that he has retired from active duty he will be able to aid science still more by his discoveries and also he will be able to complete some important volumes which should throw a great deal of light upon the many interesting discoveries he has made.

Corn on the Cob Omitted From List of Leading American Dishes—How Come?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the list of favorite native American edibles in the letter column of The Post the other morning there was one missing which leads all the rest. I refer to corn on the cob, which would get my vote in the suggested favorite food poll. In this age of radio dinner music and modern refinements of dining a special meal would be necessary to properly disclose its merit. The table should be loaded with homely fare, the piece de resistance a spacious platter heaped high with the regal esculent of the pioneers. Eaten with self-conscious daintiness corn on the cob does not fail to produce a sense of supreme satisfaction. But old-timers will tell you that artless, unabashed abandon is necessary for a full realization of its excellence. Grasp the buttered ear by both ends, shut your eyes, and bite into the luscious kernels with barbaric gusto. Oh, boy!

Not America's Business to Intermeddle With Russia's War on Religion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in Friday's Post, "No Meddling in Russia," is the first sensible thought I have seen in print in Washington on the religious situation in Russia. What is it to the United States, England or Italy what Russia does about her religion? How long is it going to be before we learn to keep our fingers out of other people's affairs?

Once upon a time the struggling (and oppressed) colonies of America deemed it their God-given right to sever the political, and social, and religious ties which bound them to Great Britain. A bloody war followed. Suppose Italy had stuck her finger into our pie and called for a universal "day of prayer" that we might call a halt and place the English yoke back on our necks? We would have told Italy where to get off.

No Home Life Any More—Parents Blamed for Children Running Into Communism and Immorality.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How could you expect young people to think straight, when their parents are drunk with movie dope and home brew and eating canned stuff? It's a wonder that the communists have not converted all the kids to the creed of violence and immorality. There is no home life any more; nobody to do the spanking. The country is going to the dogs, and the fault is not in prohibition. It lies in the cussedness and laziness of parents.

REDS SHOUT 'WAR!' ON ARMY BIRTHDAY

WORLD IS FOE, BELIEF

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Coincident with celebration today of the twelfth anniversary of the founding of the Red army, Soviet newspapers and political leaders renewed the loud cry of "war." They appealed to the country to be on guard against the menace from imperialistic powers which are pictured as jealous of the Soviet's economic and industrial progress.

Communist authorities here appear to entertain genuine fear that the Soviet's European neighbors intend, in concert, to inaugurate either economic measures against their government, or a direct military attack. This war scare has become immeasurably intensified by the present campaign abroad against the Soviet government for its attitude respecting religion.

"All the forces of reaction throughout the world are mobilized against the Soviet Union, which is going full speed ahead toward socialism," declares Izvestia in a flaming front-page editorial. "The Pope, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the French police, the English die-hards, Socialists, Fascists, foreign counterfeiters of Soviet money and the German bourgeoisie have united into only holy union to launch new bandit attacks upon our country.

Dancing on Powder, Claim.

"But the rulers of capitalistic Europe forget they are dancing the 'can-can' on a barrel of powder. We will remain firm and calm, watching this dance of dying capitalism. In our country all workers and peasants are convinced of the final results of the struggle between Bolshevism and capitalism.

"They know our government stands in defense of peace. They want peace themselves, but if the enemy directs his guns on the land of the proletarian dictatorship, each worker and peasant will consider it an honor to participate in the victorious marches of the Red army in order to destroy the class enemy."

Pravda says the present anti-Soviet campaign abroad is unprecendented in its fury, hatred, extent and forms, and is the precursor of an armed attack by the capitalistic states.

Be Ready for Invasion, Warning.

Playing to the same tune of war, K. E. Voroshiloff, who displaced Leon Trotzky as head of the Red army, warns the country that the Red army must ever be ready to repel foreign invasion. He calls attention to the fact that foreign armies, including the American, have grown enormously in recent years.

"The United States now has 155 heavy machine guns and 792 small machine guns," he says, "whereas in 1924 it had only 24 heavy machine guns. The American Army now has 31 large field guns, whereas in 1913 it only had 24.

"The air forces of all countries have steadily grown. France has 2,000 airplanes as compared with 1,550 in 1924. England has 1,350 as against 600 in 1924. Other bordering countries have a total of 685 airplanes compared with 275 in 1924."

Turkey to Be Host To Deposed Ruler

Amanullah, Former Afghan King, to Interview Mustapha Kemal.

Istanbul, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Turkish officials today confirmed a report that Amanullah, deposed King of Afghanistan, would arrive here from Venice tonight, and would start for Angora immediately to interview President Mustapha Kemal. He will remain at Angora for some time as the guest of the Turkish government, which has put the villa of a deputy in Parliament at his disposal.

The deposed king is expected to return to Istanbul later to join the family of his wife, Suriya. A strong sentiment is said to be showing in Afghanistan favoring his return.

King Amanullah fled from Afghanistan after the throne was seized by Bacha Sakao, formerly known as "the water boy of the north." He sailed for Europe from Bombay last June 22. Later the usurper was ousted by Nadir Kahn, Amanullah's uncle, who accepted the royal power and caused the execution of Bacha Sakao. Amanullah has persistently said he hoped some time to return to Afghanistan and live as a private citizen. Nadir Khan has been reported seriously ill.

Steamers in Collision Off Uruguayan Coast

Montevideo, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The British liner Vauban, bound from New York to Buenos Aires, was in collision early today with the 400-ton Uruguayan coastal steamer Batitu near this port. The crew of the Batitu was saved.

The steamer Batitu, which was in collision with the liner Vauban, was owned by a Uruguayan company. She was built in 1889. The Vauban, of 10,660 gross tons, was built in 1912. The latter vessel is operated in the Liverpool-South American service by Lamport & Holt, Ltd.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

UNDER the jocular agreement of Senator Tydings, of Maryland, and Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, on the floor of the Senate that they would organize a "seacoast bloc" to fight for the interests of the tidewater States, is a very real idea which may develop into action sooner than the two senators really thought.

As Senator Tydings pointed out, there are a number of commodities on which the tariff makes no difference whatever to inland States, but makes a vital difference to their producers who live close to tidewater. Senator Tydings was particularly interested at the moment in brick, but he mentioned also cement and several others.

* * * *

ACTUALLY the list is rather long and includes clay, pig iron, and even shoes. The latter furnish a perfect example of a dividend interest. The St. Louis manufacturers were opposed to an increase in the tariff. The Boston and Lynn manufacturers insisted that a tariff was vitally essential if they were to go on doing business.

The answer is freight rates. All the commodities in this class are bulky in proportion to their value. Actually shoes would not seem to belong in this class at all, and certainly not to the same extent as brick and pig iron.

It so happens, however, that the shoe industry is not as closely organized as cement, for illustration. All the cement manufacturers were eagerly behind the move to take cement off the free list. It made no difference to the mills in the interior, for the freight rates on cement from tidewater to any point west of the Alleganies, or east of the Rockies, would amount to more than the selling price of cement. But they cooperated.

* * * *

IT IS this very organization which has been the undoing of the cement industry so far as some of the seaboard customers are concerned. For example, the road commission of North Carolina became convinced that the bidding to supply it with cement was by agreement among the companies. To punish them and show that there was real competition, the commission bought more than 250,000 barrels of Belgian cement. The purchasing agent of the commission tells the writer that the State only saved $20,000 on all this, of which $10,000 is in litigation. He also admitted that the cotton growers of North Carolina did not enthuse over the idea of this cement being packed in jute sacks, but it certainly taught a lesson to the cement makers, he declared, and added that he would oppose a tariff vigorously.

* * * *

DOWN in Savannah, the railroad companies, eager to have a 300-mile haul, induced the city council to prohibit the use of imported cement on public work. The City of Norfolk has done the same thing, not for a railroad, but to encourage a local plant. So has the State of Virginia, but the City of Richmond has bought imported cement for the same reasons as actuated the road commission of North Carolina.

Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, now Ambassador to Germany, but who was beginning to insurge on the tariff just before he was "promoted," told the writer he believed this question should be handled the way Savannah has handled it, rather than by putting on a tariff which would displease the entire interior of the country.

Actually, there is no such searching an acid test of the whole tariff theory as this "seacoast bloc" thought. The producers and the consumers of the commodity in each such case are in almost the same community, certainly in the same State. In North Carolina and Richmond they turn one way, and in Norfolk and Savannah they turn the other. It amounts to local self determination on the tariff.

Discovery of Ancient Graves in Ur Valley Also Made by Joint Expedition of Pennsylvania and British Museums.

Philadelphia, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Religious figures, believed to have belonged to a race which inhabited Ur of the Chaldees before the flood, and the copper figure of Rim-sin, a Sumerian king who lived about 1900 B. C., have been unearthed by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania Museum and the British Museum. The remains of a prehistoric factory also were discovered.

Details of the discoveries were contained in a report from C. Leon Woolley, field director of the expedition, made public tonight by the university museum.

Mr. Woolley said the diggers had reached a depth of 56 feet, "which, on a conservative estimate, we date at 3200 B. C., and, outstripping calculations in centuries, we have to deal with the very beginnings of man's settlement here in the River Valley."

"One discovery deserves to be signalized," Mr. Woolley added. "Two inscribed clay foundation cones lying against the ruins of a brick wall led us to start the clearing of the building, and almost at once there came to light in the wall's thickness the small brick-built foundation box in which stood still undisturbed the copper figure of the king bearing on his head the basket of mortar, and before his feet the stone model brick inscribed with the dedication of the building.

"It was a temple of Enki, the water god, and its restoration by Rim-sin, King of Larsa in 1900 B. C., whose statuette we had found, gave its title to the ninth year of his reign."

Below the 42-foot level Mr. Woolley said the diggers discovered many graves. In three of these were found "painted clay figurines of women grotesquely modeled on an archaic convention, too delicate to be dolls; and one of a pointed bird with outspread wings must be connected with the religion of the race which inhabited Ur before the flood."

Wales Loses Shot At Huge Elephant

Prince Travels 100 Miles on Foot in Trailing Prospective Bag.

Nairobi, Kenya Colony British East Africa, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales has been robbed by bad luck of a chance to shoot at a big bull elephant after traveling nearly 100 miles on foot in search of him, and finally getting within 40 yards of the animal.

The prince's misfortune was revealed by Capt. D. G. Finch-Hatton, famous hunter, who accompanied the prince's party on an expedition into the African jungles, whence they returned yesterday. He said the elephant got scent of the porters just as Wales was preparing to shoot, and quickly crashed away through the jungle and got out of range. He described the animal as a big beast with tusks that must have weighed 100 pounds each.

Capt. Finch-Hatton said the prince was greatly disappointed, but heeding the old heunter's saying, "One hundred miles—one elephant," hopes to bag his first tusker soon. Near Kasigau, however, the prince killed a fine buffalo with the first shot. He is looking the picture of health, and impressed every one with his walking prowess and endurance. Wales will stay with Gov. Sir Edward Grigg for a few days before going into the Masai game preserve on a photographic expedition.

U. S. Per Capita Wealth Reported to Be $3,000

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A report of the National Industrial Conference Board, made public today, placed the national wealth of the United States in 1928 at 360,100,000,000. The per capita wealth of the country was $3,000.

The report showed that the 1928 wealth was about $40,000,000,000 greater than that of 1922, when the most recent census estimate was made. In 1912 the census estimate was 186,300,000,000, while ten years later it was 320,800,000,000.

"Considering the amounts for 1912 and 1928 in terms of dollars of equal purchasing power, so as to eliminate the differences in price levels of the prewar and postwar periods for the purpose of comparison," the report said, "the nominal increase of 93.3 per cent during the sixteen-year period, 1912-1928, becomes a real increase of 37 per cent."

PHILIPPINE PARLEY ON FREEDOM BEGINS

ECONOMIC LOSS IS SEEN

Manila, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Discussion of various situations which would confront the government of the Philippine Islands under an independence regime was begun today by delegates to the independence congress in session here. Sectional meetings on economics, politics and international relations were conducted.

Only one note of doubt as to advisability of absolute independence was sounded. While the political section was unanimous in its expressed belief that the islands are politically ready for independence and while the economics section was sure the islands could afford independence economically, Judge Mariano de Joya, chairman of the international relations committee, suggested a modified independence.

He cited the governments of Cuba and Egypt as desirable models and said such a government would be the only attainable status for the islands under existing world conditions.

During the discussioin which followed some of the delegates agreed with this view, but held that absolute separation from the United States should be asked with a view to actually receiving a modified independence.

Jorge Bocobo, a leading Filipino nationalist, however, declared for absolute independence, declaring the League of Nations, Kellogg pact and world court were sufficient protection. Filipinos should not fear absolute independence, he said.

The consensus of the economics section appeared to be that there would be an economic setback, but that the people would quickly adjust themselves to it. The political section took it for granted that the islands are ready for independence, the discussion centering chiefly around the form of government which should be adopted.

Chinese Students Riot Over Talkie

Shanghai, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Initial showing of Harold Lloyd's first talking motion picture, "Welcome Danger," by the International Settlement Foreign Theater last night, resulted in a demonstration by 350 Chinese students in the audience. The students handled the theater manager roughly, demanded their money back and one of them hurled a giant firecracker into the center of the theater, causing a near stampede.

A portion of the film depicting alleged underworld life in San Francisco's Chinatown, in which Chinese opium smugglers were portrayed, caused the displeasure of the students, who charged the picture was "unfriendly and derogatory to the Chinese people."

Police dispersed the demonstrators, who had asked and obtained a refund of their admission price, and arrested the ringleader who was said to be scenario writer for a Chinese motion picture company. As a result possibly of the publicity, large audiences today witnessed the film which was shown in two foreign settlement theaters guarded by police.

WILKINS' MAPS FIX ANTARCTIC COAST

300 Miles of Shore Hitherto Unknown Revealed as He Reaches Uruguay.

MOVIES BROUGHT BACK

Montevideo, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Maps showing 300 miles of hitherto unknown coast line discovered by the Wilkins expedition to the Antarctic, and movie films showing scenes of the eternal ice were landed here today on the Norwegian steamer Hendrix Ibsen, which brought the party from the far South.

Sir George Hubert Wilkins, head of the expedition, and Pilot Chessmann left the ship off the coast and flew to land by airplane yesterday.

After personally supervising the landing of the expedition's personnel and baggage today, Sir Hubert gave an interview to the Associated Press, stating that members of the expedition kept in excellent health during their stay in the Antarctic, where they arrived late last year.

Continent Seen to South.

He saw not an island but a large continent southward. West of Charcot, instead of finding the land he expected, he found only water.

Sir Hubert added that when he and his airplane party were cut off from wireless communication last month they were in no danger, but found themselves completely surrounded by a range of mountains more than 9,000 feet high, which prevented transmission and reception of messages. These mountains are south of Peter I Island. The radio sending and receiving apparatus was in good order, he said.

Sir Hubert said he prepared plans for establishment of permanent observations in the Antarctic, but their installation depends on the financial cooperation of nations interested.

Long Residence Thought Possible.

He said he believed it was possible for men to reside in these regions for long periods.

Sir Hubert will remain here for about a week and then start for New York, although he is yet undecided as to what steamer he will take.

Shortly after reaching the United States he will proceed to Europe, with the object of preparing for his intended submarine expedition to the Arctic this summer. He regards that proposed expedition as the logical complement of his scientific work.

Sir Hubert and his four companions came direct from Deception Island to Montevideo without touching at the Falklands. They had two days of very stormy weather en route.

Death-Plot Plea By Trotzky Denied

Exiled Russian Has Not Asked Aid, Chief of Police in Istanbul Avers.

Istanbul, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The chief of police here today denied that Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian leader, had appealed for extra protection on account of rumors that Russian emigres in Prague were plotting to kill him.

Since his arrival in Turkey, the police have been guarding Hill Villa and his person closely on account of the numbers of white Russians here. The chief of police said this vigilant surveillance insures Trotzky's safety.

The German publisher of Trotzky's works was said in Berlin yesterday to have received word from Czechoslovakia that a group of Russians in Prague had planned an attempt against Trotzky's life. The Turkish Embassy in Berlin was notified, and the Turkish authorities were requested to furnish special protection to Trotzky's home near Istanbul.

Two Boys Are Killed When Kite Hits Wire

Danbury, Conn., Feb. 23 (A.P.). Two boys, brothers, were killed today when a fine wire with which they were flying a kite fell across an overhead wire carrying about 2,500 volts of electricity. The boys were Carl Will, 14, and Wendell, 12.

Joseph Eonorzeicz, who attempted to extricate the kite from a bush near his home, was thrown to the ground unconscious. He was revived and apparently escaped serious injury.

Turk, 156, Never Drank; To Be Exhibited in U. S.

Istanbul, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—"One hundred and fifty-six years old, and never took a drink," is the boast of Zaro Agha, Turkey's longevity champion, who will abandon a job as doorkeeper at the city hall here at the end of April to sail for New York at the invitation of the American Antialcohol Society.

The society intends to exhibit the aged man throughout the United States, calling attention to the teetotaler's mental and physical vigor. Zaro, who has buried eleven wives, will leave his twelfth at home when he embarks for America.

Freak Accident Kills Man in Traffic Row

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—A trivial traffic argument resulted in the death today of Donald E. Strook. Angered when an automobile driven by Eric C. Daniels scraped the fender of his car, Strook, according to witnesses, leaped upon the running board of Daniels' machine and belabored the offending driver with his fists.

Dazed, Daniels lost control and the car crashed into a traffic signal. The impact caused Strook to be catapulted to the pavement and killed.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

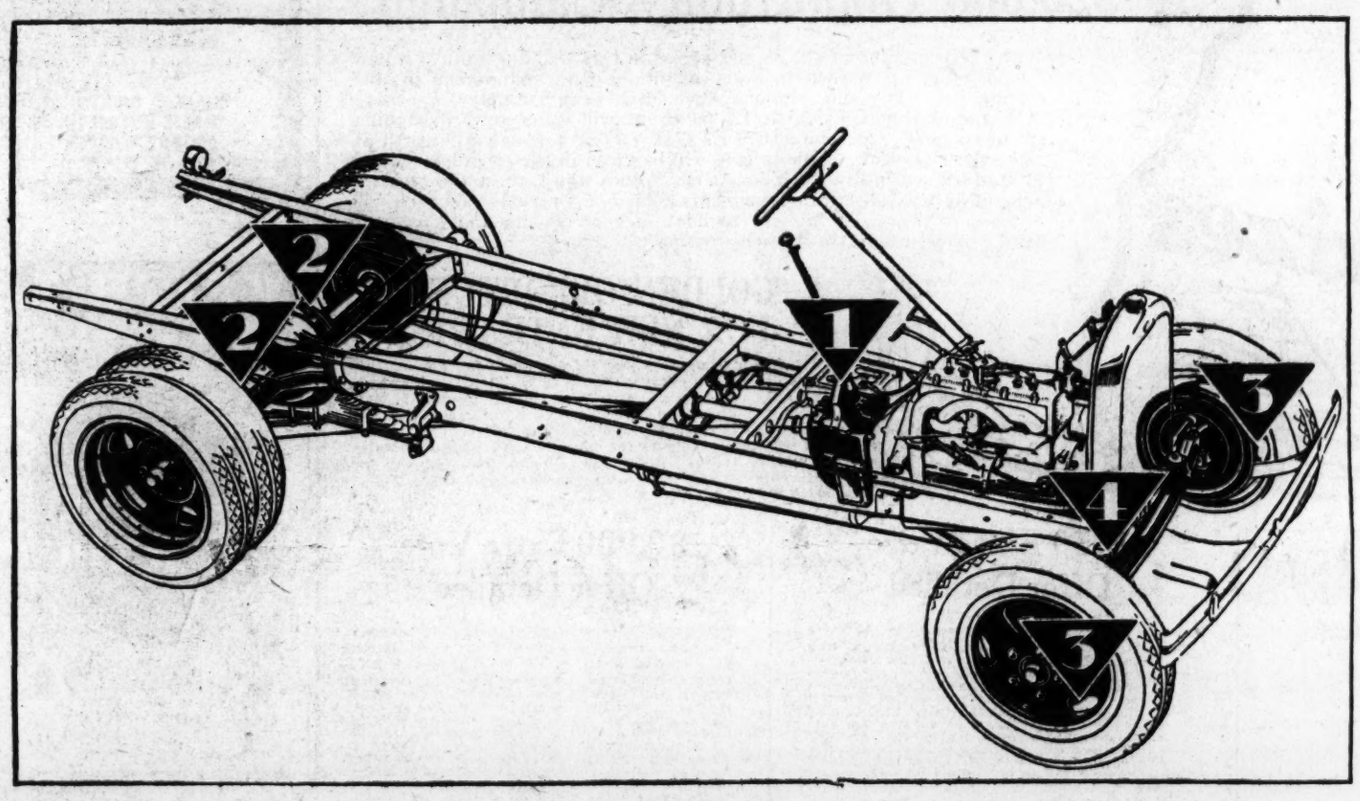
Announcing new features of the FORD TRUCK



1

4-speed Transmission

2

New Spiral Bevel Gear Rear Axle

Rugged strength and long life

3

Larger Brakes

Providing a greater degree of safety

4

New Front Axle and Spring

Unusually sturdy front construction

TO EVERY ONE interested in moving goods economically from one place to another, the improved Ford 1½-ton truck offers long, reliable service and low cost of maintenance.

Rugged strength is an important feature of the improved Ford chassis. Many parts are of new design. For example, the front axle, which is a chrome-alloy forging, is nearly twice as strong as formerly. The front spring is heavier, with wider leaves. Front radius-rod is heavier, and king-pins, thrust bearings and wheel bearings are larger.

The rear construction is also improved. It has a spiral bevel gear of special Ford truck design, with straddle-mounted pinion. The housing is of exceptionally strong construction. The axle shafts are heavier than formerly, and because of the three-quarter floating type of axle construction, they serve only to turn the wheels, without carrying any of the weight of truck or load.

A feature of the improved Ford truck is the new 4-speed transmission, which provides an unusually flexible range of speed and power. At ready control of the driver is abundant power for moving capacity loads, and ample speed for efficient service where time saved is an important factor.

Brakes on the front wheels have been enlarged to the same size as those on the rear wheels, providing increased braking area and a high degree of safety. Brakes are of the mechanical type, internal expanding, and all are fully enclosed. Controls have been redesigned, and operate with minimum effort.

The four-cylinder engine of the Ford truck develops 40 horse-power at moderate speed. This means that nearly its full power becomes available without the need for excessive speed. Especially important to the reliability of the engine is the simplicity of the electrical, ignition, cooling, lubrication and fuel systems.

Other chassis features, many of which are unusual in a truck of such low price, are the cantilever rear springs, which reduce unsprung weight and lessen rebound; the torque-tube drive, which relieves rear springs of all but their normal function of absorbing shocks, and the large-sized opening provided in the transmission for power take-off mounting. Dual rear wheels are available at small additional cost. Balloon tires of one size are used throughout, with the dual equipment, so that all six wheels and tires are interchangeable all around. Only one spare wheel and tire need be carried.

Child, 4, Dies in Plunge To Escape Fire in Home

New York, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Her night clothes aflame, 4-year-old Wanda Rapalaska, trapped with an older sister and brother in a smoke-filled apartment, leaped from a window yesterday to the bottom of an airshaft 16 feet below, fracturing her skull. She died later in St. Luke's Hospital.

Her sister, Martina, 18, was taken to Reconstruction Hospital with severe burns of the arms and legs, and her brother, Stephen, 16, was removed to St. Luke's Hospital, suffering from burns and laceration. Both escaped by dropping to the pit of the shaft.

Alleged Drug Peddler Is Found Shot to Death

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Slumped over the wheel of his automobile, parked on the lower East Side, the body of John Lucherco, 30 years old, was found early today, shot through the head. Police said Lucherco was better known as John Palmer and believed he was engaged in the narcotic traffic.

Police said he apparently had been shot by some one sitting next to him on the front seat of the automobile.

Mahan had been planning the jump for several months, over the protest of his manager, Fred Winsor. Mahan previously arranged an airplane dive in Los Angeles by which he had hoped to regain his hearing but the attempt was unsuccessful.

Winsor attempted to dissuade Mahan from making the jump only a moment before the plane took off with him as a passenger, but he refused to heed his manager's warning. Meanwhile the crowd cheered.

Col. Abbott said he wrote out careful instructions for Mahan to count six before pulling the rip cord. He apparently disregarded the directions and jerked the cord as he stepped off the wing, the flier said.

Mahan, whose real name was Federico Mesa, is survived by his stepfather, William Mahan, and his mother, of Brackettville, Tex.

"Dummy" Mahan had met in the ring such men as Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, Young Corbett and Meyer Grace, of Chicago. He scored 54 knockouts in 100 matches. Winsor, his manager, credited with being the discoverer and first manager of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, wept as he saw his friend fall from the plane.

"He would have been the next welterweight champion," he said.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 22.

Provision is made in the revenue act which allows a taxpayer who sustains a net loss in a trade or business regularly carried on by him to deduct the amount of such net loss when computing his net income for the succeeding taxable year, and if such loss is in excess of the net income for that year, the excess may be carried over and deducted in computing the net income for the next succeeding taxable year.

When computing a net loss under this provision of the act there may be included losses from the sale of real estate, machinery and other capital assets used in trade or business, but does not include losses arising from transactions not connected with the business except to the extent of the amount of gross income derived from such outside transactions. That is, if an individual had a taxable income from outside sources of $2,000, and sustained a net loss from his trade or business of $8,000, and also allowable deductions outside of his business of $4,000, for 1928, he would be allowed to carry over $8,000 as a deduction in computing his net income for 1929.

Band of Gunmen Sought in Threats

Former Convict and Four of Gang Hunted After Promise to Kill.

Wilmette, Ill., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Squads of police combed North Shore districts today in an effort to capture a band of gunmen led by Merle Cox, former convict who threatened to kill W. F. Bolinger, a prominent Wilmette landscape architect.

Cox appeared last night at the home of a friend of the Bolinger family and demanded the architect's address. He said he intended to kill Bolinger because Bolinger had married Cox's divorced wife, Mrs. Helen Cox Bolinger. The information was refused.

Cox returned later, accompanied by four men, all armed with shotguns, and forced the information from residents of the house. Alarmed neighbors called the police.

Wilmette police officials today were checking reports that Cox was wanted at South Bend, Ind., for the slaying of Christ Toneff, alleged racket leader. They also sought to verify reports Cox was wanted at Mishawaka, Ind., for a series of robberies.

$20,000 Opportunity Campaign

$350 in Gold Prizes

With the beginning of the second period in this thrilling contest a new "Opportunity" is opened to every ambitious man and woman in this community. Only subscriptions received between Thursday, February 20th and Wednesday, March 12, inclusive, will count toward winning one of six gold prizes and 90,000 EXTRA VOTES for each $20 worth of new subscriptions . . . $100 in gold will be given in the city division and $100 in the out-of-town division to candidates who turn in the greatest amount in new subscription payments during this period. $50 each will be given to the second highest candidate in each division and $25 to the third highest candidate in each division.

A "GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY" FOR NEW ENTRANTS

Now is the time to enter this contest, for during this period alone you can win one of these liberal cash awards in equal competition with every other candidate, new or old. You may also secure such a vote total through the 90,000 Extra Vote Bonuses that you will be among the leaders in the race for one of the 12 big automobiles or sixteen radios listed below. Write, phone or call for full details from the campaign manager, Fifth Floor, Post Building.

This blank counts for 5,000 free votes. Only one nomination will be credited to each candidate. The nominator's name will not be divulged if so requested.

$350 Extra Prize Offer Detailed

Only new subscriptions turned in between Thursday, February 20, and Wednesday, March 12, inclusive, apply on the $350 Extra Prize Offer. To the candidate from the city division who turns in the greatest amount in NEW subscription payments during this period a merit prize of $100 in gold will be given. $100 in gold will also be given to the candidate in the out-of-town division who turns in the greatest amount in new subscriptions within his division. The candidates in both city and out-of-town divisions who turn in the second largest amount of new subscription payments in their respective divisions will EACH receive $50 in Gold; and the third highest candidates in each division will EACH receive $25. Winning these prizes does not in any way interfere with winning the final awards. In fact, since new subscription payments secured also determine the amount of EXTRA VOTES which candidates may earn during this period, obviously the winners of the $350 in extra prizes will be well on their way toward even greater final success in the campaign.

90,000 Extra Vote Offer Detailed

Only new subscriptions turned in between Thursday, February 20, and Wednesday, March 12, inclusive, apply in any way upon this EXTRA VOTE offer, which will not be excelled at any time later in the campaign. For every $20 worth of new subscriptions turned in during this 21-day period 90,000 EXTRA VOTES will be issued, with a proportionate share for all new subscriptions exceeding even $20 clubs. These votes will be in addition to the regular votes issued on subscriptions and also in addition to the 5,000 entry votes and the bonus of 25,000 extra votes given on first subscriptions, per the coupons in this announcement. There is no restriction on the number of EXTRA VOTES a candidate can earn under this offer. It is not necessary or desirable that a candidate hold back NEW subscriptions until even $20 clubs are formed. They should be turned in as rapidly as possible, and regular votes will be issued on them immediately. At the end of the period the EXTRA VOTES earned will be tabulated and issued.

TRADE IN GENERAL CONTINUES TO GAIN

OUTPUT OF STEEL RISES

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Business in the aggregate continued its gradual but irregular recovery last week, with the warmer weather providing a stimulus to the movement of spring merchandise and building materials.

The commodity price structure remained an outstanding sore spot, particularly the wheat and cotton markets, which tumbled to new low levels for the season. The break in wheat was precipitated by failure of negotiations for the export of Canadian wheat in return for imports of British coal, aggravated by continued keen competition from Argentine and Russian sources in the European markets. Cotton futures have reached levels about 25 per cent below a year ago, reflecting slack trade buying and weakness in the Bombay market, resulting in part from the depression in silver prices. The hide markets continued to sag.

Heavy industry continued to gain, particularly steel mill production, which reached about 82 per cent of capacity, compared to 79 per cent the previous week and less than 50 per cent at the low point of the recession in December. Both finished and crude steel prices held steady and steel scrap in the Chicago market was firmer. It was notable, however, that some mills reported recessions, while others gained. Crude steel production was said to be running from 5 to 10 per cent ahead of finishing mill output, probably indicating the piling up of stocks in expectation of spring demands.

Car Firms Await Developments.

Manufacturers of farm implements and machinery were fairly active. Automobile manufacturers, on the whole, were cautious in speeding up production, pending a clearer view of sales conditions. In nonferrous metals demand for copper, brass and lead was a little more active. Zinc and tin were dull and prices eased. A noteworthy report regarding sales of Babbit metal, regarded as a semibarometer of industrial activity, came from the National Lead Co., which stated that sales for the first half of the month were about 45 per cent below the like period of last year.

The textile markets showed a little picking up in finished materials for spring, but unfinished cottons were quiet, reflecting the break in raw cotton prices, and woolens and worsteds were dull. American Woolen reduced prices on certain lines for next fall. The petroleum industry remained unsettled by further reductions in crude and gasoline prices.

Business Reports Unimpressive.

Various statistical surveys making their appearance were not particularly favorable, although they related largely to what may have been earlier stages of the business recovery. Freight car loadings for the first week of February showed a moderate decline from the last week of January. Current merchandise shipments are believed to have undergone considerable improvement, while the movement of coal has slackened on appearance of warmer weather.

F. W. Dodge Corporation's building contract statistics for the week ended February 14 showed an almost negligible gain from the previous week, but current building operations have undoubtedly been stimulated by better weather. The Department of Labor's wholesale price index for January was the lowest in eight years, and its pay roll index indicated a decline of 5.4 per cent from December, although there is believed to have been some improvement since late in the month.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The most impressive improvement in business and industry reported last month was undoubtedly that of the steel industry, says the current issue of the Guaranty Survey, economic publication of the Guaranty Trust Co. Information received during the month is characterized as "somewhat contradictory, but on the whole favorable."

The review adds that "in some directions the bright promise of January has not been entirely borne out, but in others the progress made has even exceeded expectations."

General Motors Corporation reports that sales of cars to dealers during January decreased slightly from 95,441, the figure for January, 1929, to 94,458, while sales to consumers increased from 73,989 to 74,167. These figures covered operations in the United States only. The corporation also announced that total sales to dealers in Canada and overseas sales, amounted to 106,509, compared with 127,580 for the corresponding month a year ago.

Included among the new security offerings to be made this week is an issue of 48,000 shares of class "A" no par value common stock of the Mid-West State Utilities Co. to be offered Tuesday.

The $20,000,000 Detroit plant of the Gulf States Steel Corporation will be completed and in operation by the latter part of August or early in September, says George R. Fink, president of the National Steel Corporation, of which the Gulf States Co. is a subsidiary.

The average price of crude petroleum in ten producing fields was lower last week at $1.464 a barrel compared with $1.542 in the previous week and $1.668 in the corresponding period a year ago, states the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter.

Proxies Are Sent Fox Stockholders

Group Plans to Exercise Votes on Refinancing Plan March 5.

New York, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Although the first request was made only four days ago, "very large numbers" of proxies from holders of class A Fox Film stock are being received by the Fox Film stockholders committee headed by Morton F. Stern, of J. S. Bache & Co., it was announced today.

The committee will exercise these proxies at the stockholders' meeting March 5 at which it will be decided whether the refinancing plan offered by a banking syndicate composed of Lehman Bros., Bancamerica-Blair Corporation and Dillon, Read & Co. will be accepted or rejected.

In making the announcement the committee, through its counsel, Emory R. Buckner, also made public a second letter it has sent to the 9,100 stockholders reiterating its request to be permitted to represent them. Asserting that "you are voting on the corporate life of your company and for the preservation of your investment," the committee urges the shareholders to "vote your stock as your best thought dictates, but be sure to vote your stock."

BOND PRICES CHANGE LITTLE DURING WEEK

U. S. Shares Are Only Ones to Advance Much as Trading Sags.

NEW FINANCING SLUMPS

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Trading in bonds is still confined to a narrow rut, out of which the market seems able to extract itself for brief periods, only to slip back again.

Price averages of representative industrials, rails and utilities showed virtually no net change at the end of last week, which had five trading days. There were minor fluctuations from Monday to Friday, but the composite price of 30 bonds stood at 98.7 on the latter day, as compared with 98.6 at the first of the week. The rails were unchanged at 104.9, which figure is about midway between this group's high and low for 1930.

United States Government securities made a rather important advance, apparently in expectation of easier money rates. Supply and demand in high grade corporation bonds was well equalized, with inquiry perhaps a trifle more than sufficient to absorb offerings. But the market as a whole continued to lack depth and breadth.

One favorable factor affecting listed bond transactions last week was the decline in new offerings. The total was $66,452,000, sharply less than the $150,465,000 floated in the preceding week. This decrease gave the market opportunity to take in some of the slack caused by the heavy volume of new financing since January 1.

Convertibles made a broad bid for favor in the early sessions of the week and some of the daily turnovers in the more active issues were suggestive of the busy days which share privilege bonds enjoyed last summer when they constituted almost the entire market. American Telephone 4½s were the leaders, climbing to the new 1930 high of 160 last Tuesday, when they traded to the extent of $5,200,000, par value.

Foreign bonds were rather irregular. French Republic obligations were less active than in the preceding fortnight, but the 7½s managed to hold close to 121, or about 2 points below their record high of 123, established early this month.

Dealers have not given up hope of a strong market, but they have been forced to revise their predictions as to when it will develop. Some circles appear reconciled to an improvement "later in the year."

CURB'S PRICE TREND PROVES INDEFINITE

Lack of Definite Business News for Spring Holds Trading Down.

AVIATION SHARES RALLY

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Prices on the New York Curb Market fluctuated within a narrow trading area last week, with the result that no definite trend was discernible. There were several outstanding strong spots, and the usual sprinkling of weak spots, but most of the active issues showed small changes as traders sat back to await more definite information regarding the trend of spring business.

Public utilities again attracted the most attention with activity stimulated by a revival of merger rumors, but such recent leaders as American Superpower, Electric Bond & Share, Midwest Utilities and United Light & Power A closed 1 to 2¼ points net lower. American Gas & Electric and Sierra Pacific Electric were among the few to show substantial net gains, the last-named reaching a new high for the year.

Aviation shares, which have been rather sluggish for months, witnessed a flurry of buying on what appeared to be organized support for that group in expectation of good spring business. The few motor stocks listed were reactionary due to the absence of any outside demand, pending more definite information on the trend of spring sales and profits.

Several of the investment trust, trading and holding corporation shares reached the highest levels since the November break during the last week, but the gains were largely wiped out by profit-taking. Many of these issues are still selling below the break-up value computed on the basis of year-end balance sheets, and the recent sharp rise in securities has added materially to the market value of their security holdings.

Oils dragged along their low levels of the year as a result of the further increase in crude oil production and additional gasoline and crude price cuts, but they showed signs of strength as the week closed. The long awaited merger of the Standard Oil of New York and Vacuum Oil Companies was announced after the market closed on Friday.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IN getting the Radio Commissioners confirmed it was predicted the administration might inherit the aftermath of the Hughes fight. However, the only Hoover nominess the Senate stopped was Commissioner "Bill" Starbuck, of New York, a Tammany Democrat.

This was done, not by a Republican, but by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, a Progressive Democrat. Since Senator Wheeler by a single vote can delay further consideration of the nomination he can keep Mr. Starbuck dangling for some time if he so desires.

About the only thing that seems to have been changed by long residence abroad is Lady Astor's old-time Virginia accent. Yesterday, dropping her "g" in such words as "beginnin'," "havin'" and "workin'," she sounded more like an English woman.

Let this not be misunderstood as a criticism, for she was a tip-top speaker over the air. Lady Astor's remarkable personality was almost perfectly projected by the short waves across the great Atlantic. Nor has there been anything better from London than Fred Wile's introductory speech.

MOST every one has heard the two canary birds, "Blue Boy" and "Dickey," in the Cheerio morning program. Now listener demand has become so great that Miss Elizabeth Freeman, who owns the songsters, has consented to an additional daily appearance at 9:15 a. m. with the Parnassus Trio over WJZ stations.

The birds began learning their little stunt two years ago when Miss Freeman, then living in Washington, tuned in the trio each day for their special benefit.

Another of the exceptional musical programs given in the auditorium of the Library of Congress will be broadcast at 4:45 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by the Naval Station NAA. This time it will be the Liege String Quartet of Belgium.

THE meeting here Wednesday to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Rotary International will be heard throughout the United States. The organization has clubs in 53 countries and a membership of 150,000.

Revived by Jessica Dragonette the other night, "Valencia" sounded brand new.

A week from tonight the Mardi Gras is to be broadcast. What do you know about that!

A SPEAKER in London tired of being interrupted and, forgetting the microphone in front of him, turned to the audience and said:

"We seem to have a great many fools here tonight. Wouldn't it be advisable to hear one at a time?"

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Does Love Really Exist?"

GIRLS are still asking whether there really is such a thing as love. Whether love will last. Whether it is worth waiting for. Of course these girls mean the love that is spelled out in caps and exists between man and woman. And when a girl asks it is usually because of some painful observations if not some actual personal experience both disappointing and disillusioning. In such circumstances doubt arises. But a moment's thought could not fail to reassure for thousands upon thousands of homes today have only love to sustain them. The home where father has lost his job; or where mother is ill and desperately fighting the good fight. The home where daughter and her new baby have taken shelter while a worried young husband goes out to Detroit to find work.

These homes "carry on" and hold together and meet the crisis and weather the storm and soon the clouds have lifted and everyone is glad that no one lost heart. What does all this if not love? Father may be out of a job but mother loves him just the same and says "never mind, you are capable, you are needed, you will land something, don't you worry." And father squares his shoulders and grits his teeth and goes out to do battle for the finest woman in the world. He gets a job. The married daughter coming home with her baby does so because she knows all her young husband needs is a chance. She has faith, and she has love. And again a man who goes forth, and wins. And the homes go on because love is keeping the machinery moving. And no matter what cynics may say love is not just a legend but a vital living thing, a quality human and divine.

Read Jane's letter and then tell little doubting Jane what you think about love:

Dear Miss McDonald: I hope you will find my question worth answering, for it is becoming really serious to me, as well as to a number of other girls whom I know very well. Is it foolish to believe in love? Or to wait, for "the great person" to come along? Is it just "so much rot?" as everyone today seems to think. I hate to be foolish, so tell me: Is there really such a thing as love? Is it all a fairy tale to cheer up and console the foolish persons who are trying to "hold fast their dreams?" Is it true that love perishes with marriage? And if so, why was marriage ever instituted? Isn't there any emotion in life that has something behind it besides a primitive, physical instinct? Is the physical all we can hope for? Is it all we will find? Is even the best love just a strongly expressed selfishness, a desire to possess something? Is the world as bad as that? I'm not afraid of life; I am learning fast just to laugh at it. It isn't what is actually before me that I shrink from, but what may be waiting for me behind a cloak of beautiful lies. And hearing, as I have recently, how rotten the world is, is beginning to rather irritate me, where I used to be able to "laugh it off." I know that some of it is true, but I want to hold on to some of my illusions as long as I can. I feel I am too young to be losing them. Did I say that some of it I know is true? Well, I should have said a great deal of it. I see that every day everywhere. But I, gotten so I don't like to try to come to conclusions by myself. I hate to have my castles in the air shattered before my eyes. Can you, will you, help me? Tell me that there is such a thing as—clean, beautiful shining love. "JANE."

To us, letters like Jane's are pitiful, when but for love, "clean, beautiful, shining love," the world would be in ashes! Why do we work, and why do we live? The love that surrounds us impels us to. Jane, waiting wide-eyed, will see love coming "while he is yet a long way off" and be glad. Love. It is in every beautiful act, every generous gesture. It is in music. It is in beauty. It is life itself. Take love out of the world, and what is left?

One day in a great city hospital I saw an enormous young Jewish physician holding a tiny, squalling infant on his huge palm. He was a very homely young man, but at that moment his face was simply beautiful. He was looking down at the baby, estimating the chances of a successful operation for hare-lip. The baby could not have been more ugly looking, but that doctor might have been gazing upon some great beauty. I was intrigued. I asked questions. The baby had just been brought to the hospital from an ash can on a near by street. Forlorn, deformed, abandoned. A few ounces of unwanted humanity, it wailed out its discouragement with life. And 200 pounds of humanity looked down upon its misery with love.

"We will just give a nice Catholic name, little lady, and give you a nice new lip, so stop all this racket and behave yourself!" Love? What but love could give such men to the world? What else?

What do you think of love? Is it a myth? Or have you met it, known it, lived it?

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

Those who like to keep tabs on box-office statements can get out their paper and pencils this week. Two great drawing cards come to the local theaters. Miss Ethel Barrymore, at Poli's, will have her following with her all the way—and so, too, Mr. Flo Ziegfeld, coming to the National with "Show Boat." Mr. Ziegfeld, of course, is not in the cast.

* * * *

* * * *

Just after he was appointed associate director of the George Washington bicentennial celebration, to be staged in 1932, Representative Sol. Bloom, of New York, called this the greatest show town in the world; but he didn't mean in the theater sense. Although he is an old showman himself, having helped stage the great World's Fair in Chicago, back in the early '90s, Sol. Bloom sees showmanship in other relations than that of the theater. Of course, if Washington always had attractions on par with the Barrymore and the Ziegfeld productions, it might be listed a great show town in the estimation of Variety.

* * * *

The box-office figures this week, for the two houses on either side of Pennsylvania avenue, will resemble somewhat the annual statement of the Treasury Department. They will be fulsome. Mr. Ziegfeld will cart away a good round barrel of golden dollars and the Barrymore exchequer will be augmented to the extent where the lady, if she likes, may purchase a new fur coat.

* * * *

Just after the "Show Boat" festival deserts the stage of the National, the Stratford-Upon-Avon Festival Players will take up the thespians' burden with a series of Shakespearean plays.

* * * *

Over at Poli's while Shakespeare has another inning in Washington, Victor Herbert's music will be unloosened from the score of "Babes in Toyland"—not seen here since the Traffic Bureau was moved to the south side of the Avenue.

* * * *

Mr. George C. Tyler, the producer, feels another all-star cast coming on him. Now that he has safely launched Hatcher Hughes' combined farce-tragedy-comedy, "It's a Great World," on the Broadway scene, Mr. Tyler has started rehearsing Mrs. Fiske in a revival of "The Rivals"—with James T. Powers scheduled to play Bob Acres. Washington saw some such combination as this about three years ago; but New York has yet to see Mrs. Fiske as Mrs. Malaprop. So there is a treat in store.

GAYETY

"Snappy" Gladys Clark leads one of the best shows to grace a burlesque stage in some time in "Girls From the Follies." This production introduces the "Alabama" Duvall sisters, Fiddling Bernie Green, Marion Ramon, Bessie Davis and Millie Convey.

The Duvall sisters came in for much of the limelight yesterday. That "Alabama" Zona put over some clever work in her dancing and vocal numbers and appeared in some stunning costumes. She dominated the entire performance, with her pleasing personality. Betty, a beautiful tinted haired soubrette, brought the house down several times. A clever dancer, who sings in a worthy manner, she took several encores. Bernie Green is about the cream of the comics to appear here this season. Fiddling his way through, he made many friends yesterday. Bessie Davis and Millie Convey did their part to make this show one of the best on the Mutual Circuit.

The usual Auction and Amateur nights on Wednesday and Friday with a show ranked as Mutual's best entertainment should make the Gayety a busy theater this week.

Games to Be Taught At Leaders' Institute

A leaders' institute, intended to offer ten evenings of instruction in games, party programs and stunts for colored people, will be held every Tuesday night, beginning March 4, at the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, U street and Vermont avenue. Registration fees of $1 each will be charged to defray costs of equipment used in demonstrations.

The institute is sponsored by the Boys Club of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Community Center, Girls' Friendly Organization of America, Mount Zion Community House, physical education department of schools, Playground and Recreation Association, Newsboys Club, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Phillis Wheatley Club.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, 23.

WHEN one is occupied holding one's evening cape in just the proper way, when one is sporting beautiful long evening gloves—when one is faced with the necessity of having powder, rouge, lipstick, tiny bag atomizer and possibly a lorgnette or fan, well—one probably lets out a wild yelp to Dare and asks her just what is the thing to do about it.

Whereupon Dare answers that the problem seems to have been recently solved by a pretty square or round evening bag, very elegant and jewelry-like in appearance, which is attached by a double silver chain, which in turn is attached to a wide bracelet worn quite high on the arm—in point of absolute fact, right at the bend of the arm that is holding the evening coat together.

The bracelet is of real jewels, of course, and the bag is contrived with embroidery and brilliants, or pearls, or cut steel, to match it.

* * * *

Have you a padded cell for your little fox? No, I haven't lost my mind—I'm speaking of this week's leaflet, which tells you how to make a dandy little bag in which to keep friend fox fur out of harm's way, hanging in your closet.

Some very simple material, two embroidery hoops and a stamped self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and you will have a padded cage for him.

* * * *

* * * *

All is not confectionery that you eat—Martial et Armand's semidressy frock was good enough to eat, but we weren't hungry that day, so we decided to sketch it for you instead.

'Twas rose beige crepe, and the front fichu and cuffs were of pink georgette crepe. What with pleats, hemstitching and gathers, it had just enough to be feminine and not a speck too much to rob it of chic.

The Couturiers.

The House of Premet has withstood the vicissitudes of time, war and weather, and apart from all that it is pronounced "pre-may"—that's an easy one, which won't take you ten times saying to pronounce.

* * * *

It's so easy to walk in loveliness—easier, even, then to not do so and to just walk to get there. I want every woman in the world to have a graceful carriage, so I just made an extra leaflet this week which tells you how to go about acquiring one. It will take an extra letter, addressed to Dare, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * * *

And you'll find lots of interesting things in the weekly Dare fashion letter, in The Washington Post each Sunday.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF February 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:40 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m.

The astrological indications for this date are slightly unfavorable, but the influences can be easily overcome by conscious effort and a will to win. A journey may be planned, at the end of which is pictured success.

Children born on this February 24 will be sufficient unto themselves, and they will prefer to suffer the lessons of experience than to listen to those who have "passed the road before." They will have bright and vivacious natures.

You have an excess of imagination which is just as reprehensible as a lack of this same trait. It sometimes leads you into vistas of delight, but other times it causes you undue worry and distress. As you are not an optimist, it is easier for you to paint the unknown in drab colors than bright ones. Be you a man or a women, you are inclined to set your wife or husband, like Humpty Dumpty, on a wall of idealism, and they are certain to fall off as soon as they are placed there. You refuse to face unpleasant facts about them, or to resign yourself to practical conditions and to learn to love your mates for what they truly are. Looking upon the highest, you may possibly trip up over the lowest.

You are naturally a very hard and conscientious worker, but you allow things to worry you. If things are not "just so," you are all at sea. You have considerable self-reliance—in fact is it difficult for you to relegate any of your duties to another. You are always ready to help any one else with their burdens, but you try to carry your own. In no way are you ever a shirk. In health your greatest danger is more mental than physical.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Vegetables and fruits are rich in mineral matter, which the body must have to build and repair bones, teeth, and other tissues and to keep it in good running order. They also contain vitamins necessary for health and normal growth and development of the body.

In the world food fair, the United States would probably have more kinds of fruits and vegetables than any other one country, because we have great range of climate and soil and also because many of the choicest fruits and vegetables from all over the world have been brought here. At least 50 vegetables and almost as many fruits are now grown in this country. Each of these has a different flavor or texture or appearance, and few, if any, are exactly alike in food value. Even among the leafy vegetables, which are considered especially valuable for vitamins and minerals, you have a choice of spinach, cabbage, lettuce, beet tops, kale, chard, dandelion greens, and many more. These green-leaf vegetables and tomatoes, carrots, lemons, grapefruit and oranges, because of the vitamins they contain, are often especially recommended for growing young people, though they are needed by everybody.

WORK ON BRIDGE

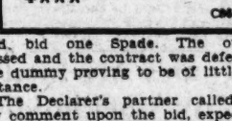
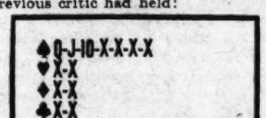
I once watched a table of novices who were making their Auction Bridge "debut." One of them held:



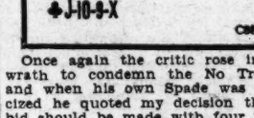
and, bid one Spade. The others passed and the contract was defeated, the dummy proving to be of little assistance.

The Declarer's partner called for my comment upon the bid, expecting that I would criticize it severely, and was somewhat shocked when I stated that it was perfectly sound and that a pass would have been unsound. I pointed out that the bid was warranted as the hand contained three sure high-card tricks and a chance of making one low-card trick.

A few moments later there was another commotion at the table and I was called over again. This time the previous critic had held:



He had bid one Spade, his partner overcalling with No Trump. The partner's hand was:



Once again the critic rose in his wrath to condemn the No Trump; and when his own Spade was criticized he quoted my decision that a bid should be made with four probable tricks and claimed that his hand contained at least five sure tricks. I pointed out to the young man that I had said that a bid must be based upon at least two high-card tricks and two other probable tricks.

His hand was worth five tricks, with Spades the trump; but not a trick for any other declaration. Bidding originally with a long weak suit is apt to result disastrously when the partner shifts to No Trump or some other suit, or when he doubles an adverse bid. It is all right to bid such suits after a partner has bid because a secondary bid does not guarantee high cards, but shows length in the suit named.

The player with seven Spades made a second and even more inexcusable error when he permitted his partner's No Trump to stand; he should have rebid his Spades, although that would not have wiped out the misinformation given by his first bid.

There might be a freak suit of such length that it should be bid with nothing on the side; in Auction nine or ten cards of a major would call for a preempting bid of three or more. Such a bid does not carry and high-card guarantee, but shows that, with the suit named as trump, the hand can win within a trick or two of the bid.

BRIDGERS, ATTENTION!

Mr. Work has prepared a splendid 48-page booklet entitled "Playing Problems," which presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding, for each hand with the reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reasons for such answers in complete detail, all written in Mr. Work's clear and interesting style.

This booklet, "Playing Problems," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps, to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

SHARKEY PICKED TO KNOCKOUT SCOTT THURSDAY

FIGHT TICKET SALES NEED STAMPEDE

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—The customers who are infesting this this place in great numbers at present are manifesting extreme diffidence in the face of their golden opportunity to buy $27.50 tickets for the impending program of prize fights under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation. I report this shpness or apathy of the paying trade in no spirit of malicious exultation, notwithstanding my conviction that prize fighters, and particularly heavyweights, should be paid on the same basis as common labor, with no pay for the clinches or intermissions, the failure of this promotion might be interpreted to mean that the customers were not interested in heavyweight prize fights in Miami.

In that event, I might be assigned to remain at home among the snowdrifts next winter and my social espirations, which already have carried me into some of the lower haunts of the upper classes in Palm Beach as a modest beginning, would be thwarted abruptly.

There are even more paying customers hereabouts this year than there were last year, and they seem quiet willing to pay for everything but prize-fight tickets at $27.50. They are patronizing hotels which charge $30 a day for a room and restaurants where it is possible to spend $7.50 for a simple breakfast, and impossible to spend much less, and are patronizing the horse and dog tracks and the halls of chance. ut they are not patronizing the box office of the Madison Square Corporation in the half-basement arcade of the McAllister Hotel on the bay front, where the boys sit behind the wickets, eager to serve.

Fight Contingent Seems Lost.

The prize fighter contingent, a very small group in town, as compared to thousands who have come down for the horse and dog races, the Ja Alai, the faro, the wine, the beer and the bathing, seem lost in the daily hubbub of indoor and alfresco amusements. Fainting Phillip Scott, the only one in town who seems able to remember the name of Jack Sharkey's opponent of next Thursday evening, lives in a quiet hotel on the bay front. His manager, James J. Johnston, has established his family circle in a modest apartment on Miami Beach. Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, lives somewhere else in the commonplace style of a local grocery man. Sharkey and his manager, John Buckley, have brought their wives and kiddies with them, and Frank January Bruen, manager of the prize fights and general manager of the race track, as well, goes home at night like a New Haven commuter to while away a blameless hour listening to the soapsuds boys on his radio before taking his bed-time draught of orange juice.

In the morning before the hour of starting for the horse track at Hialeah, which seems to be the principal interest of all present, including the pugilists and their attaches, the boys congregate in the arcade of the McAllister or ogle the passers by as if trying to shoot them into the box office by the power of suggestion and concerted will. But the customers are almost impervious to suggestion and have a superior will of their own

Jacobs Likes Those Stampedes.

Mr. Johnston was standing near the box office with Mr. Jacobs, the official ticket scalper of the Garden Corporation, this morning when a customer walked out examining two $15 tickets.

"Look at that mob storming the ticket windows," Mr. Johnston exclaimed excitedly.

"Yes," Mr. Jacobs agreed brightly. "But I like these stampedes."

I understand now that the business men connected with the enterprise do not expect more than $250,000 worth of trade Thursday evening, about 60 per cent of the capacity for which they builded their expectations and their arena. Ths downward revision of the business may be blamed against the New York prize fight commissioner, who extended their authority to the State of Florida and nominated Fainting Phillip for Sharkey's opponent too soon after he swooned the floor in round one of a $100,000 exhibition with Otto von Porat, of New York, claiming to have been fouled in a grievous manner.

The socially refined millionaires of New York ordinarily buy up about 60 per cent of the preferred seats at the Garden's Corporation's major productions, and they may be holding off in this case, deeming it hardly worth the convenience to struggle out to the arena in the traffic and the crowd, if any, to see Fainting Phillip faint without due cause again.

As an unfortunate aftermath of the refined boxing exhibition produced under the auspices of the socially exclusive Oasis Club in Pal Beach Wednesday, both Fainting Phillip and Mr. Johnston have helped themselves to a large amount of umbrage and have practically severed relationswith the Palm Beach set.

Johnston Commits A Faux Pas.

It now develops that although Phillip broke camp here and went to Palm Beach only at the cost of considerable inconvenience, he was not accorded the social courtesies which he had been led to expect and it also develops that Mr. Johnston committed a serious faux pas when he mistook one of the most refined millionaires in Palm Beach for the janitor of the Oasis Club.

"I should have known that nobody but a millionaire would have the nerve to go around Palm Beach looking like a bum." Mr. Johnston explained today, "but I was out of temper myself. These millionaires tried to shove my Phillip into a dressing room with a lot of common sparring partners while assigning separate dressing rooms to a lot of bums owned by Neddie Hutton, the millionaire, so I looked around for the janitor to make a complaint. I picked out the commonest looking bum I could find and told him to get Hutton's bums out of the individual dressing rooms so that my Phillip and his sparring partners could dress and, while he did this for me, I thought he seemed a little put out by the incident. It was not until after the show that I learned of my error but by that time I was out of temper again because they tried to cut Phillip's boxing down to two minute rounds in order to make a place on the card for Hutton's bums.

Bob Considine Is Beaten in Net Upset

Defending Maryland Indoor Champion Bows to Keiles.

Dooley Mitchell Lone D. C. Netman Left in Singles Play.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23. — Dooly Mitchell, Washington's ranking No. 2 player, remains the only District netman in the Maryland indoor championship being played on the indoor courts at the Fifth Regiment Armory here. Mitchell advanced to the semifinals today after nosing out Frank Shore, District junior champion, by record-breaking scores, 6—2, 3—6, 16—14.

In the biggest upset of the indoor season, Alex Keiles defeated Bob Considine, holder of the title for the last two years, after dropping the first set to the Washingtonian. Considine started off wit hsome unbeatable tennis and garnered the first set with the loss of but one game. Here the Baltimorean braced and warded off the District man throughout the rest of the long match.

Considine Loses Yet Wins More Games.

Considine, whose play this winter has caused the experts to scratch their heads, was at his very best through most of the match. Keiles hit hard al lthe way and deserved to win. By an odd freak of scoring Considine won more games than Keiles, the scores being 1—6, 8—6, 6—4.

The Mitchell-Shore encounter soon developed into a serving battle. Neither could handle the other's terrific delivery and the result was the enlarged last set. Mitchell finally returned a series of Shore's bullet-like serves to capture the thirtieth game.

Stam-eYomans Defeated In Doubles.

Keiles, paired with Shapiro, continued his streak by eliminating Colin Stam and Clyde Yeomans, of Washington, in a first round doubles match. Other District netmen participating in the doubles are Dooly Mitchell, who is teamed with Bill Buchanan; Frank Shore, who will play with Billy Jacobs, and Bob Burwell, who is Beuchelt's partner.

The singles semifinal matches will be played next Saturday. The finals will get under way on Sunday at 2:30

Strachan and Rawlins Reach Squash Final

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Donald Strachan, of Philadelphia, today made his way into the finals of the national squash racquets championships singles by a suprise victory over J. Lawrence Pool, of New York, the defending champion. Herbert N. Rawlins, another New York player, also qualified for the final, defeating Neil Sullivan, also of Philadelphia.

Strachan defeated Pool after a long, hard battle, 15—12, 15—7, 5—15, 9—15, 15—8, while Rawlins, 1928 champion, downed Sullivan after losing the first game, 5—15, 15—8, 15—14, 17—15.

Leo Lomski-Braddock Referee Is Suspended

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Davie Miller, veteran Chicago boxing referee, has been indefinitely suspended by the Illinois State Athletic Commission for failure to explain his scoring of the Leo Lomski-Jimmy Braddock bout at the Coliseum January 17.

The bout first was declared a draw, Miller's card deciding the issue when one judge voted for Lomski and the other cast his ballot for Braddock. Eleven days after the fight a check-up was made and it was learned that Miller's card, properly totaled, favored Lomski, and the commission declared the Aberdeen, Wash., boxer the winner.

Miller ignored three invitations to appear before the commission to explain the error, resulting in the suspension.

He first explained to newspapermen that perspiration had blurred the figures on the card and that the announcer, Al Smith, had grabbed it from his hand before he had an opportunity to make a second check.

It was said the error was discovered immediately after the fight by Walter M. George, who last Tuesday suddenly resigned as secretary of the commission. The incident was not reported to the commissioners until eleven days later.

Purdue Is Near Title In Big Ten Court Race

Chicago, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Purdue tonight appeared to have the 1930 Western Conference basket ball title pretty well clinched—thanks to some entirely unexpected cooperation from the University of Chicago.

The Boilermakers scored their sixth consecutive Big Ten victory last night at Minneapolis, trouncing Minnesota, 42 to 24, in the first meeting of the season of the teams, and has only four games left on its schedule.

Chicago, kicked around for seven straight defeats, arose last night to defeat Wisconsin, 23 to 21, and virtually wreck the Badgers' chances of even sharing in the title. Wisconsin had won five and lost one before meeting Chicago, and apparently came to Chicago to go through the motions of working another game on the schedule. But the Maroons, with an injured forward, Paul Stephenson, doing a Frank Merriwell, cut loose in the final four minutes and overcame a 7-point Wisconsin lead to win their first game of the conference season.

9 Nats Leave Tomorrow For Camp

Manager Hopes Marberry Will Report on Thursday.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

SEVERAL changes have been made in the plans of the Nationals due to report for first practice at the Biloxi training camp next Thursday morning, the result being that the delegation leaving from here tomorrow morning will be made up of Manager Walter Johnson, eight of his cohorts, and one who is willing to be. This latter is a friend of Coach Al Schacht's, position and ability unknown, who has been given permission to take the trip for a tryout.

Schacht is coming on from New York to start from here, where he will join his side-kick, Nick Altrock, the only real Washingtonian except Skipper Johnson. Others to make up the party are Pitcher Irving Hadley, now heading this way from his home at Lynn, Mass.; Pitcher Don Savidge, who winters at Berwyck, Penn.; Pitcher Paul Daugert, the Jersey City sempro who was signed last week; Nelson Jester, catcher and infielder, who lives at Chincoteague, Va., and Catcher Gordon Phelps, the Bowie, Md., bearcat.

Ruel Goes Direct To Camp.

Catcher Herold "Muddy" Ruel, originally slated to go from here, is now expected to go direct from his St. Louis home to Biloxi. He, Phelps and Jester, by the way, likely are slated to do all of the early receiving chores at the camp, for both Roy Stewart and Bennie Tate aparently are making holdout gestures and have not yet affixed their "John Hancocks" on the well-known dotted lines of contracts.

Another whom Manager Johnson hoped would not balk at salary terms and would be on hand with the first bunch is Pitcher Fred Marberry. He is being counted upon heavily in the coming race but, unless President Clark Griffith is keeping it a secret, the big Texan also is still out in the cold and will be late in showing up.

Marberry, Braxton Unsigned.

Marberry and Braxton are the only pitchers who have not accepted terms, but the latter, because he rounds to condition so quickly, is not due to show up until the second squad, so he has until March 9, or thereabouts, to continue his salary argument with the Nat owner.

The others ordered to report for training Thursday are expected to make the trip direct from their homes to Biloxi. They are Pitchers Bob Burke, "Sad Sam" Jones, Adolph Liska, Carlos Moore, Herbert Pyle and Myles Thomas and Outfielders Sam West and Emile Barnes. The latter two presumably have been ordered to report with the first squad so that they may be gotten into extra good shape in case Outfielder Leon "Goose" Goslin extends his salary argument with Griffith until near or after the scheduled start of the season.

Shenandoah Field Trials Scheduled March 17-18

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 23.—Annual spring trials of the Shenandoah Field Trials Club will be held near here March 17 and 18, it was decided last night at a meeting of the club. There will be an all-age stake and a puppy stake. All pointers and setters that have not won in open stakes and which belong to members of the club are eligible for the all-age. Pointers and setters whelped on or after January 1, 1929, are eligible in the puppy stake. A special prize will be awarded the best puppy whelped on and after January a year ago which is not a winner in the regular puppy stake. Sterling silver trophies will be awarded in first, second and third places in both stakes.

Judges for the trials will be Matthew Trimble, jr., Kensington, Md., and Thomas B. Baldwin, Washington, D. C. The club will have headquarters at the George Washington Hotel during the meeting. The drawing for both stakes will be held March 16.

The club also decided to hold the fall trials October 27 and 28, to consist of a derby and all-age stake. Letters were received from a number of prominent sportsmen of Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia, as well as many parts of Virginia, indicating their intention of attending the trials this spring and next fall.

BOXING TEAM BOLSTERED AT G. U.

Murphy Back Today; Cordovano May Return.

HENRY MURPHY, a valuable member of the 1929 team, is expected to report to Georgetown's boxing team today for the first time since he laid aside the gloves because of parental objections a year ago. He now has full consent of his parents to his ring participation.

Murphy, a lightweight, fought out of his class most of the time last season but gained a notable knockout victory over Norris, of Western Maryland, and pushed Hall, of Navy, for the decision in the welterweight division.

Georgetown, with Murphy back, hopes to present its strongest front of the current campaign when it it meets Western Maryland at Westminster on March 8. There is a chance that Sam Cordovano also will return to the Blue and Gray for that match.

Return of Cordovan Would Be Welcomed.

Cordovano has gone to New York for a short visit with Lou Little and the Columbia University football staff, with whom he will serve regularly starting next September as line coach. Upon his return, Georgetown will be considerably strengthened in the heavyweight class.

Bright Zagreous Wins Auteuil Chase

Auteuil, France, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Bright Zagreous, owned by the Greek shipowner, Ambtatielos, redeemed himself for five defeats on the Riviera when he won the Clermont Tomerre Steeplechase at 3 miles for all ages here today.

Bright Zagreous, son of Zagreous out of Belle Ireland, was the favorite five times in Riviera races, but failed to earn his brackets. He won today by a short head from Isolateur with Bigorneau third. The winner paid 2 to 1 in the beeting.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

THE college track experts are picking Pennsylvania to pluck major honors from the ninth annual championship meeting of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America in New York City Saturday night.

They are leaning to Pennsylvania principally because of the presence on Lawson Robertson's squad of big Barney Berlinger. This strapping youth, they predict, will score heavily for the Red and Blue in four events, even surpassing his enviable feat of 1929 when he led the individual scorers of the meet with 9¼ points.

But the wise boys, while keenly mindful of Berlinger's potential point-winning ability, are convinced that the performances of LaMoine Boyle, Bill McKniff, Bill Newkirk, Fred Steiner, Jesse Montgomery and Roland Ritchie in four events will gain for the Quaker City school the decisive margin of victory.

Georgetown Team Rated as Contender.

Georgetown, whether or not Karl Wildermuth competes, will be a contender, and strong opposition also should be expected from Harvard and New York University, say the prognosticators. Georgetown, with Wildermuth, would, of course, be much more dangerous to Penn than without him, as he probably represents about 7 points in the 70-yard dash and broad jump.

Pennsylvania's team, strongest that Robertson has whipped together since 1924 when the Red and Blue last won the I. C. 4-A crown, should score in nine of the eleven events on the program, according to the views of the experts.

Berlinger is picked to win the pole valut and win second in the shot and high jump. He is rated about fourth in the broad jump. Boyle, who did 24 feet, 7 7-16 inches in the outdoor championships last spring, is favored to win the broad jump title. Sol Furth, of New York U., won the title last winter and is picked to take second this year.

McKniff May Press Hickey In Mile.

Steiner should gain a second or third for Penn in the 35-pound weight throw, while Newkirk is expected to do the same in the high jump. McKniff is favored to provide the strongest opposition for Joe Hickey, mile champion, and Ritchie is given a fine chance of grabbing third place in the two mile, which already is being handed to Paul Rekers, sensational Penn State runner.

Montgomery and McKniff look good to the selectors as members of Penn's two-mile relay team. Bates and Georgetown are conceded better chances of winning the two-mile relay. Penn's one-mile team has done 3:28, which may be good enough to gain a place.

The only event in which Penn should be blanked is the 70-yard high hurdles. Furth, of N. Y. U.; Knoblock, of Pitt; Stollwerck, of Colgate; Kjellstrom, of Georgetown, and Marduller and Record of Harvard, are the timber toppers best liked by the experts.

Sexton Given Chance at Point Honors.

Fred Backer, who finished fifth for Penn in the 70-yard dash last winter, is on the scene again and finds himself among the probable place winners behind Jimmy Daley, of Holy Cross, the champion.

Sexton is expected to push Berlinger for individual honors. The Georgetown all-around star is favored by many to take the high jump and shot put in addition to the 35-pound weight throw, in which he is champion.

EAGLES BEAT BROOKLYN CASEYS

Sweeney's Hot Hand Clinches Game by 34-23 Score.

THE Brooklyn Knights of Columbus Five could not stop Joe Sweeney yesterday afternoon on the Silver Spring Armory floor and the Skinker Eagles romped off with a 34 to 23 victory. But for Sweeney the invaders might have fared better, Joe accounted for fifteen points, looping seven baskets, a majority of which were injected at timely intervals.

Feber, Bennie and Sweeney put the Eagles well in command at the start, but Crane and Dugan dropped a few lengthy shots late in the first half which brought the Caseys within two points of the Eagles at intermission. The count at half tme was 16 to 14.

Crane Stars for Knights.

Crane, who gave a clever performance throughout for the Caseys, put his team on even terms with the Eagles soon after the second half got under way. His third basket evencd the count at 19 to 19. It was at this stage that Sweeney opened his sensational scoring spree, netting the ball four times within a few minutes. Two of his baskets were due entirely to his own elusive dodging.

Sweeney's wholesale scoring took much of the fight out of the Caseys and they never threatened thereafter.

Manager Bernie Peacock, of the Eagles announced yesterday that his team will entertain the Canadian champions of Montreal at Silver Spring next Sunday afternoon.

When apprised yesterday following the game between the Brooklyn K. of C. and Skinker Bros. Eagles fives that the Skinker Bros. Team is under ban by the District A. A. U., Manager Ray Wilson, of the Brooklyn Team, stated that he was under the impression that the Skinker Bros. Team was in good amateur standing and declared that yesterday's game will be the last played between the two teams.

Wilson said that much care has been exercised to preserve the amateur status of the K. of C. players and that if he had known that the Skinker Team was of other than amateur status that the game would have been canceled the moment he learned the fact.

Marshall Five Plays West Va. Wednesday

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Fresh from their second victory over Wesleyan, the Marshall College Quintet will climax a highly successful season Wednesday when it journeys to Morgantown for a game with the West Virginia Mountaineers.

The Marshall men, at the present time, are the logical claimants to the championship of the West Virginia Conference, having won ten conference games out of eleven starts. West Virginia split its two-game series with Wesleyan, and since the Herd came out victorious in both clashes with the Cats, the Big Green could almost be considered the favorite in this week's fray.

The Mountaineers are considerably stronger at the present time, however, than they were when they dropped the second game to Wesleyan. They showed plenty of class here a few weeks ago to triumph over the high-flying Generals of Washington and Lee.

Maryland Plays Kentucky In S. Conference Tourney

ATLANTA, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Alabama, Duke, Washington and Lee and Kentucky today were rated by the Southern Conference basket ball committee as the four strongest contenders for the basket ball championship in the annual tournament here this week. Duke, by virtue of the victory scored over the previously undefeated Generals last week, was given the second rating, next to Alabama. The Crimson Tide has a perfect record for the season with ten wins and no defeats.

Tennessee and North Carolina were the other two teams given a preference rating by the committee.

The committee's rating is made to prevent the stronger teams clashing in the opening games of the tournament, thereby preventing their elimination before the competition gets well under way.

Following the drawings, the committee set the time of play for contesting teams. The opening schedule follows:

Friday—1 o'clock, Sewanee vs. North Carolina State; 2, University of Mississippi vs. Washington and Lee; 3, Alabama vs. Clemson; 4, Tennessee vs. V. M. I.; 5, University of Louisville vs. Duke; 7, Kentucky vs. Maryland; 8, North Carolina vs. Georgia; 9, Georgia Tech vs. Tulane.

It was announced after the meeting that eighteen teams had sought to enter the tournament, but conference rules limit the number to sixteen. On the basis of their season's records Florida and the Mississippi Aggies were eliminated from participation.

The tournament, starting Friday, continues through Tuesday, with no contests Sunday.

It was announced by the committee that expenses for the tournament would be higher than in past seasons because of the large number of teams entered from the extreme northern and southern ends of the conference.

Alabama	10	0	1.000
Duke	9	1	.900
Kentucky	9	1	.900
W. and L.	9	2	.818

N. Y. Writer Also Picks Campolo

Briton Appears Target for Sailor's Right, Says Ned Brown.

By NED BROWN.

MIAMI, Feb. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—As the various fighters who are to take part in the heavyweight blowdeo Thursday night in the newest Madison Square Garden Stadium, just completed here in Miami, enter the final stages of their training it looks to me as if the winners will be Jack Sharkey by a knockout, Victoria Campolo, Jimmy Maloney, Tommy Loughran and Raoul Bianci.

Sharkey looks too tough to me for Phil Scott, heavyweight champion of England; Campolo improved enough to get away with Risko, Loughran too classy for Charles, Maloney too good for Bouguillon and Bianci too experienced for Daring.

Of these, the hardest to pick, apparently, is the affair between Risko and Campolo. Johnny, the India rubber baker boy of Cleveland, is a rough and ready customer, and he has the faculty of upsetting the dope at all times, whether you pick him to win or lose.

The battle between Phil Scott and Jack Sharkey, the American heavyweight champion, is the big feature on the card, naturally, although it may or may not supply the most entertainment for the customers next Thursday night. The fight is by way of being the "semifinal" for the heavyweight championship of the world, by the grace of the New York State Boxing Commission. The winner is pledged to meet Max Schmeling, of Germany, in what will be the final bout to establish the ultimate winner's title to the championship vacated by Gene Tunney.

English Hope in Good Shape.

Now, while I think that Sharkey will win, and by a knockout, I also believe that Phil Scott has a royal chance to spring one of those big surprises. Never have I seen the English heavyweight champion in as good physical condition as he is today. Never has he exhibited the cock-sureness and confidence before an important fistic contest that he shows today. Scott tells me that he will not only win this fight with Sharkey, but that he will knock out the American champion in the bargain.

Neither Sharkey nor Scott has shown himself to be the great knockout artist in the past, although Sharkey, of late, has developed a right-hand wallop that is capable of stopping any heavyweight. Sharkey, always a clever boxer, has been showing a devastating execution with that right hand, and Scott, in his workouts, has shown a wide opening that appears to invite a smack of this kind. Notably, has he looked like a "sucker for the right" in his sparrings with little Charley Hahn, a middleweight who has him all at sea when he starts rushing in pell mell and slinging wild rights with abandon.

However, Scott is a straight puncher, and a straight puncher is just the kind that would have a pretty good chance of stabbing Mr. Sharkey off center when he starts coming in.

Partners Get Under Defense.

The Scott left jab works to perfection at times, when he is facing a tall fellow, but his sparring partners have had no difficulty in getting under that outstretched left hand and clouting him amidships.

Sharkey is a weaver—an elusive target. He has a sort of half turn and full shift that would spell curtains for Scott if Phil should do in the actual battle what he has had a tendency to do in practice—stick out that left and then shoot over his right.

Sharkey will enter the ring at about 196 pounds, he tells me, and up to date he has preserved a mighty good condition. Scott will weigh in the neighborhood of 200, he says, of at least his manager, Jimmy Johnston says for him, and he will tower over Sharkey at least an inch or two.

Both seem to have perfected their wind. Scott especially amazes me by his calm breathing at the finish of his sparring, whether in the heat of the Florida sun or the chill of one of these postshower breezes, for he has worked out in both.

Sharkey, satisfied with his condition, has about completed his intensive training, and from now on until he is ready to enter the ring will confine himself to polishing up his boxing, his timing and his general accuracy.

Apparent Gob Expects K. O. Victory.

Throughout his preparation, Sharkey has stressed his punching. It is easily apparent that the gob expects to end the contest with a knockout, and he has not trained so much for a long fight as he has for a short and sharp one.

Scott, on the other hand, has been going about his work as if he anticipated a long drawn-out battle, one that probably will stretch out through the fifteen rounds.

They say that Scott is such a wonderful boxer. He has shown great boxing skill in the past—at times—but not at any time has he shown any better boxing ability than Loughran almost invariably exhibits. Scott, like Sharkey, is a more capable fighter than he usually shows. Neither of them always shows his best in the ring. Sharkey, especially, has put on some terrible exhibitions against fighters that he should have beaten easily, and probably could have beaten more decisively than he did.

JOHNNY DAWSON WINS.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, defeated Ossie Carlton of Houston, defending champion, 2 and 1 this afternoon to win the sixteenth annual Houston Country Club Invitational Golf Tournament. Both shot close to par golf.

3 D. C. ATHLETES ON VIRGINIA FROSH HONOR ROLL

Trio Leaders In Sports, Studies

Won Student Honors as Well as in Athletics.

By MIKE KELLEY
(Eastern High School Coach).

JUDGING from the recently issued honor roll of the freshman class for the first half of the current school year, the University of Virginia has reason to think highly of the caliber of Washington high school athletes. Three local youths, Gene Stevens, Homer Drissel and Max Miller, all prominently figuring in high school sport circles during their scholastic careers, made highest honors in the classroom for the semester just ended at the Virginia institution, and in doing so have reflected great credit not only on themselves but on the schools from which they were graduated and District high school athletics in general.

Stevens is a former Central boy who captained the 1928 football team, was a member of the track squad for several seasons, and was one of the most popular boys in school because of his retiring disposition and general willingness to do his best at all times. He played in the back field last fall on the freshman eleven at Virginia and of late has been showing his wares in the ring with the yearling boxing team. Incidentally, Gene has won all of his bouts so far and is becoming quite a favorite with Cavalier boxing fans.

Drissel Field General of Va. Cub Eleven.

Homer Drissel was a versatile athlete at Tech. He was quarter back of McKinley's 1928 eleven, interhigh champions, and was picked as quarter back on the all-high team by most critics. He captained the 1929 baseball team that was nosed out by Eastern for the title, ran a leg on the indoor mile relay team, and also performed in the javelin throw in the last interscholastic track meet. Drissel was the field general for the Cavalier Frosh grid squad in 1929 and he did a good job.

Max Miller is an Eastern graduate. He played center on the football team in 1928 and was an aggressive and spirited youth. Though rather small, he made up for any lack of weight by a fighting spirit that would not be denied. Miller was a colonel in his cadet regiment and a leader in the classroom as well. He reported for practice with the Virginia Freshman Eleven, along with Stevens and Drissel, but suffered an injury that forced him to give up the game at least for the year.

Trio Had Time for Books as Well as Sports.

These three boys, continuing their work in athletics during the past semester, still found time to hit the books and the fact that their names appear on the honor roll clearly indicates that they realize the purpose for which they entered the Virginia school.

Coaches locally might well study these boys' records before the eyes of prospective athletes, with the admonition, "Go thou, and do likewise."

Business Whirlwinds Beat Stewarts, 40-32

The Business Whirlwind Five made it two in a row over the Stewart Bros. Photographers and six straight victories yesterday when they defeated their rivals for the District A. A. U. 145-pound championship, 40 to 32. The contest was a preliminary to the Eagle-Brooklyn K. of C. game at the Silver Spring Armory.

The Whirlwinds will meet the Eastern Prep Five tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Eastern High School.

3 COLLEGIATE GAMES HERE FOR WEEK

Local Quintets Play 5 Games on Foreign Courts.

LOCAL college basket ball, rapidly drawing to a close for the 1930 season, offers three games this week. Five other games will be played out of town by local teams.

In the home contests, Maryland will entertain St. John's, of Annapolis, tomorrow night at College Park; Georgetown will act as host to Western Maryland Thursday night at the Hilltop, and George Washington will engage Virginia Medical Friday night at the H Street Court.

The only remaining local game after this week is the second Catholic-George Washington clash to be held on Friday, March 6, in the G. W. Gymnasium. When Georgetown meets Columbia at New York on March 7 the campaign for District collegians will have been finished.

Catholic University Five, which has dropped fifteen straight games, will play four games this week on the road. On Wednesday night the Cardinals will tackle Johns Hopkins in a return contest at Baltimore and then will move to New York City for three games with the Seventh Regiment National Guards, Fordham University and Crescent A. C., in that order.

Maryland at Atlanta.

Maryland, on Friday, will be in Atlanta, Ga., ready for the opening of the Southern Conference championship tournament. American University will travel to Annapolis the same night to oppose St. John's. On Saturday night Georgetown will face Johns Hopkins in a return at Baltimore.

St. John's has turned in some notable performances this season, but has not been consistent. It is doubtful, judging from the records, that the Johnnies can defeat Maryland, but they should give American a hard battle. Maryland is enjoying one of its most successful basket ball seasons and has won 15 of its 20 games to date.

Georgetown will have an opportunity Thursday night to gain revenge for the football defeat inflicted by Western Maryland last fall. The Green Terror court team is nothing like the formidoble outfit that came down from Westminster in football togs that memarable October afternoon.

George Washington hopes to make it two straight from Virginia Medical. Earlier in the season the Colonials downed the Richmond team, 29 to 25.

St. John's Athletes To Report for Track

Nearing the completion of a successful year on the court, St. John's will turn its thoughts to track when it issues uniforms to its candidates tomorrow afternoon. A previous call for prospects revealed the fact that between 35 and 40 boys intended to start daily drills under Coach Byrne this week.

With Bruce Rogerton as the only cadet of whom any ability is known, Byrne nevertheless is confident of turning out a commendable team in his first season at the Vermont Avenue institution. The cadets have already planned to enter the Catholic University and Central "C" Club meets, while it is thought that a dual meet with Eastern High will be arranged.

6 Champs to Defend Titles In College Meet Saturday

Climax of Indoor Track Season Promises Thrills Galore; Leo Sexton Seeks to Retain 35-Pound Weight Crown.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The grand climax of the indoor track season, so far as the college athletes are concerned, comes this week in the ninth annual indoor championships of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, to be held Saturday night at the 102d Engineers Armory, New York.

Club runners and some of the fans may be more interested in the national championships, but to the college men the intercollegiates, with their dozen thrilling events, are the one big thing of the season. And with the aid of the fast board track of the armory, the intercollegiates produce many of the season's best races.

Six champions who will defend the titles they won in 1929 are looking for hard battles. Sol Furth, chunky New York University captain, seems to have as tight a hold on his broad-jump crown as any, although he has been specializing in the hurdle racing this season. Furth will meet several good jumpers, but none is regarded as outstanding. He also is favored in the 70-yard high hurdles. Only yesterday at the Union College meet he was timed in 8.9 seconds, one-tenth behind John Collier's 1929 winning mark, besides running the 70-yard low hurdles in world's record time of 8 seconds flat.

Jimmy Daley, of Holy Cross, recent conqueror of George Simpson, the Ohio State wizard, will have a hard race to hold his 70-yard sprint crown with all his rivals in last year's final running again and a number of other stars in the field.

The 2-mile race, in which Joe Hagen, of Columbia, will try to repeat, is expected to produce one of the best races of the program and possibly a new intercollegiate record. Paul Rekers, Penn State's sensation, has run the distance in 9:26 1-5 and 9:27 already this season against a record of 9:3 4-5 made by Tibbets of Harvard.

Hagen ran third in a handicap 2-miles in the union meet yesterday, but gave away 50 yards to the winner, Dunbar, of Colgate.

Ben Hedges, of Princeton, Olympic high jumper, must beat another former winner, John Moody, of Dartmouth, who tied for first place in 1926 and has been out of college since then. Leo Sexton, Georgetown all-around performer, will meet two men who placed last year, Weis, of Cornell, and Steiner, of Penn, in the 35-pound weight event.

Holy Cross Favored to Score In Mile Relay.

Joe Hickey, of N. Y. U., the other individual defending title holder, will meet only Montgomery of Penn, among those who placed in 1929. New York University has two members of its winning 2-mile relay team back, but needs another pair of at least the same caliber to repeat its victory. Holy Cross is favored to take Dartmouth's mile relay team since its speedy quartet has made the best times of the indoor season.

With Sabin Carr, last of Yale's aces, gone, Barney Berlinger, of Penn, may at last capture the pole vault title, but he will have to do well to beat the Harvard dark horse, Oscar Sutermeister, who has vaulted 13 feet 4 inches this year. Berlinger also is one of the favorites in the struggle for the shot put championship.

Squad of 65 Gonzaga Gridmen Will Report

WASHINGTON SOCCER CLUB TRIUMPHS IN UPSET

British United Team Bows, 3 to 0

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

WASHINGTON SOCCER CLUB pulled the surprise of the local soccer season yesterday when it downed the strong British United Eleven 3 to 0 on the Friendship Field before a large audience. Few thought before the match that the Washington kickers had a chance with the British and it is doubtful if any expected them to win by such a decisive score. The victory puts the W. S. C. in a tie with Concord for the lead in the Washington Soccer League. Each club now has five points.

Gaelic-Americans also upset the dope when they stopped the strong Rockville Club, 3 to 1, on the Monument Grounds in a cup tie match. The Irish kickers have won but few victories this season and their conquest in the local association cup tilt yesterday was a distinct surprise.

Silver Spring Extended by D. C. Kickers.

Silver Spring met a tartar in the D. C. Kickers, much to its surprise, winning by a margin of only 1 to 0. The Kickers have ambled along this season with few successes and the Maryland booters anticipated a field day at the expense of their opponents of yesterday. Rosedale forfeited to Marlboro in a Capital City League game.

An unusual feature of the Washington Soccer Club's victory over the Uniteds was the fact that, in the first half, the victors had the ball in the Englishmen's territory not more than five times but nevertheless, due to accurate booting of Dalling, succeeded in scoring twice.

Frequently the British stormed W. S. C. uprights, but on each occasion Jack Watts, who only recently consented to play his regular position at goal, saved with dexterity. Jack lived up to all the nice things that his teammates have said about him as a goalie, and it is expected that he will remain at this important post for the remainder of the season.

United Stage Threat in Closing Minutes.

The winners introduced a new player of merit in Jim Blanche, a recent arrival from Scotland. He is a younger brother of Tom Blanche, who has starred on local teams for the last three seasons. Young Blanche is an inside right but played on the left wing yesterday and attracted attention with his skull in manipulating the ball.

The Capital City League will hold an important meeting in room 2, District Building, tonight at 8 o'clock, and tomorrow night the Washington Soccer League will meet at 8 o'clock in the same office. The Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association also will meet in room 2 tomorrow evening.

Bowen Beats Hogan On "He-Night" Card

Andy Bowen and Sammy Hogan stole all the thunder in the annual "he-night" of the Rockville Athletic Association when their 6-round preliminary bout brought the goodly sized gathering to its feet. Bowen and Hogan fought a bitter toe-to-toe battle, in which Bowen was given the decision by the judges.

In the main go Billy Swartz handily defeated Billy Strickler, both fighting at 132 pounds, over a 6-round route. Sammy Burns, of Walter Reed, got the decision over Paul Bruen in the 167-pound class on a foul in the second round. It was a merry battle up to the time the referee called a halt.

Reds Barney got a 6-round decision over Fred Shaffer in the 167-pound class. Several other minor exhibition wrestling and boxing matches were held for the pleasure of the Rockville boosters, who all agreed that the evening had been a success.

FORT MYER WINS TWO.

The Fort Myer 115-pounders won two games yesterday, upsetting the Aztecs, 38-31 in the opener and defeating the Colonials, 44-40 in the second clash. The Fort Myer Club wants games. Call Clarendon 1334-J-2 after 6 o'clock.

SEEK DISTRICT AMATEUR TITLE

Hugh Miller, Post Staff Photographer.

Skeletons, Graduates Of Backyard Court, Seek A.A.U. Honors

FOUR years ago a group of neighborhood boys started playing basket ball in Cassassa's back yard on Irving street. Two barrel hoops, nailed to trees at opposite ends of the yard, furnished an improviso court. They didn't confine their activities to Cassassa's back yard for long. They were soon sporting uniforms in the Boys Club Basket Ball League as the Senators. Two of the original members of the team have performed with high school teams since.

For three years the team has been known as the Boys Club Senators. This season the team jumped into unlimited ranks and four of the original back yard stars, augmented by the additional of several promising youngsters, will make a bid for the District A. A. U. unlimited title in the big tournament to be held under the auspices of The Washington Post, starting March 10.

Team One of Youngest Among Unlimiteds.

The team sports a new name this year—the Skeletons. It will be one of the youngest unlimited combinations in action as the oldest player is just 19 years of age.

Pete Loftus, Charley and Bunnie Cassasa and Emile Farhood are the surviving members of the group that first turned the Cassasa boys back yard into a basket ball court. Loftus played with Business High in the recent scholastic series and Farhood gained recognition at Tech last year.

Fred Finley, another member of the present Business Team, and Johnny Monk, who has been a star at Georgetown Prep this season are registered with the Skeletons. Milton Dickhout has been playing a prominent part in the Skeleton victories this season.

Made Bid for Title In 1927.

Sporting theirf new name, the Skeleton players return to A. A. U. championship competition, having made their lone title hid in 1927 in the 130-pound class as the Boys Club Senators. They were defeated in the second round by the Boys Club Flashes.

The Skeletons ran up a string of fourteen consecutive victories this season before losing by a two-point margin to the Crescents. They include among their victims the Wallace Memorial, St. Gabriel's, Petworth, Clover A. C., Company A and Calvary Reserve Teams. Charley Cassasa is managing the team in addition to playing regularly.

Woltz and J.C.C. Quintets To Clash Tomorrow Night

Ardent Court Rivals to Aid Tom Peck in Fight for Life; Battle of A. A. U. Foes at Silver Spring.

THE same fighting characteristics which have branded Tom Peck as one of the hardest playing forwards in local basket ball circles for several seasons promise to carry him to victory in his long, slow battle to overcome the ravages of double pneumonia, which has held him aloof from his favorite pastime throughout the current court campaign.

First gaining prominence as a member of the Park View Five, which has from time to time battled under the names, Woodlothians, Washington Grays, United Typewriter Grays and now Woltz Photographers, Peck has embellished his name on the roster of Washington's great basket ball players.

Peck Makes Long Fight.

Since early season, Peck has been fighting against the disease which has kept him on the brink of death at times, but the dogged "never-say-die" spirit that he had displayed on the court has enabled him to stave off the "foe" much as he stopped rivals in outstanding basket ball exhibitions here in recent years.

Tomorrow night, the Woltz Photographer and Jewish Community Center unlimited teams will battle at the Silver Spring armory in the headline attraction of a program planned to benefit the ill star of the former team. The United Typewriter Gray and Knight Store teams have been scheduled for the preliminary attraction.

Game Promising of Action.

Those who witness the game tonight will not only rest content in having aided the Woltz star in his fight for health but a treat in a basket ball way is promised. The J. C. C. Team has been undefeated this year, and the Photographers, although handicapped by the sudden loss of Peck at the start of the campaign, have maintained their position among the top ranking contenders for District championship honors.

Peck's loss has been a keen disappointment to the Woltz players and his services in the Community Center League were much needed. Peck was the individual "1" scorer in that league last year. Peck is confined to his home at 1309 Seventeenth street.

213 POINTS SCORED BY COSGROVE

Gallaudet Star Finishes Season; Walsh May Catch Rival.

DEL COSGROVE, with 213 points, having finished the season with the Gallaudet College quintet, appears to have clinched individual scoring honors for the 1930 campaign among Capital collegians. Cosgrove's total, compiled in sixteen games, is 63 greater than that of Bob Gaylor, Maryland star, who is in second place with 150 points. Gaylor has just one more game to play in the regular Maryland schedule.

Joe Walsh, Catholic University mainstay, seems to have the best chance of any to catch Cosgrove, as he has six more games to play. Walsh's total is 137, the same as that of Capt. McCarthy, of Georgetown, which earns the pair a fourth place tie.

Johnny Ringle, of Gallaudet, trails Gaylor by 1 point. Tied for fifth place are Freddy Mesmer and Don Dutton, of Georgetown, each with 128 points.

Maryland leads the teams in field goal scoring with 289 double-deckers, while Georgetown tops the list in free throws with 185.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

PUTTING ON A CARPET IS EXCELLENT PRACTICE

Does putting on a carpet improve one's game? Why or why not?

New England Professional, Former Massachusetts Open, Shawnee Open Champion.

Putting on a carpet is very good for one's game as it helps very much to develop the touch so necessary in the short game. It is easy to get a carpet similar to the speed of a grass green, and very simple to putt rolls in it. All the stars of golf putt more or less on a carpet when conditions outside prevent playing. Many a fine putter has been developed over in Scotland even on the sidewalks, where we used to putt with the aid of the street lights. It is the touch that counts, not so much the conditions.

RALLY GIVES DIXIE PIGS VICTORY

Company F Defeated 23-20; Berwyn Bows, 35-14.

THE teams which will represent the Dixie Pig A. C. and Company F in the District A. A. U. unlimited championships next month, met in a spirited, hard fought game yesterday in the Hyattsville Armory. The former gained the verdict by a last minute rally, 23 to 20.

The Dixie Pig Team also turned back the Berwyn A. C. Five, 35 to 14, in a Prince Georges County League contest.

Company F enjoyed a 10 to 8 lead at the close of the first half, but the Dixie Pigs knotted the count soon after the resumption of hostilities. The lead alternated throughout the final period until Sherman broke the 20-20 deadlock with a foul shot and Blackie Adair clinched the verdict with a floor goal. Rufus Vincent and Sherman shared individual honors.

Berwyn proved an easy victim for the Dixie Pigs, who held their foes scoreless for the first half, 20 to 0. Hook, Lyles and Nicholson led the winning attack.

Columbia Five Tops East's College League

New York, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Thanks to a form reversal engineered by Cornell, the Eastern Intercollegiate basket ball lead today was held by the Columbia Lions.

While the Lions were upsetting Syracuse in a nonleague game here last night, Cornell invaded Philadelphia and whipped the highly favored Quakers of Penn, 27 to 24, in the most amazing upset of the league season.

Penn's downfall automatically lifted Columbia into the lead with four victories in five starts and dropped the Quakers into second place with four wins and two losses. At the same time Cornell moved up to fourth place, a step behind Yale, which outpointed Princeton at New Haven, 30 to 24.

Cornell led most of the way in the fray at Philadelphia. Weakened by the loss through ineligibility of Ullrich and McNiff, Penn never got going, although the home five did manage to tie the score late in the game at 23-all. Here Beasmer, Cornell guard, tossed in a field goal and two fouls to give the Ithacans their third league victory in seven starts.

The game at New Haven was enlivened by a fistic exchange between Albie Booth, of Yale, and Ed Wittmer, of Princeton, both football stars. After a few blows had been landed, with a bloody nose for Booth as the principal damage, the boys shook hands and dropped fighting in favor of more basket ball.

Nat Holman, Basket Ball King, Picked Wrong Sport

$9,000 Salary Is Low in Comparison to Ruth's eDmands.

By TED VOSBURGH.
(Associated Press.)

WHILE Babe Ruth poon-poons the presidential pay of $75,000 a year, the highest salaried individual in the well-known game of basket ball manages to worry along on a mere $9,000 a season for his activities on the American pro-league court.

Nat Holman, who has set something of a record by drawing his pay from three different clubs in the course of the season, is the plutocrat of the basket-tossing business with his wage of $2,000 a month for a four and one-half month season.

Add to this the sum the busy Holman draws down for coaching the City College of New York Qintet and the great Jewish star of the old Celtics does pretty well except by comparison with what Babe Ruth and a few other big shots of the national game condescend to grumble at.

Incidentally, Holman has his hands full doubling in playing and coaching since he joined the Chicago Bruins and about the most he can hope to do in the way of tutoring C. C. N. Y. is to hustle East to see most of the games.

Holman Only 33 Years Old.

Holman has been in the public eye so long that it seems he must be much older than he actually is.

As a matter of fact Holman is only 33 and Dave Kerr, the still youthful manager of the world's champion Cleveland Rosenblums, well remembers when Nat broke in.

"Back in the season of 1916-17," Kerr recalled, "I was playing center on the Jaspers, of Philadelphia, when somebody told Marty Friedman there was a young fellow on a settlement team in town that we ought to look over.

"Friedman had Holman drop in for a tryout. He was good but needed seasoning and did not receive a contract. Right after the war he blossomed out as one of the great stars of the game."

Holman's Salary Strains Cubs.

It was largely the strain of paying Holman and others their fat salaries that forced the original Celtics to throw up the sponge early in the present American League campaign and the jinx seemed to follow Holman to Syracuse

How to Keep Well

IT'S AN OLD ITALIAN CUSTOM.

Mrs. J. C. writes:

1. It is said human beings are about the same physically the world over. How is it, then, Italian women can bear so many children with no ill effects? Assuming we are about all alike, what accounts for this? I realize foreigners are more sturdy than Americans, but, even so, this seems not only amazing but baffling. I marvel they ever die.

2. Also, why are Italians so short in stature?

REPLY.

1. The size of the family is determined by knowledge of birth control, racial and national customs, in greater measure by religion and in lesser measure by peculiarities of the individual.

The birth rates of various racial stocks vary greatly. Italians in both Italy and America have high birth rates. Ease in child bearing varies among races and also among individuals. Bodily build is a factor.

PHYSICIAN SHOULD DECIDE.

Mrs. J. L. S. writes: I would like to know something about trachoma. Is it widespread in this country? What are the symptoms? Does the mucous membrane of the eyes become rough and full of pimples? Are there any other diseases of the eyes caused by dust that could be mistaken for trachoma? If not, trachoma is widespread. What is the best treatment for the disease?

REPLY.

Trachoma is widespread, though unevenly so. In certain parts of the country it is very prevalent. In others, not. There is a form of granular lids which resembles trachoma, but is supposed to have another cause. The principal way of spreading trachoma is the use of wash bowls and towels in common. However, there are other ways. Many cases are benefited by scraping; others by operation. Some cases should not be operated on. Treatment is a matter for the physician to decide.

TRAINING IS ONLY REMEDY.

Mrs. K. L. writes: I have a daughter 15 years old. She was always delicate and nervous from birth on. She has now developed laughing spells and sometimes crying spells, bites her fingernails, can't sit still long in one place and sleeps poorly. What is wrong and what can be done for her?

REPLY.

It seems your daughter has major hysteria although this malady has gone out of style. The remedy is training. There is no other. Hysteria does not endanger life but it causes unhappiness and incapacity.

IS NOT HEREDITARY.

B. S. writes:

1. May a man who was sick with tuberculosis three years ago and who is now cured marry?

2. Is he endangering his future wife's health?

3. Is tuberculosis hereditary?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. No.
3. No.

BUCK ROGERS, 2429 A. D. — Martian Plot Revealed — By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins

THINGS BEGAN TO HAPPEN FAST SOON AFTER SALLY AND LIEUTENANT BURK DISAPPEARED. A MILE DEEP, AMONG OUR GREAT POWER GENERATORS, WHERE THE DEFLECTED WATERS OF NIAGARA FALLS TURNED THE TURBINES AND FELL AWAY TO THE GREAT UNDERGROUND SEA, A MYSTERIOUS PROWLER WAS DISCOVERED, BUT ESCAPED.
STOP THAT MAN!
NO JUMPING BELTS AROUND, BOSS!
LOOK AT HIM! SUREFOOTED AS A CAT!
COPYRIGHT JOHN F. DILLE CO. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
FLAMING ROCKETS! WHO SHORTED THOSE CIRCUITS? THE WHOLE CITY MIGHT BE DISINTEGRATED!
AND THE CONTROL CIRCUITS OF THE PROTONOFORMERS AND ELECTROFORMERS WERE FOUND MYSTERIOUSLY OUT OF BALANCE
AND ALL OUR NEW COSMIC FORMULAS HAVE BEEN STOLEN, TOO. WHO COULD HAVE DONE THESE THINGS?
ALL EVIDENCE POINTS TO THE MARTIANS! GIVE ME AUTHORITY TO ARREST THEM, SIR!
MESSAGE, SIR, FROM GRALLO, THE MARTIAN.

ELLA CINDERS — The Deadlock — By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb

Ella set free the captain and ship's officers who were locked up by O. Watters Neek and his mutineers. The captain has demanded that the sea rebels surrender.
WE REFUSE TO GIVE UP THE MUTINY!
THEN GET READY TO SAY YOUR PRAYERS!
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1930, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service
YOU MAY NOT HAVE NOTICED, CAPTAIN, THAT ELLA IS STANDING RIGHT IN THE LINE OF FIRE!
STOP, ELLA! IF WE SHOOT WE MIGHT HIT YOU, AND IF YOU MOVE THEY MIGHT SHOOT!

GASOLINE ALLEY — Get Together

THIS IS A DANDY TRIP, WALT. I'M JUST LOOKING FORWARD TO THE TIME WHEN SKEEZIX GETS CODAS MONEY AND YOU CAN RETIRE AND SPEND MORE TIME TRAVELING
SKEEZIX IS GETTING A LOT OUT OF THIS TRIP. THAT WOULD REALLY BE FOR HIS BENEFIT. CORKY'S TOO.
KCGA
WE ARE SORT OF SPECTATORS NOW BUT JUST THINK WHAT A SPLURGE WE CAN MAKE WITH A FEW MILLIONS BACK OF US.
WE'RE MAKING ENOUGH SPLURGE TO SUIT ME RIGHT NOW. I'D RATHER GO DEEP SEA FISHING.
IF I WAS GOING TO RETIRE I'D RATHER HAVE A LITTLE SHACK OFF SOMEWHERE WHERE I COULD WEAR OLD CLOTHES, HAVE A LITTLE BOAT WITH A KICKER ON IT AND PLENTY OF TIME TO LOAF.
WELL YOU CAN HAVE THE KICKER BUT I'LL TAKE A YACHT WITH A CREW IN YELLOW AND WHITE UNIFORMS, AND A VILLA BY THE SEA.

MINUTE MOVIES — (Rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service. Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.) — By Ed Wheelan

I AM ANDREW HANDY! IT WAS DURING A VISIT TO THE WHEELAN STUDIOS AT FOLLYWOOD THAT DIRECTOR ART HOKUM FIRST PERSUADED ME TO TRY A SMALL BIT IN A SERIAL HE WAS MAKING — THAT WAS MY UNDOING AND I HAVE BEEN IN PICTURES EVER SINCE!!
THE FIRST SHOT SHOWS ME AS SIR CHRISTOPHER GRIMM IN PIRACY! THE SECOND AS I LOOKED IN A LASS OF ALASKA AND THE THIRD AS CHIEF FERRET IN MYSTERIOUS MONEY!!
ONE OF THE MOST COLORFUL ROLES I HAVE EVER PLAYED WAS THAT OF THE STERN OLD EMPEROR IN PRINCESS CHA MING!
I PLAYED THE PART OF DON GASPAR RODRIGUEZ IN EL BANDIDO, THAT FILM OF OLD ARGENTINA, AND IN DESERT DANGER, I WAS THE BRITISH CONSUL, SIR BASIL GAMBLE.
IN LOVE AND LUCRE I WAS CAST FOR THE PART OF THE OLD PROSPECTOR, "LONE DAN" WORTH, A ROLE SIMILAR TO THE ONE I PLAYED IN THIS LAST SERIAL" IN DAYS OF YORE I PLAYED CEDRIC OF SUSSEX, A PROUD OLD SAXON LORD WHOSE CASTLE IS BESIEGED AND CAPTURED BY THE NORMAN BARON, DE BRISSAC!!
"TOMORROW, MY FRIEND AND FELLOW ACTOR, WILL POWER, WILL APPEAR BEFORE YOU AND TELL YOU OF HIS OWN FILM PAST!!"

BOBBY THATCHER — A Letter From Bobby — By George Storm

BOBBY THATCHER LEFT JONESBORO TO SEEK HIS RELATIVES IN THE CITY — EXPECTING TO RETURN — AS THE WEEKS PASSED LETTERS FROM HIM REACHED HIS FRIENDS LESS FREQUENTLY
GOOD MORNING MR FITTS.... HAVE YOU HEARD FROM BOBBY THATCHER?
JUST ONE LETTER ABOUT A MONTH AGO.... BUT THE BOWERS LAD GOT A LETTER FROM HIM THE OTHER DAY...
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate
YES, I HEARD FROM THATCHER AGAIN... HE FIRST WROTE HIS SISTER TURNED OUT TO BE A GROWN UP LADY AND HIS AUNT WAS RICH AND GOING TO SEND HIM AWAY TO SCHOOL
L'KOUT! THAT'S ABOUT MY LAST DOUGHNUT
MMF.... NOW HE DONT SAY ANYTHING ABOUT THE SCHOOL. S'FUNNY.... HE WANTED TO GO, TOO.... WONDER WHAT BECAME OF HIS TREASURE MONEY?.... HE'S GOTTA JOB AT A AIRPORT, NOT EXACTLY FLYIN' BUT HE WILL BE SOON!

THE GUMPS — Who Is Scooge?

POOR UNCLE BIM
HE HAS A TOUCH OF THE BLUES — HE WILL NOT SEE HIS HEAVEN EYES TONIGHT — HE HAD A THEATRE ENGAGEMENT WITH HER — BUT EXCUSED HIMSELF — HE IS PEEVED — AND IF POOR BIMBO ONLY KNEW WHAT A RIGHT HE HAD TO BE PEEVED — HE WOULD BE GOOD AND PEEVED
SCOOGE — WHO IS THIS MAN SCOOGE? WHO CAN HE BE? HE CALLED HEAVEN EYES WHILE I WAS AT HER HOME THIS AFTERNOON — I HAPPENED TO ANSWER THE PHONE — AND WHEN I ASKED HER WHO HE WAS — SHE GOT FURIOUS AND REFUSED TO ANSWER — SHE SEEMED PERPLEXED AND EMBARRASSED — WHAT IF SHE PROVED FALSE? COULD THERE BE ANOTHER MAN? OH! IT'S TERRIBLE TO BE IN LOVE — NOTHING BUT THE BLUES —
ALONG WITH LOVE COMES DOUBT — HOPE AND ECSTASY WHILE LINED UP ON THE OTHER SIDE APPEAR — TERROR — DESPONDENCY AND DESPAIR — THE POET HAD IT RIGHT WHO COMPOSED THESE LINES —
LOVE NOT — LOVE NOT — THE THING YOU LOVE MAY CHANGE — THE ROSY LIPS MAY CEASE TO SMILE ON YOU — THE KINDLY BEAMING EYE GROW COLD AND STRANGE THE HEART — STILL WARMLY BEAT AND NOT FOR YOU

Commercial Radio Licenses Granted

(Associated Press.)

The granting by the Federal Radio Commission of licenses to the Universal Wireless Communications Co. for commercial radio service between twelve cities was announced yesterday by Dr. John Nathansohn, general representative of the company.

The permits are for service between New York, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Peoria, Springfield, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Akron, Trenton and New Brunswick, N. J. The New York-Chicago service of the company has been in operation for a month, and operations in the other cities will be started as soon as installation of equipment is completed, Dr. Nathansohn said.

A network of stations in 50 cities, he said, will be in operation by the end of this year.

NEWS FROM MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

WATRES REELECTED TO MASONIC OFFICE

Washington Memorial Sponsor Will Continue to Head Association.

DEDICATION IS PLANNED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523

Louise A. Watres, past grand master of Masons in Pennsylvania and for many years president of the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Association, has been reelected president, and J. Claude Keiper, of Washington, secretary since the organization of the association, has been relected secretary. Other officers, all reelected, are James R. Johnson, of South Carolina, first vice president; Harry G. Noyes, second vice president; Bert S. Lee, third vice president, and George L. Luck, fourth vice president. Directors are Louis A. Watres, Charles H. Callahan, George N. Napier and Owen Scott.

It has been definitely decided that the great $5,000,000 memorial temple to Washington, the Mason, will be dedicated on February 22, 1932 as a part of the bicentennial celebration of Washington's Birthday.

With the exception of Charles H. Callahan, the originator of the memorial temple project, Col. Watres has done more toward the success of the enterprise than any other person. His personal contributions to the temple have amounted to $40,000, and in addition he has just had installed, at his own cost, a set of Westminster chimes in the tower of the building. These chimes will mark the passing of each half hour of each day while the temple endures. This gift was kept a profound secret until Saturday, only the donor and Percy S. Cranford, president of the Cranford Construction Co., which is erecting the building, knowing of the intsallation, and a strict guard was kept to insure secrecy.

The chimes consist of 20 notes, 4 more than the chromatic scale, and were constructed by the Deagan Co., of Chicago. They are similar to those in the Church of the Epiphany, of Washington, weigh eight tons, and more than 6,000 linear feet of electric cable were required for their installation.

Col. Waters, who is an accomplished musician himself, is not quite satisfied with the present strength of the notes, and it is expected the chimes will be moved to a separate tower later. The thickness of the stone walls where they are now prevents to a certain extent their being heard in sufficient volume.

Mrs. Frances Smoot Danenhower died yesterday afternoon in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, after a short illness. The body will be brought to this city for burial. She was a daughter of the late James Recter Smoot, of this city, and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Robert F. Green, and five grandchildren, Miss Caroline Rust, Miss Elizabeth Rust, Mr. William Rust, Miss Frances Green and Mr. Recter Smoot Green, all of Alexandria.

Seven Are Injured In Crash of Auto

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 23.—Seven were injured this afternoon, when an automobile, said to have been driven by Kenneth Nestor, 26, left the National highway at the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge in the Narrows, and lodged against a sycamore tree.

The injured are Mrs. Charles H. Sizer, 25, daughter of Dr. Herbert V. Deming, at Allegany Hospital with lacerations; Charles H. Sizer, jr., aged 5, and Jean, aged 3, children of Mr. and Mrs. Sizer, at Memorial Hospital, cuts and shock; Kenneth Nestor, at Memorial Hospital, lacerations of scalp and left leg and possible fracture of the left leg; Clifford McGetigan, 25, at Memorial Hospital, fracture of the left arm; Charles H. Sizer, at home, injuries to the back; Miss Mary E. Carl, Mount Savage road, at home, with bruises and shock.

Nestor is held pending an investigation by State police. The roadway was slippery from the rain and, according to occupants, the wrecked car became involved with two other cars and a street car and skidded when brakes were applied. The new car was almost torn in half when it hit the tree and Mrs. Sizer was wedged between the tree and wreckage and it was some time before she could be extricated.

500 Gallons Spilled As Water Tank Burns

Here's one for Mr. Hix. The water tower at Upper Marlboro burned down early yesterday and spilled 500 gallons of water on the ground.

Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning Wade Sweeney, foreman for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Upper Marlboro, was awakened by the glare from a fire in the water tank at which locomotives are filled at the Pennsylvania Station. Rubbing his eyes, he found that he wasn't dreaming, and called the Marlboro Fire Department.

A second alarm was sent to the volunteer fire companies of Seat Pleasant, Capitol Heights, Greater Capitol Heights and Boulevard Heights. The companies made the 14-mile run in time to save the freight station nearby and the Marlboro Canning Factory nearby although the water tank was destroyed.

WEATHER IMPROVES VIRGINIA HIGHWAYS

Detours Unnecessary Yet Where Construction Is Under Way.

SOME PLACES ARE ROUGH

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—With soil and graveled roads greatly improved during the past week of dry weather and no detours yet necessary where new construction is under way, the Virginia State Highway Department reports road conditions as excellent at the close of the week. In the mountains a small amount of graded and some unimproved road is still in poor shape.

Construction has recently been started on a number of new jobs, but the highway department is still routing traffic over the main highways. In some places the highway will be found rough for a few miles until the construction work is completed.

The weekly report of the department, giving conditions as of February 22, lists the following specific routes:

On Route 19 between Richmond and Columbia the work near the State farm is quite rough for a short distance, but is passable. The remainder of the road is in very good condition.

Route 13 in Poor Shape.

From Richmond to Tappahannock Route 13 is in good condition with the exception of the short section of construction just west of Tappahannock at Hoskins Creek, where the road is quite rough for several hundred feet. From Warsaw over Route 37 toward Kilmarnock the new graded road is open and is in very good condition.

The new road on Route 30 between King William Courthouse and West Point is in fair to good condition. Traffic is using the regular old road except on a short section near West Point, where the new road is being used.

The construction on Route 23 between Blacksburg and Newport is very rough and muddy, and through traffic from Christiansburg to Pearisburg is advised to follow Route 11 to 1 mile west of Radford, turn right over the county macadam road to Route 213, then over Route 213 to Pearisburg, which is in good condition nearly all the way. Route 23 from Christiansburg to Blacksburg is in good condition.

Route 1 Paved All Way.

United States Route 1 is paved all the way across the State, a distance of about 204 miles.

United States Route 21 between Wytheville and Bluefield, is muddy and badly cut up in places on the graded sections.

Through the Shenandoah Valley, United States Route 11: Between Winchester and Staunton work is going on near Strasburg, Mount Jackson and Harrisonburg, but the regular road is being kept open and no detours are necessary. From Staunton to Roanoke the only construction is just south of Staunton, where the road is rough for about a mile.

Between Roanoke and Bristol through Salem, Pulaski and Wytheville, 159 miles, work is going on near Dublin, near Marion and near Chilhowie. On the section near Dublin the road is rough for about two miles, but near Marion and Chilhowie work has just been started.

On U. S. Route 15 between Culpeper and Orange the new soil road is somewhat cut up and is a little rough, but passable.

Better Route Pointed Out.

United States route 50 from Washington, D. C., through Winchester to the West Virginia line is all paved and in good condition. A section of about 800 feet at the Shenandoah River is rough.

United States Route 211, the Lee Highway, from Washington, D. C., through Warrenton and Sperryville to New Market, is rough. from Buckland through Warrenton to near Washington Courthouse, Va. Construction is under way in two places on this section and will be started on other parts of the road soon. Traffic from Washington, D. C., to points along the Valley Pike will find route 50 by Winchester a better route.

On U. S. Route 170 between Danville and Lynchburg, via Chatham and Altavista, construction is going on south of Chatham and just north of Danville. Traffic is using the new road for several miles and going over the construction for a short distance on the job near Chatham. Near Danville work has just been started and the old road is still in good condition.

Cutters Refloat Steamer Grounded at Cape Henry

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—The British steamer Nollington Court, which grounded on a sandbar a mile and a half northeast of Cape Henry Lighthouse Friday night while en route from Cruz Grande to Baltimore, was floated early this morning by the Coast Guard cutters Manning and Carrrabascett and the Wood Towing Co.'s tug Buccaneer.

The steamer appeared undamaged and proceeded to Baltimore, where she will discharge a cargo of ore.

FALLS CHURCH ASKS SINGLE POSTOFFICE

Citizens Association Seeks Delivery to Houses in Area of Town.

WOULD COMBINE THREE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

The Northwest Citizens Association of the town of Falls Church has voted to launch a movement for the elimination of the three postoffices in the corporation limits dividing the town into East Falls Church, Falls Church and West Falls Church, and to request a central postoffice with a house-to-house mail delivery. The measure was referred to the association's executive committee with instructions to ascertain the proper methods of securing this change.

At the last meeting of the association it was voted to recommend the appointment of a representative from Falls Church on the proposed Virginia Park and Planning Commission. A letter was read from Senator Frank Ball in reply to this request, which stated that such an appointment would be impossible because if Falls Church were represented it would be necessary to include a member for each incorporated town in Fairfax County, which would make the commission unwieldly. A number of the members of the association stated that they were dissatisfied with the senator's reply, as they believed that Falls Church was the only town in the county which would feel any immediate effects of the proposed zoning and parking regulations. The executive committee was instructed to confer further with Senator Ball.

Mrs. W. A. Hunsberger will be in charge of the school luncheon to be served today by the Parent-Teacher Association at Clifton.

The building committee of the Groveton Community Club will hold a special meeting at the home of L. A. Popkins tonight. The discussions of the plans for the new community hall will be continued.

The Fairfax County Firemen's Association at its last meeting in McLean voted to ask the Fairfax County Fair Association to designate the first day of the annual county fair as firemen's day. The association asked that it be allowed to take over the management of the amusements and the gates on that day, on the same basis that the Ku Klux Klan has for the last several years had charge of the last day.

A committee of five, consisting of R. E. Kendrick, of Falls Church; Vernon Gowan, of Vienna; W. W. Beattie, of Fairfax; J. W. Preston, of McLean, and T. Edgar Reed, of Herndon, were appointed to arrange for a radio program by the county firemen over Station WJSV at Mount Vernon Hills on March 18. Each fire department in the county was requested to send five delegates to the public hearing on the county budget which will be held by the county board of supervisors on Monday, March 3.

The secretary was instructed to invite the new manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia to attend the next meeting of the association in the Town Hall of Vienna, on March 21, to discuss the telephone situation as it affects the fire department, especially in regard to overlapping exchanges.

At the present time certain parts of the territory served by the McLean department are listed in the telephone book under the Clarendon exchange, it was reported at the meeting. When a fire alarm is called in the operators have referred the calls to the Clarendon or Ballston Fire Departments, several miles away, while the McLean department was within a mile or so of the fire, but under the Falls Church telephone exchange and was not notified of the fire. The same situation also exists in other parts of the county as around the Fairfax and Vienna exchanges.

The Falls Church department formally became a member of the new association at this meeting, and Vernon Gowen, of Vienna, was elected temporary treasurer.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the McLean Volunteer Fire Department will meet today at the home of Mrs. J. L. Kefauver, when the annual election of officers will be held.

Mrs. George Fadeley has been elected president of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church at Falls Church. Mrs. Allan Parker was elected vice president, Mrs. Frank Thompson, treasurer and Mrs. Ensor L. Brandon, secretary.

The Piedmont Chapter of the American War Mothers will meet today in the Crossman Methodist Church at Falls Church. Mrs. Steed, of Veitch Summit, will address the meeting in regard to the pending legislation before Congress of benefit to the former service men. Following the business meeting the members will hold a social hour at the home of Mrs. George Newell, in Falls Church.

The McLean Volunteer Fire Department will resume its monthly business meetings at which time plans for the annual midwinter carnival to be held Friday and Saturday nights in the Parish Hall at McLean to raise money to aid the department will be discussed. The carnival this year will be under the direction of John W. Preston, Pat Strawser, Joe Farver and Miss Jennie Tomko. The entertainment will be directed by J. P. Frech.

The stockholders of the Great Falls Grange Corporation will meet tonight in the Grange Hall at Forestville.

The Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department will hold a business meeting tonight in the fire engine house, East End.

Legion Post at Danville Favors Armory Project

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 23.—Danville Post, No. 10, American Legion, went on record as unanimously in favor of the erection of a municipal armory, to be used also as a municipal auditorium, at a meeting held Friday night.

Resolutions favoring the erection of the armory for the three Danville military companies to serve "as a memorial to the men and women of Danville who participated in the Spanish-American and the World Wars," were adopted and a committee was appointed to confer with the public works committee of the city council on the project.

Rev. G. Q. Bacchus Dies in Maryland

Rites to Be Held Tomorrow for Pastor Who Retired Seven Years Ago.

The Rev. G. Q. Bacchus, who formerly held charges in this city and who was retired seven years ago, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George V. Earnshaw, at Riverdale, Md.

He was born in Chestertown, Md., 79 years ago, and was educated in Washington College. He was ordained 56 years ago at the Congress Methodist Protestant Church here. Following charges in Baltimore, Md., and Lynchburg, Va., he was stationed in this city at the First Methodist Protestant Church.

For four years he remained at the head of his congregation and later was assigned to the Mount Tabor Methodist Episcopal Church, also of Washington. In addition to these assignments he also served in Elizabeth, N. J., and along the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

His daughter is the only survivor. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Rhode Island Avenue M. P. Church. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

MONTGOMERY ZONE ORDINANCE READY

New Measure Will Be Laid Before Park Commission for Approval Thursday.

TALIAFERRO IS SPEAKER

Montgomery County's new zoning ordinance will probably be completed in time to be presented to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission at its meeting Thursday night for final approval, it was announced yesterday by Chief Engineer Irving C. Root, who has been preparing the ordinance.

It is expected that the ordinance, ready for adoption, will be presented to the Montgomery County commissioners the following Tuesday at their regular meeting. The ordinance has been tentatively adopted by the Park and Planning Commission with the exception of several small corrections which have been made and it is certain that the new code will be approved by the planning body Thursday.

It is believed that the new code will make the regulation of gasoline filling stations, billboards, private hospitals and schools, and so-called nuisance industries, more readily amendable to the county commissioners and that several loopholes existing in the present law have been stopped.

The new code will be more proof against court action and is unique in many instances. One of the principal features is that it does away with the "consent" feature by which signatures of 75 per cent of the residents within 200 feet is necssary.

Chief Engineer Root has been working for nearly a year on the code and has consulted with some of the foremost experts in zoning problems of the country in the course of his work. He was assisted by J. Bond Smith, attorney for the planning commission.

District officials will continue to cooperate with Maryland in the development of a Greater Washington, District Commissioner Sidney Taliaferro declared Saturday night in a speech at the George Washington Birthday celebration held by citizens of Fairland and nearby towns in St. Mark's Parish Hall, Fairland.

Commissioner Taliaferro was answering the statement of County Commissioner Lacy Shaw, who said that Montgomery Countians were grateful for the splendid cooperation given them by District officials.

The exercises began with music by the Fairland Community Band and a chorus of school children, followed by presentation of the colors by the members of the National Guard unit. Mrs. LaVergne Sims Fairchild sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," accompanied by Miss Eunice Graham. Miss Grace Rushmore recited "Service!"

The program committee included Miss Pearl Marlow, Miss Maude Johnson, Miss Mary McAdoo, Mrs. A. D. Oursler and W. B. Walters.

Pastor Emeritus, Aged 90, Honored

Special Servcies Held for Rev. George L. Petrie at Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 23.—Special services were held at the 11 o'clock service this morning at the Presbyterian Church in honor of the pastor emeritus, the Rev. George L. Petrie, who will be 90 years of age Tuesday.

A special music program was rendered. George Laurens Petrie was born in Cheraw, S. C., February 25, 1840. He was educated in classical preparatory schools and at Davidson College, Oglethorpe University and Columbia Theological Seminary. He enlisted in the Confederate service and became chaplain of the Twenty-second Regiment of Alabama Volunteers.

After the war Dr. Petrie taught a classical school in Montgomery, Ala., two years, and was professor of Latin at Oakland College, Miss., two years. He then filled pastorates at the Presbyterian Church in Greenville, Ala., and in Petersburg, Va. For a period of 50 years he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this city.

At the organization of John Bowie Strange Camp, C. V., this city, he was elected chaplain, an office which, by annual elections, he has held without intermission for 30 years.

Petersburg Tobacco Market Closes Friday

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 23.—The Petersburg tobacco market will close Friday. The present season has been very successful, prices having attained high levels and maintained a good average throughout the entire period. Dark tobacco has received more attention in this district this year than in some years past and prices for it have been high.

Growers in this section served by Petersburg warehouses have expressed a great deal of satisfaction over their dealings with local tobacco men and with prices that have been obtained. Petersburg warehouses have offered the growers every facility and have performed many services for them.

SCHOOL MEASURES BEFORE ASSEMBLY

Fee Textbooks and Tuition Questions to Be Decided in Next Two Weeks.

MONEY BILLS WAITING

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Feb. 23.—Whether Virginia school children shall be provided with free textbooks and be allowed to attend high school without the payment of tuition, as is now charged in 26 counties, will be decided during the closing two weeks of the biennial session of the Virginia General Assembly.

Old Dominion educators have approved the principles of both of these legislative proposals, but members of the Senate are said to incline to a thorough study of them to ascertain if the State revenues will permit a $300,000 annual appropriation at this time to carry out the bills. There is considerable sentiment for delaying both the textbook and tuition proposals until the 1932 session of the Assembly. Such delay, it is argued, would provide ample time to work out a businesslike administration of the plan.

The Jeffries bill, now pending before the Senate committee on public institutions, calls for the abolition of high school tuition, making the high schools "free" in every detail, as are the elementary schools. This bill provides that the State absorb the payment of the tuition in those counties which are unable to maintain accredited high shcools without additional revenue than that provided by the regular school funds. This tuition, in some counties, is as high as $20 a year per pupil, and brings in between $18,000 and $20,000 in school revenue.

There is no open opposition to the abolition of the tuition charges among the members of the present General Assembly. The only objection voiced is that the State, with its budget already drafted, can not take care of the extra aappropriation at this time. Therefore, legislative observers feel that if the tuition is not abolished at the present session it will certainly be abolished when the new assembly convenes in 1932.

In addition to the school proposals, much important legislation remains to be disposed of in the next two weeks. Among these are the appropriation bills, a bill making it malfeasance for a county treasurer to hold out a taxpayer's ticket in order to save friends the payment of the 5 per cent penalty; the farm relief bills, the school law codification measure, the woman's college commission and the judicial council bills which would simplify court procedure in the State.

Two important legislative proposals—the seafood rehabilitation program and the gas tax distribution among the 100 counties—are out of the way of the Senate and House and await only the signature of Gov. John Garland Pollard.

Fauquier Red Cross Unit Is Addressed by Payne

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 23.—The Fauquier unit of the American Red Cross was addressed yesterday by Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman. Judge Payne spends a good deal of his time in Warrenton, looking after his extensive land interests here and superintending the building of a handsome home on one of his farms near here.

Walter Thomas, school superintendent for Fauquier County, also spoke. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Katherine Fox Bowman. The resignation of S. A. Appleton, for the past thirteen years secretary of the Fauquier Chapter, was accepted, and William Rowland elected in his stead.

EARLE

"THE AVIATOR." A Warner Bros. presentation of the play by James Montgomery, adapted for the screen by Robert Lord and Arthur Caesar, featuring Edward Everett Horton, supported by Patsy Ruth Miller. Directed by Roy del Ruth. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

"The Hottentot" has sprouted wings and, like Pegasus, has taken to the air! And with Edward Everett Horton as the rider, need more be said?

Following the same general idea and developed in much the same way as "The Hottentot," "The Aviator" brings Mr. Horton back to the screen in a more ludicrous presentation than his earlier picture, made all the more screaming because of the utter lack of any sane degree of plausibility in the continuity.

But comedies need no foundation in possibility, and so Mr. Horton becomes a well-known author with a violent aversion to anything and everything farther off the ground than the top of the kitchen table. In an altruistic moment he agrees to allow his name to be attached to a story of aviation during the war and the complications that follow, due largely to his fiancee's misinterpretation, furnish plenty of material for a howling and spectacular comedy.

Mr. Horton, of course, runs away with the picture, and his antics, painfully real to him, keep the audience in continual laughter. His natural seriousness of mien, his apparent awkwardness in certain situations, and especially, the naturalness of his action, all combine to make him the leading comedian of the talking screen.

Opposite Mr. Horton is Patsy Ruth Miller, who furnishes a very excellent reason for Mr. Horton's submerging his own feelings and taking to the air. Johnny Arthur, as the valet, furnishes his share of the laughs but Lee Moran, as the ambitious press agent, ranks second only to Mr. Horton. Armand Kaliz, as Maj. Jules Gaillord, bona fide war ace; Edward Martindel, as the publisher, and Kewpie Morgan, as the airplane mechanic, have well developed parts.

The entire production is excellently staged. Special mention is due Frank Clarke, the aviator, whose aerial stunts are excellently done and add the thrills which accentuate the comedy situations.

For subsidiaries, Jack Osterman is presented "Talking It Over" in songs and patter; Bobby Watson and Wilbur Mack furnish "The Stand Up," an amusing comedy, and the news of the week is furnished by Universal.

Before a capacity audience Robert L. Ripley recounted the story of the inception of his cartoon series and where he finds the many weird and wondrous things he draws. Mr. Ripley made one drawing and showed animated cartoons of others.

The Earle Orchestra presented selections from Herbert's tuneful operettas, "The Fortune Teller" for an overture in which is featured the "Gypsy Love Song" as a violin solo by Jack Minovitz.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

COLUMBIA

"ANNA CHRISTIE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-dialogue version of Eugene O'Neill's play, starring Greta Garbo, supported by Charles Bickford, George Marion and Marie Dressler. Adapted by Frances Marion and directed by Clarence Brown. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL

Here is the audible proof that of all the foreign players who have gained stardom on the silent screen, Greta Garbo has least to fear from the microphones. Her voice is ideally attuned to the personality with which her pantomimic roles have imbued her in the minds of a majority of her admirers, and her Swedish accent—at least in so far as her present role is concerned—is negligible, if not positively nil. Once, as I recall it, the word "job" becomes "yob," but in the large view the Garbo English is above cavil.

As for the all-talking adaptation of "Anna Christie," it is so vastly superior to the earlier silent picture that they seem scarcely to have been derived from the same play. The then excellent version in which Blanche Sweet appeared four or five years ago was primarily an action-drama, with Anna's persecution, and worse—while farmed out to distant relatives in Minnesota by a father anxious to shield her from the blasting influences of the New York water front—an important part of the visualized narrative. Miss Garbo's vehicle is a psychological drama from which all of the Minnesota sequences have been omitted, together with the barroom brawls and other manifestations of the virility of men of the sea that characterized Miss Sweet's production. The net results, in point of plausibility and easy conviction, are all in favor of the present play.

At best, however, the story is sordid and not the prettiest that has found its way to the silver sheet. But O'Neill is like that, and this good O'Neill.

In many minds, including my own, Greta Garbo's performance in the title role will be looked upon as her best. It is realistic, forceful, dramatically argumentative and utterly believable. My only criticism would be that in attempting a needless refinement of the O'Neill mood, all the "damns" in the Garbo lines have been diluted into "darns" and all the "hells" into "blazes," with an obvious smothering of the high fires of drama and passion.

The star's portrayal, it should be added, is not the only one upon which the picture need rely for distinction. George Marion, in the role of Chris Gustafson, the father, adds the fruits of long and honorable stage service to his interpretation of the part he also played in the silent film, and Marie Dressler, as Marthy Owen, a sodden Magdalen of the quays, offers a study of a dilapidated siren with no less than inspired skill.

Matching ability, line for line and bit for bit, with all the others, is Charles Bickford in the character of Matt Burke, sailor man tossed up by an angry sea to become the first honest suitor Anna has ever known. Playing the part of the Irishman not only with a rich Irish brogue, but also with an infallible Irish idiom, Bickford takes on the stature of an actor of the first line.

The recording is flawless and the foggy waterfront background, if that is not too much of a paradox, is admirably created and sustained by Clarence Brown, the director.

The supplemental of principal importance is a talkie-comedy, "Sky Boy," in which Harry Langdon appears under the Hal Roach banner, supported by Thelma Todd, and proves himself funnier than his vehicle. The Hearst Metrotone News, medley overture and organ recessional complete thte embellishments of the Garbo's tremendously auspicious vocal debut.

RIALTO

"UNDERTOW." A Universal presentation of a story by Wilbur Daniel Steele, adapted for the screen by Winifred Reeve, featuring Mary Nolan, supported by Johnny Mack Brown and Robert Ellis. Directed by Harry A. Pollard. Reviewed Saturday evening by W. A. Whitney.

What is probably the last stand for motion picture locales has fallen, and the lonely lighthouse on a stern and rockbound coast now takes its place with the other multitudinous phases of maritime narration.

Such a locale does not lend itself to scenes of magnificence, nor is any such needed for the development of this fast-moving and tense drama of human beings, placed—partly from choice, partly from personal animosity—in what are probably the most limited confines a free man can be put.

As the wife of a lighthouse keeper gone blind, Mary Nolan gives a most realistic impersonation of a woman torn between her innate desire for action, comradeship with her fellow beings and, in short, life and her acknowledged duty and love for her husband and daughter. In this picture, as in "Shanghai Lady," Miss Nolan demonstrates her ability as an emotional actress, giving to her part a touch of realism without any trace of maudlin overacting.

Johnny Mack Brown carries the part of the husband admirably, a role which requires a maximum amount of repression in the characterization of a man blinded and thus made useless for following his beloved calling.

The third pivotal character, the sinister influence in this not-so-figurative sea of loneliness, is portrayed by Robert Ellis, as the jilted lover and lighthouse inspector, whose persistent hatred results in a powerful denouement.

Director Harry A. Pollard has woven into this story an admirable degree of spontaneous action which, together with laudable auricular technique, results in a gripping tale, not the least stirring portion of which is the fight between husband and lover at the climacteric moment.

Supporting the feature picture are a group of attractions that are both diversified and entertaining. The ace position is, perhaps, best awarded to Oswald, the Rabbit's screaming melodramatic burlesque on "Show Boat." Sunny Jim appears as "Sister's Pest," a rousing comedy of infantile repartee that has a genuine ring. "Glorious Vamps," a United Artists' novelty short subject, is a song and dance depiction of female menaces from Eve to Carmen. The Tiffany color symphony "Song of the Island" presents several Hawaiian songs and native dances and features Winona Love and Ferdinand Schumann-Heink. A release of the Universal News is included.

In celebration of the holiday, James A. Fitzpatrick presents "George Washington," showing in animated clay models salient events in the life of the "father of his country." A melody of patriotic airs is played by the orchestra.

William Renner Rites Held.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 23 (Special). Funeral services were held today at Millwood, Clark County, for William Renner, 55, for many years manager of the historic Carter Hall estate of the Burwells, which was recently sold by them to Gerard Lambert, Princeton, N. J. Mr. Renner died of pneumonia. Three sisters and three brothers survive.

METROPOLITAN

"SONS OF THE GODS." First National's all-talking adaptation of Rex Beach's novel of the same name, starring Richard Barthelmess, supported by Constance Bennett. Adaptation and dialogue by Bradley King; direction by Frank Lloyd. Reviewed Saturday night.

This, I should say, is the most pretentious vehicle that has been afforded Richard Barthelmess since his adoption of the all-talking picture adoption of the all-talking picture talents, by the way, have always impressed me—and still do—as preponderantly pantomimic, rather than vocal. To my mind, Barthelmess has never been so impressive in speech as he was in silence. That is still true, despite the many superiorities in acting, scenic investiture, direction and recording that assert themselves during the progress of this compelling drama of racial hatred and romance in strange combination.

The story conceived by Mr. Beach idys down a vigorous lesson in tolerance by basing its action on racial prejudices, individual dislikes and the sensitiveness of nature of the pivotal character in the play, Sam Lee, the son of an Oriental of wisdom and incalculable wealth. The yellow blood presumed to be flowing in the veins of Sam Lee served as an effective bar to any considerable participation in the social life of his white associates. In an effort to evade the humiliation constantly heaped upon him, Sam sails for Europe on a cattle boat, apparently the victim of a devastating inferiority complex. There he falls in love, only again to be spiritually crushed by a public flogging at the hands of his fiancee, who had learned that he is a Chinaman.

The death of Lee Ying, his father, leaves Sam Lee in possession of the broad power of his inherited millions, a loathing for the white race and a baffling sense of futility and defeat. It will be no part of this review to disclose either the climax or the denouement of a work that seems, at times, to tread dangerous ground.

In the role from which the title of the picture is derived it must be said that Barthelmess is confronted with no light task. His portrayal must harmonize the ancient customs of his supposed race with the gay frivolities of modern American and European life in a manner so deft as to contrive a dual impression of the man, both aspects wholly charming. Perhaps no other young actor could do it so well as Barthelmess. In the opposite role of Allana Wagner, Constance Bennett reveals a rich inheritance from a gifted father. By no means likeable a great deal of the time, she still is splendidly efficient.

Among those in supporting parts, E. Alyn Warren, as Lee Ying, is especially effective, and Anders Randolf, the well-poised millionaire father of the spoiled and impetuous Allana. Mildred Van Dorn, with a delightfully retrousse nose and an intermittent brogue; Frank Albertson, Claude King, Dorothy Mathews, in the much curtailed character of Alice Hart; Barbara Leonard and King Hou Chang are conspicuous in the capable ensemble.

The settings are gorgeous, Frank Lloyd's direction on a par with his best and the recording uniformly excellent. One brief sequence is executed in natural colors and occasional background music is introduced.

The Paramount Sound News, in which Gen. Pershing makes his screen debut; a ridiculously amusing "Mickey the Mouse" cartoon comedy, "The Jazz Fool"; a Technicolor song-reel, "The Military Post," in which Roberto Guzman sings "La Golondrina" and "In the Moonlight," and the Vitaphone and organ recessionals augment a recomended entertainment.

FOX

"THE LONE STAR RANGER." A Fox talking-picture from the story by Zane Gray, featuring George O'Brien, supported by Sue Carol. Directed by A. F. Erickson. Reviewed Saturday afternoon by Mary Porter Russell.

Once you become adjusted to the fact that the first Zane Grey epic to be transferred to the audible screen has no more intention of taking itself seriously than had the hectic Western melodrama of an earlier era of popularity, you will find in it much that is diverting. It is the old wild and wooly movie at its r'aringest, enhanced through modern photographic technique and intensified through sound; a type of film that is for the time being, at least, a novelty.

It is to be regretted that all viewing it can not be changed temporarily into small boys. That would perhaps be the only way to appreciate its thrills to the full. Certainly, the degree of your enjoyment will depend upon how much of the spirit of the small boy remains hidden beneath your exterior. Many seeing it at the performance reviewed appeared to have no need of the waving magic wand.

Buck Duane is the hero, and a fine and sturdy lad he is, quick with the trigger, but never firing unless the other man draws first. When the captain of the Texas rangers offers him a pardon for a murder he committed in self-defense, if he will join the rangers and break up a deadly gang of cattle rustlers, what do you think he does? Right. And when the Eastern beauty he has rescued from stage bandits turns out to be the niece of the chief rustler, do you think he lets love interfere with duty? No, he doesn't. But does he turn in all the rustlers and shoot the one you hate and obtain clemency for the uncle, who isn't really very mean, and recover from being shot himself, and marry the girl? Yes, yes, yes. Oh, it's a beautiful story, and told exactly as you would expect.

George O'Brien is well adapted to the role of Buck, and numerous skillfully ridden horses prove fascinating in their ceaseless action against a background that is at times majestic. Sue Coral is satisfactory as the girl, and Walter McGrail and Russell Simpson are rather more than that in roles of next importance.

The Fanchon and Marco idea, "Gardens," features the Three Slate Brothers, a trio of tap dancers who will delight the hearts of those reveling in their particular type of terpsichorean art, and whose shadow selves, it is interesting to note, will be back again next week in "Happy Days." Cliff Nazarro scores a hit in a monologuing, piano-playing and singing act; Lee Hall and Charline Easley do a burlesque adagio number, Vina Zolle sings in a pleasing soprano voice and Mae Packer contributes a dance of the classical variety. The Sunkist Beauties are on hand and Alexander Callam quits his mastering of ceremonies for an effective rendition of "One, Alone," from "The Desert Song."

For 18 Days in Jail?

Scottsbuff, Nebr., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Prisoners in the local jail get only two meals a day. Police Chief Guy Carlson said it required more men to watch them than their labor was worth. Hence less food to cut the cost and make it commensurate with results.

RKO-KEITH

"THE GRAND PARADE." Pathe dialogue, song and dance production, with story and dialogue by Edmund Goulding, featuring Helen Twelvetrees and Fred Scott, supported by Richard Carle and Marie Astaire. Directed by Fred Newmeyer; stage direction by Frank Reicher; musical numbers by Richard Boleslavsky. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

The backstage play has gone minstrel to its advantage.

Whether or not the title of this one was chosen because it is another carbon copy, in theme and development, of the story already utilized in "The Dance of Life," "Big Time," "The Song of Love" and some others, the fact remains that in intrinsic value and the merit of its performance, it is worth a majority of all the rest put together. I prefer to believe that "The Grand Parade" was so named because it signalizes a grand parade of personalities either entirely or comparatively new to the talking, singing and dancing screen.

Helen Twelvetrees, cast as the boarding house alavey who becomes the hired assistant and later the wife of Jack "Comeback" Kelly, minstrel tenor, who has succumbed to both drink and a burlesque blonde, finally finds opportunity to disclose the surprising range of emotional expression that has frequently been attributed to her but never revealed in the "bits" to which she has heretofore been assigned. I should say that her strong resemblance to Lillian Gish might easily prove a handicap rather than an asset. Miss Twelvetrees need not now rely upon a facial likeness to some other competent actress to gain the recognition that her present role assuredly must bring her. And Fred Scott, recruited from the concert field to make his screen debut in this picture, also seems to hold the future securely captive within the timbre of his voice. He both acts and sings like a veteran.

The menace from burlesque, whose company's route too closely parallels that of the minstrel troupe, is picturesquely played and sung by Marie Astaire, new to these eyes, but said to be from vaude
